Raising of Russ sub may spark furor

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield said today the Central Intelligence Agency raised part of a Soviet nuclear submarine that sank in the Pacific Ocean.

Mansfield said the sub was old and that its military value was not very significant, but "what it contained might have been of some value." He did not elaborate.

However, government officials who asked not to be named, said the operation was designed to recover secret Soviet codes. Neither the codes nor any missiles were discovered, they said.

These sources also described the submarine as a nuclear-powered, older sub of the so-called H-class. And while no missiles were found, they said an analysis of the recovered section indicated the submarine was armed with three missiles that normally would carry nuclear warheads.

The CIA, working with industrialist Howard Hughes, brought the section of the sub to the surface in about 17,000 feet of water about 750 miles northwest of Oahu, Hawaii, the sources said.

It sank in 1968 following a series of explosions, they said. The bodies of about 70 Soviet officers and seamen were recovered in the operation.

It was not known what impact the disclosures might have upon U.S.-Soviet relations. There was no immediate comment from either Soviet officials or news media, and officials at the American Embassy in Moscow said they were unaware of any inquiries from the Russians on the subject.

Under traditions of international law, once a vessel of one nation is lost with no hope of recovery it becomes fair game for the salvage operations of another country. Whether the Soviets, had they discovered the operation, would have been justified in interfering with the Explorer is in dispute.

The sinking apparently went unreported in the Soviet press, which only rarely carries stories about accidental naval losses.

There was no immediate White House reaction to the report.

The CIA refused to comment.

But Mansfield said he felt sure that the episode would be investigated by a Senate subcommittee.

Earlier, the Los Angeles Times, the Washington Post and the New York Times carried accounts of the July 1974 operation in their editions today.

One paper said the recovered portion of the Soviet sub yielded "secrets with profound national security implications."

The stories were published after columnist Jack Anderson reported on the Mutual Broadcasting System Tuesday night a similar version of the attempt to retrieve the Russian sub intact. It went down after a series of explosions.

The CIA made efforts to have accounts of the operation withheld.

In general, this is what the three newspapers and Anderson reported:

The United States initiated the highly secret salvage operation only after determining that the Soviet Union had not fixed the location of the sunken submersible, even after an extensive search monitored by the U.S. Navy.

The Navy apparently had determined the exact location through detection of the sound of underwater explosions, although not in time to rescue any of the Soviet crewmen.

Howard Hughes was approached as a cover for the "Project Jennifer" operation because of his penchant for secrecy, his known interest in marine mining and his patriotism.

The government financed the construction by Hughes' Summa Corp. of a 618-foot recovery vessel named the Glomar Explorer. It was equipped with a huge claw which could be lowered to the sea bottom, grasp the submarine and bring it to the surface.

Also constructed was a huge covered barge that could be used to bring the recovered submarine to port, safe from the prying cameras of Soviet spy satellites.

Hughes officials had maintained that the Glomar Explorer was designed exclusively to pluck minerals from the floor of the sea.

The effort to raise the Hotel class Soviet sub started on July 4, 1974. Crewmen from a Soviet trawler who were monitoring a Russian spacecraft were within eyesight at the time.

The Glomar Explorer's claw successfuly clutched the sunken submarine and started the three-mile lift to the surface. But as the lifting operation was about half completed, much of the submarine broke away, damaging the recovery claw.

Plan would lift savings interest lid

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Ford administration proposed today that interest ceilings be eliminated on savings accounts and that banks and savings institutions be allowed to pay interest on checking account deposits.

Under the administration plan, interest ceilings on savings accounts would be eliminated 5½ years after Congress approved the action.

The change was contained in the proposed Financial Institutions Act of 1975, a revised version of a similar 1973 proposal that was not approved by Congress.

"If the Congress will enact this bill into law, our financial institutions will benefit from the ability to offer new services and enter new markets, and their customers ... will share these benefits," President Ford said in a statement to Congress.

The major features of the proposed legislation, in addition to eliminating interest ceilings, are:

—Savings and loan associations and savings banks would be able to offer checking accounts and engage in credit card operations.

—Banks, savings and loan associations and mutual savings banks would be able to offer so-called NOW accounts that will pay interest on checking account-type deposits. NOW stands for negotiable order of withdrawal.

—Ceilings would be eliminated on VA and FHA home mortgages.

—Savings and loan associations and savings banks would have increased lending authority for consumer loans, real estate loans and construction loans.

—Banks would have added authority to make real estate loans and invest in community welfare and development projects.

—An incentive for investment in home mortgages would be offered to individuals and corporations who keep at least 10 per cent of their assets in residential mortgages.

GAME OF CHANCE

Chino school board candidates Pete VanderPoel, left, and Patrick Hooven look intent as they participate in a special drawing to break a tie for a board seat. In this photo, they are rolling slips of paper to be placed in capsules. VanderPoel, the incumbent, drew the lucky piece of paper.

VanderPoel wins draw, keeps school board post

Pete VanderPoel, a loser in the 65th Assembly District contest last November, was a winner Tuesday night by the luck of the draw.

The Chino dairyman won re-election to the Chino School Board over challenger Patrick Hooven in a special "tie breaker" drawing which turned into a victory for school officials and residents favoring year-round school.

VanderPoel drew the lucky slip of paper marked "elected" from a box in the district board room.

Hooven and VanderPoel each received 1,026 votes in the March 4 board election for three available seats. In cases of ties, state law mandates the race be settled by a drawing of some kind.

Before a packed crowd in the board room, VanderPoel and Hooven participated in a coin toss to decide who would draw first. VanderPoel flipped the coin, and Hooven called "heads." It was "heads", and Hooven went first.

Each candidate rolled 10 slips of paper — nine blank and one marked elected — into small capsules and placed them in a box. Then Hooven drew the first slip, which was blank.

Five blank slips were drawn before

Collision near Chino

Nine children injured

Nine children were injured Tuesday night when a pickup and a sedan collided at Euclid and Schaefer avenues near Chino.

All were admitted to the Chino General Hospital, where three are listed in guarded conditions.

The pickup, driven by Joseph Ormonde of 14692½ Archibald Ave., Chino, was going west on Schaefer when it collided with a sedan, operated by Dolores Jimenez, of 204 W. Elm St., Ontario, which was traveling south on Euclid, said highway patrolmen.

Many of the children were lying on the pavement around the wrecked vehicles when the ambulance arrived, said Dave Doernbach of Kniffen Ambulance Service.

The injured, all passengers in the pickup, are from three families.

They are Patti, 10, Brenda, 13, and Mary, 14, children of Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Ormonde, 4233 Schaefer Ave., Chino, Sandra, 10, Linda, 9, Sherry, 7, and Petey, 5, children of Mr. and Mrs. Pete Ormonde, 12406 Benson Ave., Chino; and Frankie, 11, and Andrew, 7, children of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ormonde, 14692½ Archibald Ave., Chino.

Listed in guarded condition are Mary, Frankie and Patti. The others are reported in satisfactory condition.

Roadblock overcome

Proponents of move to repeal Nox program receive new life

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Legislation that would repeal a controversial smog control program for 1.8 million 1966-70 Southern California cars has picked up the crucial vote needed to overcome a committee roadblock.

Saying public pressure supporting the bill has been extreme, Assemblyman Walter M. Ingalls said he would give the measure the vote it needs today to get out of committee and move toward the Assembly floor.

"The outpouring of mail in support of the bill and against the program has been almost unprecedented. The pressures brought to bear on all legislators representing the districts within the South Coast Air Basin has been extreme, and most unfair," said the Riverside Democrat who chairs the Assembly Transportation Committee.

That committee had bottled up the bill by Sen. Omer Rains, D-Ventura, with a negative 8-7 vote — Ingalls casting a negative vote.

"As the chairman of the committee, I believe it is my responsibility to break the present deadlock and permit the full Assembly to decide the question," Ingalls added.

But he added he would still vote against the bill on the Assembly floor.

The measure would scrap a requirement that all 1.8 million 1966-70 cars in Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside, San Bernardino, Ventura and Santa Barbara counties be equipped with devices to control emissions of oxides of nitrogen (NOx).

Ingalls said he was "seriously disturbed by the emotional campaign that has been waged against the program, and by the irresponsible charges and statements from individuals and even elected officials in the Los Angeles area, who have turned so many citizens against their own best interests."

If the other committee members do not change their votes, Ingalls' switch would send the bill out of the transportation committee at its meeting today to the Assembly Ways and Means Committee.

Rains said in an interview that he expects little trouble in that committee, but the Assembly floor vote "will probably be close."

Supreme Court rules S.S. benefits only to widows 'unconstitutional'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court ruled without dissent today that a federal law granting Social Security benefits to widows but not widowers is unconstitutional.

"It is no less important for a child to be cared for by its sole surviving parent when that parent is male rather than female," Justice William J. Brennan Jr. said for the court.

In a separate concurring opinion, Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr. said that "when the mother is a principal wage earner, the family may suffer as great an economic deprivation upon her death as would occur upon the death of a father wage earner."

In another separate opinion, Justice William H. Rehnuist said it is "irrational to distinguish between mothers and fathers when the sole question is whether a child of a deceased contributing worker should have the opportunity to receive the full-time attention of the only parent remaining to it."

Although there was no dissent from the decision, Justice William O. Douglas did not participate since the court heard arguments on the case after he suffered a stroke on Dec. 31.

The government has estimated that in 1974 alone the cost of extending benefits to widowers and their children would have been $20 million.

The court held that Social Security benefits must be distributed according to classifications which do not differentiate on the basis of sex.

The government contended in arguments before the court that the distinction between widows and widowers was intended to provide an income to women who were unable to provide for themselves because of economic discrimination.

A.G. backs housing fight for women

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Fair housing laws should protect women as well as minorities, says state Atty. Gen. Evelle J. Younger.

In a Tuesday news conference here, Younger endorsed legislation to extend the Rumford Act of 1963 to prohibit discrimination in housing on the basis of sex.

Omar Bradley suffers stroke

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Gen. Omar Bradley, the highest ranking military officer in the United States, has suffered a cerebral hemorrhage, a military spokesman said today.

Bradley, 82, was admitted to the UCLA Medical Center at 1:20 a.m. Monday after suffering the stroke at his home.

Col. Gerald C. Burch, chief of the Army information office here, said Bradley — the nation's only living five-star general — was conscious and that his condition was stable.

Burch said Bradley had been active recently and last month attended the dedication of the Bradley Room at Patriotic Hall here.

Bradley commanded U.S. ground forces in Europe during World War II.

Still officially on active duty, Bradley had been in semi-retirement since 1953, when he stepped down after two terms as chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

He had lived in Los Angeles in recent years.

In 1973, Bradley underwent emergency surgery to prevent blood clots from entering his lungs. Surgeons placed an umbrella-shaped device in a major blood vessel to filter out blood clots.

But 'cloud is lifting'

Nessen: Watergate, Vietnam legacy is suspicion, mistrust of President

WASHINGTON (AP) — White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen says one of the worst legacies of the Watergate and Vietnam years is that people don't believe what they have been told by their President.

In his first speech since becoming press secretary nearly six months ago, Nessen said he is beginning to overcome a mood of suspicion and mistrust which built up between the press and the President during the Watergate and Vietnam eras.

The best remedy to overcome the distrust, he said, is "honesty, and if your side and my side do our jobs honestly, we will change the mood and the beneficiary will be the American people."

Nessen said it has not been easy to "change the mood that has been growing steadily worse in recent years.

"The cloud of mistrust is beginning to lift but we have a long way to go." Nessen told a meeting of the Society of Professional Journalists, Sigma Delta Chi, at the National Press Club.

Of improper spending

Whetmore denies report

Funds collected for his 1976 re-election campaign have been spent by Sen. James E. Whetmore, R-35th Dist., to pay property tax and insurance and maintenance costs on his Buena Park townhouse, according to published reports in Los Angeles.

A candidate is not prohibited from spending campaign funds for personal use by the state election law. However, the state Franchise Tax Board and the Internal Revenue Service said campaign funds spent by candidates for personal use must be reported as taxable income.

The report states that Whetmore also used campaign funds for business costs incurred by his law firm and to repair a television set and a stereo tuner and buy furniture for his law office and townhouse.

These expenditures are among $31,311 his two campaign committees reported spending from 1974 receipts of $37,397. As of Jan. 7, only $6,311 of the money contributed by lobbyists and other supporters in 1974 remained in the campaign chest. Official reports were required by the new Political Reform Act of 1974.

Whetmore, claiming his townhouse serves as a campaign headquarters, was quoted as saying, "In my opinion, every one of those expenditures are legitimate campaign expenses." He said he had not yet filed his 1974 income tax returns and has no intention of reporting the expenditures as income, unless advised to do so by his tax attorney.

Among expenses Whetmore termed "proper" were a $307.50 December property tax installment, $417 for homeowner's and theft insurance, $174.50 for drapery cleaning, $108.50 for maintenance, $159.87 for bottled water, $270.98 for electricity, $188.50 for house cleaning, and $161.27 for unlisted telephone service to the townhouse.

Board will seek stricter air standards in California

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The State Air Resources Board wants stiffer auto emission standards for 1977 model cars sold in California despite moves by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency to delay stricter pollution standards.

The ARB voted here Tuesday to ask the EPA to grant a waiver to permit California to implement pollution standards more stringent than those for the rest of the country.

On March 5, acting on a proposal by President Ford, the EPA deferred implemention of the 1977 emissions standards until 1982.

The move Tuesday came following testimony by auto maker representatives Monday in opposition to the stricter standards. General Motors Corp. spokesman Edwin Nelson warned that the new standards might mean increases in new car prices and operating costs and could result in a drop in the number of cars GM would market in California.

"This is because in some engine-vehicle combinations the emission requirements cannot be met while obtaining reasonable vehicle drivability and fuel economy," Nelson said.

In addition, Chrysler Corp. attorney Mike Rice indicated that Chrysler might challenge the waiver request when it comes before the EPA.

But Tom Quinn, chairman of the ARB, said Tuesday, "We have a job to do, and we intend to do it, even though all we have heard from the auto industry is why it can't be done."

Under the federal Clean Air Act, Quinn added, EPA Administrator Russell Train does not have "any discretion in the matter."

The act notes the severe pollution problems in California and strictly limits the conditions under which the EPA administrator could reject a waiver.

"The Clean Air Act seems to say that Californians know best what's good for California," an EPA spokesman confirmed in Washington.

Quinn called the decision "a big step forward in the battle against air pollution."

The new three-member ARB tightened requirements for hydrocarbons (HC) and oxides of nitrogen (NOx), but the board delayed any decision on setting standards for sulfate emissions.

Current standards in California limit emissions to 0.9 grams per mile of hydrocarbon, 9.0 for carbon monoxide, and 2.0 for oxides of nitrogen. The new standards would be 0.41 grams of hydrocarbons, 9.0 for carbon monoxide and 1.5 for oxides of nitrogen.

In recommending that the 1977 standards be delayed, Train had noted the possible health hazard of excessive sulfate emissions from catalytic converters used to reduce the other emissions. The EPA said it was worried that excessive concentrations of sulfates might result from the converters.

Although Quinn said the ARB is concerned about the sulfate problem, he said he believed the problem could be solved within the next two or three years.

The board, however, ordered its staff to speed a study on the San Diego and Santa Ana freeways of how much of a problem is caused by the sulfuric acid that comes from the catalytic converters.

Way to cut Pomona payroll

School district proposes early retirement program

Pomona school district management is offering an early retirement incentive program to teachers and administrators for next year as part of the negotiations package.

It was presented officially at last week's school board meeting to Associated Pomona Teachers (APT) and the Pomona Administrators Association.

APT executive director Del Pfeifer said that the group would respond to the offer at the school board meeting on March 25. The Certificated Employes Council (CEC) studied it Tuesday, Pfeifer said.

As outlined by Sidney Moses, assistant superintendent of educational services, the program allows those with a minimum 10-year service record to retire and be hired back by the district as consultants at annual fees ranging from $2,500 to $4,000.

Those who elect to take early retirement under the plan must be participating in the State Teacher's Retirement System, which allows retirement at 55.

Under the agreement, consultants would have the status of independent contractors and would be signed to contracts calling for 25 days' work during a school year.

The early retirement incentive program would allow those who retire to secure income above their state retirement benefits. It would create openings in the district for young teachers and, as a benefit to the district, could reduce the number of high paid employes on the payroll.

The certificated employe groups also are studying the 1975-76 school year calendar proposed by district management, a new administrative regulation on earned vacation days and a work year outline for nonclassroom workers.

State tax break urged for under $15,000 group

SACRAMENTO (AP — California income taxes would be cut for families earning less than $15,000 a year under a tax reform bill proposed by a Democratic state senator.

The bill by Sen. John Dunlap of Napa would finance tax cuts of up to $150 per family by increasing tax rates for wealthy persons and scrapping such tax breaks as capital gains exemptions and the oil depletion allowance.

Dunlap told a news conference the bill would ease the burden of low and middle-income Californians by $555 million. He said it would also boost total state revenues by $136 million a year.

Dunlap's bill would:

—Eliminate tax preferences for capital gains, percentage depletion, stock options, excess investment interest and accelerated depreciation.

—Repeal oil and mineral depletion allowances.

—Property tax exemptions for stocks, bonds, royalties and other "intangible properties."

—Establish 12 new tax brackets for incomes ranging from $34,000 to $250,000.

—Grant tax credits for incomes below $15,000, which could be claimed even if no taxes were owed.

The bill, numbered to coincide with the number on the state income tax form, is SB 540.

Jury requests death sentence for driver-sniper

INDIO, Calif. (AP — Richard Harold Hicks, convicted of killing three in a 105-mile shooting spree along Interstate 10, must be sentenced to die, a jury has ruled.

The Superior Court jury that convicted Hicks of three counts of first degree murder and nine counts of assault with a deadly weapon just a day earlier, ordered the death penalty for him Tuesday.

Hicks, 34, was accused of waging a six-hour sniping attack between Blythe and Banning last Aug. 31 that left three dead and seven injured.

After the jury returned its verdict in the special circumstances phase of the trial, ruling that the conviction met the criteria for a mandatory death penalty under California law, Hicks' attorney moved for a new trial and reduction of the conviction to second dgree murder.

Superior Court Judge Richard Marsh said he would rule on the two motions and possibly sentence Hicks at 11 a.m. Thursday.

An appeal is automatic in California in all death sentence cases.

Cleaner air, less mileage backed

SAN FRANCISCO (AP — Californians overwhelmingly feel the auto industry has the capability to improve car mileage and clean up exhausts within five years, a poll said today.

The California Poll reported that 75 per cent of the persons interviewed said they felt both goals could be reached within a five-year period. Another 21 per cent said it would take much longer and 4 per cent had no opinion.

If forced to make a choice between gasoline economy or cleaner air, however, drivers would opt for the cleaner air, the poll said.

Seventy-five per cent of the 1,011 persons interviewed between Feb. 15 and March 3 indicated they were willing to accept lower gas mileage for better exhaust. Eighteen per cent preferred higher mileage with less emphasis on improving exhaust and seven per cent had no opinion.

La Verne will be valley city for whom Liberty Bell tolls

La Verne is apparently going to get the second of the two Liberty Bell replicas which have been allotted to the state.

Robert G. Harris, chairman of the city's Bicentennial Committee, said today that a $2,000 deposit has been mailed to London and is being accepted.

The bell, by the time it is shipped here and reassembled for next year's festivities, is expected to cost $20,000, but Harris contends the city will get its money back through public donations and community subscriptions.

Harris said he was assured by phone Tuesday that the bell is being reserved for La Verne. The first bell in the state has been reserved for Bakersfield.

Only 100 replicas of the bell that signaled the United States' secession as an English colony 200 years ago are being cast through an agreement with the Limited Editions Collectors Society of America, Harris explained. Each of the 50 states will be allotted two bells.

The bells are being cast by the White Chapel Bell Foundry of London, which had cast the original Liberty Bell in 1752. Harris said the same ingredients will go into the replicas as the composition of the original bell.

The original bell was cast by Thomas Lester, whose family still owns the foundry and has the original formula.

Purchase of the bell was approved by the City Council Monday night. It is expected to arrive at La Verne in about a year.

34 experts to take part in session on global economy

Thirty-four of the best-informed economists in the world will talk about the global economic crisis during a three-day conference this weekend in Claremont.

The event is the Claremont International Monetary Conference Friday through Sunday sponsored by the Claremont Graduate School. It will be the fifth in a series of biennial conferences held by CGS and The Johns Hopkins University Center in Bologna, Italy.

The conference organizer, Randall Hinshaw, professor of economics at CGS, has invited some of the most eminent elders and some of the most prestigious younger scholars in the field of international monetary problems.

Using the theme, "International Aspects of the World Economic Crisis," the delegates will exchange ideas informally as they sit around a horseshoe table in Balch Auditorium, Scripps College, Claremont. A few brief position papers will be presented, but most of the conference will be devoted to the give and take of open discussion. Hinshaw will prepare a book from the transcripts of the discussions.

Participants will include C. Fred Bergsten, 33, senior fellow in the Brookings Institution; Arthur N. Young, 84, international financial adviser; Lord Lionel Robbins of the Court of Directors of the London School of Economics, the conference moderator; Gottfried Haberler, emeritus professor at Harvard University and former president of the American Economic Association; and Robert Triffin, professor at Yale University and author of the Triffin Plan, a leading approach to economic reform.

Also participating will be Robert Mundell, author of popular and technical books on international economics and a professor at Columbia University; Marina von Neumann Whitman, a former member of the Council of Economic Advisers and a University of Pittsburgh professor; and Arthur B. Laffer, consultant to the U.S. secretary of the treasury.

Willard L. Thorp, an international economic adviser for many years and one of the architects of the Marshall Plan, will preside at the conference which include morning and afternoon sessions on Friday and Saturday and a Sunday morning session.

Smith denies illegal political donations to Nixon

SAN DIEGO (AP — Financier C. Arnholt Smith has proclaimed himself innocent of federal charges that he arranged illegal political campaign contributions.

Testifying in his own defense, Smith denied Tuesday authorizing the use of corporate money from Sovereign State Capital, Inc., for political gifts.

The former board chairman of U.S. National Bank also said he couldn't recall authorizing "advances" from Sovereign State. Government prosecutors declined to cross-examine him. The defense then rested its case.

The graying businessman is charged with four misdemeanor counts involving $7,000 in contributions to the 1970 reelection campaign of former Sen. George Murphy, R-Calif., and the 1972 reelection campaign of former President Richard Nixon.

He faces another federal trial next month on bank fraud charges in the collapse two years ago of U.S. National Bank.

Sovereign State is a codefendent in the campaign contributions charges.

In 30 minutes testimony, Smith said he couldn't remember if he ever issued a $1,000 check to former U.S. National Vice President Norman Foster in 1970, or a $3,000 check to Richard Woltman, who succeeded Smith as U.S. National board chairman.

Both testified last week that Smith asked them to contribute to the Murphy campaign, adding that they were reimbursed with checks from Sovereign State.

He also denied ordering a $3,000 Sovereign State check sent to his longtime aide, Frank A. Thornton, who testified last week that he donated $3,000 to the Nixon campaign at Smith's bidding. Sovereign State deposited the money to cover the check in his personal account, Thornton said.

The government alleges that Smith funneled money from Sovereign State to Murphy and Nixon through these individuals, using funds from Sovereign State to repay personal political contributions.

Corporate political gifts are outlawed by the federal government.

Smith testified that he personally gave $203,000 to the Nixon campaign in 1972 and $8,000 to the 1970 Murphy campaign.

But he denied owning the Barnes-Champ advertising agency, of which Thornton was president, and denied owning, holding stock in or being an officer of Sovereign State.

The government charges that Smith secretly owned or controlled both firms as part of a vast web of corporate holdings.

In his final arguments, federal prosecutor Robert Filsinger told the jury that the advances were clearly a cloak for illegal political donations.

The jury is expected to start deliberating Wednesday.

S. Viets abandon province

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnam is abandoning a fourth province, Quang Tri, to the fast encroaching North Vietnamese and is considering giving up Thua Thien, which includes the old imperial capital of Hue, government officials disclosed today.

About 100,000 panicky civilians were reported fleeing southward toward Da Nang from the cities of Quang Tri and Hue. The area is on the northern coast below the demilitarized zone, where heavy fighting has been under way for two weeks.

Field reports from Hue said residents were urged to leave, but military units and male civil servants were ordered to remain on duty. Orders were sent to the government radio station in Hue to be prepared to destroy all equipment should the situation become critical.

The move follows the abandonment Monday of the three western provinces in the Central Highlands — Kontum, Pleiku and Barlac. The government said it could not hold those provinces, which cover 11,000 square miles and have more than half a million people, after North Vietnamese forces cut all overland supply routes.

Since the cease-fire agreement was signed more than two years ago, the Saigon government has lost or abandoned 24 of its 244 district capitals. Of the provinces, five out of 44 have fallen or been abandoned. District capitals are the equivalent of county seats, while provincial capitals are the equivalent of state capitals.

Both Vietnamese and Western analysts said the decision was approved by President Nguyen Van Thieu and was made for strategic reasons rather than political ones.

North Vietnam reportedly has four infantry divisions and two antiaircraft divisions in the region, outnumbering South Vietnamese regulars two-to-one.

Tens of thousands of panicky civilians began fleeing southward toward Da Nang from Quang Tri, Dalat and Hue, officials said. Heavy fighting has been under way in the region for the past two weeks and North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces already have gained much ground.

The exodus was expected to surpass a half million, including 450,000 from the three abandoned central highlands provinces.

Virtually all of western Thua Thien is also controlled by the North Vietnamese or is a noman's-land. The only government controlled areas are mainly along the coastal strip of Highway 1.

Quang Tri province has a total population of nearly 300,000, about one-fourth of it concentrated in the city.

Thua Thien has a population of 750,000, including 200,000 in Hue.

Disruptive tactics by FBI revealed

POLISHING THE APPLES

Campaign aimed at Socialist party, touched Boy Scouts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI secretly interfered with political campaigns, promoted racial unrest and anonymously mailed abusive letters in a 10-year campaign to disrupt the Socialist Workers party, according to newly disclosed FBI documents.

The tactics even reached into the national headquarters of the Boy Scouts of America.

Three thousand pages from the FBI files lay out the first detailed account of the counter-intelligence programs, known as COINTELPRO, launched by J. Edgar Hoover at various times in the 1950s and 1960s. Hoover terminated the formal COINTELPRO operations in April 1971.

Party officials and the Political Rights Defense Fund, which is supporting the party's $27-million damage suit against the FBI, were making the documents public after winning a federal court order forcing the FBI to yield them. The party has accused the FBI of widespread violations of its constitutional rights.

Since it was formed in the 1930s, the party regularly has fielded candidates for local and national office, usually picking up only a tiny percentage of the vote. The party consistently advocates peaceful political activity, according to an official of the Defense Fund, a private New York group not otherwise connected to the party.

The documents show that the FBI mailed numerous anonymous letters designed to damage personal and political reputations of party members.

For example, a 1964 memo described a letter mailed to the editor of the Morning Call, a Paterson, N.J., newspaper, about one of its staff writers, Murray Zuckoff, who had been active in the party.

"You apparently don't know Zuckoff or what he stands for. It is inconceivable that such a person would find employment on a legitimate newspaper such as the 'Morning Call'," said the letter, signed "a reader."

A Defense Fund official said Zuckoff subsequently dropped out of politics to keep his job.

A 1965 memo authorized the Denver FBI office to mail an anonymous letter in an effort to sabotage the campaign of Allen Taplin, a local party organizer.

"Bureau approval is requested for the Denver office to mail the following anonymous letter attributed to 'a concerned mother,' to the president of the Denver school board in an effort to prevent Taplin from being elected to the school board," the Denver FBI office wrote.

The spurious letter said: "Being a conscientious voter and mother of school-age children, I feel that someone should do something to prevent a person of this sort from being elected."

The memo approving the letter reminded the Denver agents, "Use commercially purchased stationery for this mailing and take the usual precautions to insure it cannot be associated with the FBI." Taplin was defeated.

The documents showed these other political sabotage attempts:

—Information about John Clarence Franklin's past arrests, from five to 12 years earlier, was leaked to New York newsmen during Franklin's 1961 campaign for Manhattan borough president. The information subsequently appeared in a New York Daily News column, which was cited in a later FBI memo judging the exercise successful.

—Signing itself as "Disappointed," the FBI mailed a letter to Sam Jordan, a black candidate for mayor of San Francisco in 1963. The letter attacked certain Jordan supporters who were Socialist Workers party leaders. "The letter has definite disruptive potential," one FBI memo said.

A 1969 effort to promote racial unrest involved Paul Boutelle, a black Socialist Workers mayoral candidate in New York who had spoken out against racism within the party. The FBI sent Boutelle an anonymous letter, purportedly from party members, which said, "Why don't you and the rest of your fellow party monkeys hook up with the Panthers where you'd feel at home?"

An FBI headquarters memo approving the letter noted that the purpose was "to exploit" the racism issue, force Boutelle out of the party and "create a devisive split within the" Socialist Workers.

In another attack, "information concerning the arrest of Boutelle was furnished to (deleted) New York Bureau of Associated Press. (deleted) and on 9-15-69 it was furnished to (deleted) New York Daily News (deleted). (Deleted) indicated a desire to retain this information for future use, should Boutelle ascend to a position of being newsworthy (and the information did not subsequently appear in print)." The sections deleted by the FBI appear to have contained names.

The Boy Scouts became involved in a 1967 disruption tactic, aimed at Walter Elliott, scoutmaster of a troop in Orange, N.J. His wife was a party member, but Elliott was not.

State body studies proposal

School dropout at age 14?

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A state advisory commission is considering a proposal to let children drop out of regular school at age 14, if they have something else to do that is productive.

Leland Newcomer, chairman of the Commission on Reform of Intermediate and Secondary Education (RISE), said he's for an even stronger change.

"It's my personal recommendation that we should do away with compulsory schooling, but not compulsory education," said Newcomer, who is president of LaVerne College, in an interview Tuesday.

The 37-member commission was appointed by state schools chief Wilson Riles, and plans to submit its recommendations to him next month. Its final three-day meeting starts March 31 in Sacramento.

Present law requires children to be in school until 18, unless they graduate from high school sooner. At 16, however, they have the alternative of shifting to a "continuation nigh school"—a part-time, or night program—if their community has one.

At a meeting of the RISE commission recently in Asilomar, a proposal to end compulsory schooling at 14 was defeated.

A group then submitted an alternative proposal, written by San Francisco banker Robert Joss, which said that children should be allowed to leave regular school at 14 if their parents and the school agree to some other productive activity—study, travel or work.

"They would have to show that they wouldn't be idle and just roam the streets," Joss said.

He said that proposal failed narrowly to get the necessary three-fourths approval to become part of the commission's recommendations.

Newcomer said the proposal is being rewritten, and some of its supporters are talking about recommending a "furlough" system, under which students could leave school for a time to do something else.

One problem, Newcomer said, is the state's present method of basing state aid on average daily attendance. That isn't within the commission's province, however, he said. Another commission is studying finance.

Newcomer and Joss said that some children can't profit from schools as they are now organized, and the state should provide some educational activity for them that they can handle.

Backers of compulsory schooling, Newcomer said, always say it is the way to provide an educated citizenry.

"In reality," he said, "it may be a convenient way to keep kids off the street, a baby-sitting service, or a means of keeping them off the labor market."

VanderPoel...

VanderPoel drew the sixth — the lucky one — and was elected.

Thus, VanderPoel became the only incumbent to survive an election in which a pair of two-term incumbents, Eva Weiszbrod and Charles Smith, were unseated. The 38-year-old dairy owner will join new members Lyle Briggs and Roy Ward on the panel, who were elected outright March 4.

VanderPoel, a strong YRS advocate, will remain on the board with Al McCombs and Augie Tapia, who have generally supported year-round school. Briggs and Ward have opposed YRS, and were endorsed with Hooven by Citizens for Improved Education, an anti-YRS group.

Most observers expect the YRS issue to be raised almost immediately by Briggs and Ward — who have said they will seek an evaluation of the program.

Some expected Tapia to be a "swing vote," but he said Tuesday that he tends to listen to the community, which has favored YRS, although not by a strong majority.

VanderPoel said after the drawing that he was uncertain if his victory was "luck or fate." He pointed out that he lost the Assembly race — to Democrat Bill McVittie — and that placed him in the position of running for school board again.

"I hope the new board is one of problem-solving, not problem-creating," he added. VanderPoel predicted those favoring YRS will have the majority on the new board.

Hooven, a Monrovia teacher, said he was "extremely disappointed" in losing. "I don't have any bad feelings, but I wish there could have been a runoff election. A lot of people were unhappy about that."

Jackie returns to Paris after Onassis' funeral

ATHENS (AP) — Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis flew to Paris today within 24 hours of the burial of her husband Aristotle Onassis on his private island in the Ionian Sea.

Before leaving Scorpios Island, Mrs. Onassis and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy Jr. paid an early morning visit to Onassis' grave in a wing of the tiny island chapel of the Virgin Mary. Then they boarded a private jet with her two children, 14-year-old John F. Kennedy Jr. and 17-year-old Caroline, and flew to Athens.

After seeing Mrs. Onassis off for Paris, Kennedy flew to New York. The Massachusetts senator reportedly met briefly with Premier Constantine Caramanlis before his departure.

Onassis died in Paris last Saturday at age 69. Mrs. Onassis came from New York on Sunday and accompanied his body to Scorpios, the Onassis-owned island off the west coast of Greece, on Tuesday. Her children flew from New York to Greece on Monday.

Christina Onassis, the late shipping magnate's 24-year old daughter and principal heir, left the island with her companion, Petros Goulandris, son of another rich Greek shipping family.

They boarded a chartered Olympic Airways 727 jet that, family sources said, would drop friends in Nice, Paris and Geneva, before flying the couple onto the Bahamas for a rest.

Onassis' only son, Alexander, died in January 1973 at age 24 of injuries received in the crash of a family plane. He is also buried on Scorpios.

Some Athens newspapers reported today that the contents of Onassis' will would be made known either in Switzerland or in Monte Carlo, where part of his empire was domiciled.

But a source close to the family said the will would be filed for probate in New York early next week.

Family sources have said that Onassis left a fortune estimated at between $600 million and $1 billion. His 24-year-old daughter, Christina, is the principal heir, with Mrs. Onassis reportedly getting $120 million plus most of his multi-million-dollar art collection and her children receiving trust funds of $15 million each.

Ex-GOP official pleads guilty in fund conspiracy

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Former Florida Republican party chairman Earl M. "Duke" Crittenden pleaded guilty today to taking part in a fund-raising conspiracy in which, prosecutors charge, former GOP Sen. Edward Gurney and four others participated.

Under a plea-bargaining arrangement, Crittenden, Gurney's campaign manager in 1968, pleaded guilty to a reduced misdemeanor charge. He faces a maximum sentence of six months or $1,000 fine.

Sentencing will not be imposed until the Gurney trial is concluded, the agreement states.

Gurney, ex-aides James Groot and Joseph Bastien, and former federal housing officials K. Wayne Swiger and Ralph Koontz are charged with conspiring to build a $233,000 slush fund from illicit contributions from builders seeking Gurney's influence in federal housing projects and mortgage loans.

Crittenden stood before U.S. District Court Judge Ben Krentzman and admitted that he was part of a conspiracy to raise campaign funds. He said he attended a January 1971 meeting at Gurney's home in which the hiring of Larry Williams as a Gurney fund-raiser was discussed.

Williams is expected to be a key prosecution witness.

Krentzman conditionally accepted the plea, pending a presentence investigation.

Crittenden, charged in the original indictment as a co-conspirator, had his trial severed after he agreed to cooperate with the government. He will be the second goverment witness, following William Pelski, a former Federal Housing Authority director in Miami.

Pelski, who spent several days testifying against Gurney, said under cross examination Tuesday that he told federal investigators there was "no indication that the senator was aware of any fund raising on his behalf."

Union says no to strike accord

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A tentative agreement worked out early today to end Philadelphia's five-day-old transit strike was rejected several hours later by union leaders.

Collapse of the agreement turned the emphasis on the Southeastern Pennsylvania Transportation Authority's effort today to end the walkout with an injunction.

Recount changes little in Bonita School board election

A recount vote completed today moved Clell D. Hoffman closer to Robert Rimpau in the Bonita school board elections but not close enough to unseat the incumbent.

Figures released today by Leonard Panish, Los Angeles County registrar of voters, showed Hoffman with a net gain of two votes, and Rimpau winning by a margin of 36 votes instead of the 38 reported in final unofficial tallies March 5.

Rimpau, a San Dimas developer, received 2,233 votes to win his second term, according to the official canvass. Hoffman, an Alhambra school administrator who lives in La Verne Heights, had 2,197.

With Rimpau's seat now secure, the count again showed that all three incumbents won re-election.

The official tallies showed board member Eugene Bowers polling the largest vote: 2,923. The third incumbent, Lowell Godfrey, received 2,864 votes.

Votes for the other candidates included 1,808 for Lawrence Ytuarte; 1,470 for Betty Munro, and 1,067 for Jeff Nadelman.

The cost of the recount will be borne by the school district. It is estimated at nearly $1,000.

Transient jailed in theft of $200 in tools from car

Ontario police Tuesday morning arrested a 36-year-old transient suspected of stealing $200 worth of tools from the trunk of a car parked in the 700 block of S. Bon View Avenue.

Ernest Delgado, according to police reports, was seen by several residents in the area taking tools out of the trunk of the vehicle owned by Frank Garcia, 26. The residents called police when they were not satisfied with the suspect's story that he was moving the car so police would not tow it away.

Garcia told police he had left his keys in the car and when he returned the car had been moved and the tools stolen.

Delgado was booked in the West End jail this morning on suspicion of grand theft.

Show of hands by courtroom spectators decides verdict

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — City Court Judge Ray W. Churchill allowed courtroom spectators, including some awaiting trial, to vote on the guilt or innocence of a defendant.

"I was never so shocked in my life," said James O. Marty, attorney for defendant Audy Mae Parker, 40. "I don't know what I'd have done if I'd lost. I guess I would have had to appeal."

The courtroom vote came Monday night after Mrs. Parker was tried on two counts of assault and battery, carrying a pistol and firing a gun inside the city limits, all charges stemming from an argument at a club.

Mrs. Parker pleaded guilty to the gun charges and was fined $75 and placed on probation until Dec. 1. Churchill ruled that the prosecution had failed to prove its case in one of the assault and battery charges.

After testimony in the second assault and battery case, Churchill addressed his courtroom:

"The court, of course, is not endowed with the wisdom of Solomon. The legislature permits juries in City Court, but the politicians who want to control the courts refuse to let City Court operate under the jury system.

"I don't know of any particular precedent," the judge continued. "I'm going to ask for a show of hands. I want no conversation, I just want a show of hands."

Mrs. Parker won and Churchill ordered the second charge against her dismissed.

Brown may appeal court ban on Good Friday closing

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. says he may appeal a court ruling against closing state offices on Good Friday because it limits his power to declare any holiday for that day.

The governor, a former seminary student, told newsmen the ruling allows employes to take compensating time off, which he supports because "people shouldn't be paid to go to church it corrupts the appreciation (of worship)."

Brown said he would decide in the next day or two whether to appeal the March 12 ruling of the state Court of Appeals ruling that closing state offices for Good Friday worship is unconstitutional.

State employes traditionally have received three hours off with pay to worship on Good Friday. The practice cost taxpayers $818,167 in 1972, according to the suit by a state employe which received a favorable verdict in Alameda County Superior Court that was upheld on appeal.

Asked what the grounds for such an appeal would be, Brown said the question is whether the judge was "unnecessarily restrictive on the right of the state to (declare a holiday)."

"The appeal will be on the award of legal fees to the public interest law firm involved and whether or not the judge went too far and went beyond what he had to do," he added after speaking to leaders of the State Bar.

Brown said he expects the matter to be resolved before Good Friday this year, March 28.

He indicated that employes will be given three hours off to worship, but will have to make them up by working three hours extra.

"The court said we could do that, use compensating time, which means you'll work another three hours — which is in my general program anyway. You have to give more and take less."

Brown said he is considering an appeal because, "Good Friday has never been ruled unconstitutional. Of course, it raises other questions about use of chaplains and the whole gamut of establishment religion.

"There seems to be a breach of First Amendment (rights) so I think it's certainly worth examinining."

He refused to commit himself to whether he would seek a clarification or reversal of the appellate court decision or a reversal. "I don't want to limit my actions. It's a very touchy issue. If Good Friday falls, maybe a few other things would go with it."

Elaborating on why he believes the court's ruling is too broad, he said:

"Right now, the order is writen so that the only day on which a holiday cannot be declared is Good Friday. In other words, the law permits the governor to declare a day of fast — did you know that? A holiday is there. I can declare that anytime so that raises the question of the free exercise clause and equal protection (under the First Amendment).

"The order itself is a little broad. What if there was a reason to put a holiday on that particular day? The order itself would not permit that, even for a secular reason."

Fatality rate declines on state roads

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The number of fatalities per 100 million miles traveled on California's roads dropped last year compared to 1973, the California Highway Patrol says.

And the estimate of the total number of miles driven in 1974 on state highways also decreased for the first time in 31 years, CHP Commissioner Dan Lanza said in a statement Tuesday.

The fatality rate on state highways was 3.2 per 100 million miles traveled, he said, down from 3.7 per 100 million miles in 1973.

Total fatalities in 1974 were 4,019, a drop from the 4,905 recorded in 1973.

Lanza also said the estimated mileage driven in the state was 127.2 billion miles, down 5½ billion from the 1973 estimate.

China refused to help get peace talks in Cambodia

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States tried unsuccessfully last fall to persuade China to help get peace negotiations going in Cambodia, according to high State Department sources.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger during his visit to Peking last November strongly urged Premier Chou En-lai to take a hand in restoring peace to the area, it was learned.

But Chou turned down Kissinger's plea with a doctrinaire dissertation on the evils of imperialism that could have been excerpted from an editorial in the Communist Party Journal Red Flag, the sources said.

Kissinger could not understand why the Chinese were so emotionally "up-tight" about Cambodia, the sources said. The best estimate here is that Cambodia relates to a super-sensitive Chinese internal political issue involving a high personality.

"If the U.S. thought it would get help from the Chinese on a Cambodian settlement, you can forget it," said one official. "We have been stonewalled."

Prince Norodom Sihanouk, the exiled Cambodian leader, lives in Peking. But it is not clear that he would receive Peking's blessings to head a new government in Phnom Penh if the Lon Nol government falls.

Chinese officials have been warm toward Khieu Samphan, the 44-year-old leader of the Khmer Rouge who serves as a member of the Khmer Communist Party's Central Committee, deputy prime minister and defense minister of the Royal Government of National Union.

Intelligence sources here say the North Vietnamese regard Samphan as a foe rather than a friend, although Hanoi supplies Samphan's 60,000 troops with supplies and some 2,000 military advisers.

According to Asian experts here, the Cambodians and the Vietnamese continue to maintain ill-feelings toward each other. There is a fear and hatred of the Vietnamese by the Cambodians and a kind of contempt and disdain by the Vietnamese for Cambodia that applies even at the leadership level of the Khmer Rouge and the North Vietnamese.

State's aged, disabled seek withheld cost of living aid

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — California's elderly and disabled are asking the state Supreme Court to prevent Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. and state officials from "unlawfully withholding" $18 million in cost of living benefits from them.

The petition filed Tuesday by groups representing nearly 600,000 aged, blind and disabled who receive Supplemental Security income said that since Jan. 1 their benefits have been frozen.

It claims they are scheduled to receive their first cost of living increase in over 18 months on July 1, but that on Gov. Brown's order state agencies have refused to apply a key provision of the legislature's formula for determining the increase.

Proper application of the formula requires a $17 a month cost of living increase for disabled children, but the state computed it at $11 per month, the petition says.

"Individual elderly and disabled adults have also been shortchanged," the suit said. "The statute calls for a $17 per month increase, but the governorhas set the amount at $15 per month."

The petition urges the court to intervene because computers which pay the checks must be programmed by April 22.

Presently the Supplemental Security program provides a monthly minimum income of $146 for individual beneficiaries which may be supplemented by the states.

The action was brought by the California Legislative Council for OlderAmericans, Committee for the Rights of the Disabled, Disabled and Blind Action Committee of California, Protective Council of Senior Californians, Northern California Welfare Rights Organization, East Bay Legislative Council of Senior Groups and an individual Lauris Larsen, 80, of San Francisco.

In rules dispute

Bobby Fischer wins one and loses one

BERGEN, Netherlands (AP) — The International Chess Federation (FIDE) agreed today to the demand of world champion Bobby Fischer for an unlimited number of games for his world title match with Anatoly Karpov of the Soviet Union. But it rejected another of the champion's conditions.

Ed Edmondson, executive director of the U.S. Chess Federation, said after the vote by a special congress that he is positive "Mr. Fischer will not play."

Fischer had said he would not meet Karpov in the match scheduled to begin June 1 in Manila unless the rules were revised to his satisfaction.

Following two days of heated discussions and a chaotic proxy fight, the congress voted 37 to 33 to accept the proposal for an unlimited match between Fischer and Karpov.

Under the new rule the first player to record 10 victories will claim the title.

However, the congress rejected by a 35-32 vote Fischer's demand that he retain his crown in the event of a 9-9 tie. Opponents of the measure claimed it would put Karpov at an unfair disadvantage, as he would be forced to win by a 10-8 margin.

"There will be a paper champion, Mr. Karpov" said Edmondson. "And I am sure he is just as unhappy as we are, because he would have liked to play." Edmondson referred to the fact that Karpov would win the title by default if Fischer did not play.

FIDE President Max Euwe also thought Fischer would refuse to play.

"If he refuses it will be clear that he is the one who has torpedoed the championship match. If Fischer says his conditions are not negotiable we can't do anything," Euwe said.

Edmondson claimed Wednesday's decision was "exactly what the U.S.S.R. Chess Federation wanted. It gives the appearance of a draw in the negotiations, but it is really a victory for them," he said.

Housing cost booms with Alaska oil pipeline

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) — Construction of the trans-Alaska oil pipeline is bringing big money to this town. It is also bringing big headaches for persons looking for a place to live.

Consider these real estate listings:

—Two rooms and two five-gallon water jugs for $500 a month.

—An unfinished home, without water, for $700 a month.

—A hallway converted into an apartment for $300 a month.

"People just want the money from the pipeline," says a woman whose family is house-hunting. "My husband isn't even affiliated with it. People are renting anything and renters will give anything for it just to have a place to call home."

She said she and her husband and their three children are staying in an apartment. Across the hall in a three-bedroom apartment is a family of 10. The rent is $600 a month plus electricity.

One man who finally found an unfurnished, two-bedroom home for $600 said he feels very fortunate. One place he looked at rented for $500 a month. To move in, he said he would have been required to pay the first and last month's rent in advance and a $150 cleaning deposit.

"It was dirty, the furniture was beat up, the carpet had holes in it and the oven door was falling off," he said. "My wife said she just wouldn't live there."

He said he assumes someone moved in — the ad disappeared.

One woman is living in what she describes as a "hole in the ground." There is no running water in the tiny cabin. But she said she had to camp in her car for several weeks before she could find living quarters.

There are reports of unfinished houses renting for $1,000 a month, houses 40 miles out of town going for $400 a month. Rent increases of $90 a month are not uncommon.

And along with the increased costs of housing are increasing restrictions on tenants: No children. No pets. No single women.

And no vacancies.

Hotels and motels will rent rooms by the day only, and the cost can skyrocket to more than $1,000 a month for one room.

Hair dyes study challenges safety

NEW YORK (AP) — A controversy developed Tuesday over the safety of hair dyes.

The possibility that hair dyes might cause birth defects and cancer was raised by a study conducted by a biochemist at the University of California at Berkeley.

The Cosmetic, Toiletry & Fragrance Association countered that extensive animal testing has shown no evidence that hair dyes are unsafe.

In the Berkeley laboratory test, developed and conducted by Dr. Bruce N. Ames, 150 of 169 hair dyes produced changes in the genetic characteristics of bacteria called Salmonella typhimurium, a common cause of food poisoning.

The fact that the dyes were shown to be mutagenic, changing the genetic characteristics, raises the possibility that they also are carcinogenic, or cancer-causing according to the study, although the relationship between the two is still a subject of debate among scientists.

A study of hair dyes is being conducted by the National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences.

In replying to reports of the Ames test, the industry commented: "Dr. Ames' report suggests that on the basis of his screening process, animal tests should be done to determine if hair dyes are carcinogenic. We are pleased to report that the responsible government agencies and industry have already done and are continuing to do such tests, and that they have shown no evidence that hair dyes are unsafe."

Dr. John E. Corbett, chairman of the hair color technical committee for the Cosmetic, Toiletry & Fragrance Association, said cancer studies have shown no increase in malignancies in organs that would be likely targets during the past 30 years, despite the increased usage of hair dyes during that time.

Political future rides on verdict

Indira Gandhi in dock; 'am innocent'

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi sat in the dock of an Indian court Tuesday and declared herself innocent of charges that she illegally won her seat in Parliament.

With her political future riding on the verdict, the 57-year-old prime minister underwent a four-hour cross-examination in a heavily guarded courtroom in her home city of Allahabad in northern India.

The first prime minister since independence in 1947 to appear in court, Mrs. Gandhi vehemently denied any wrongdoing in the last parliamentary elections four years ago.

If convicted, she could lose her parliamentary seat — and the prime ministership — and be banned from running for office for six years.

The charges were brought by Raj Narain, a Socialist whom Mrs. Gandhi defeated in her parliamentary constituency by a lopsided margin of 183,000 to 71,000 votes.

Narain filed his suit soon after the February 1971 election, charging that the prime minister misused official machinery and at least one senior civil servant to help her achieve victory, spent excessively on her campaign and wrongfully used religious appeals to gain votes from the majority Hindu community.

Mrs. Gandhi's appearance in court followed unsuccessful attempts by her lawyers to get Narain's suit dismissed and then to have the prime minister avoid testifying in open court.

Dressed in a printed pink sari, Mrs. Gandhi walked into the courtroom at 10 a.m. and took an oath pledging to tell the truth.

"It is wrong to say that I do not believe in fairness," she testified at one stage. "On the contrary, having been trained by (independence leader) Mahatma Gandhi and my father (Jawaharlal Nehru), I do not believe in unfair means."

Mrs. Gandhi is expected to finish her testimony today, but there was no indication how long the hearing would last. Judge Jagmohan Lal Sinha is a one-man tribunal in the case.

Mrs. Gandhi has at least 10 defense lawyers, including N. A. Palkhivala, a critic of her government who is considered India's leading constitutional expert. Authoritative sources said he helped to prepare her defense although he will not appear in court.

Political observers believe Mrs. Gandhi's main task is to prove that Yashpal Kapoor, formerly a senior assistant in her secretariat, did not campaign on her behalf until he resigned from the government.

Under an Indian law similar to the Hatch Act in the United States, it is illegal for federal employes to take part in politics. Mrs. Gandhi contends that Kapoor resigned before he became one of her campaign workers.

Hundreds of police guarded the court building. They arrested the editor of an Allahabad newspaper when a metal detector revealed he was carrying a pistol with three bullets. The editor said he carried the weapon because of a family feud. The incident touched off an uproar in the Parliament in New Delhi, with members demanding that steps be taken to ensure the prime minister's safety.

Gas station dealer sues

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A local service station dealer has sued Texaco, Inc., for more than $20 million because the company allegedly forced him to sell fertilizer, dolls and Samsonite luggage.

William Langille said in his Superior Court action that the oil company threatened to terminate his lease if he refused to buy the products for resale to customers.

The complaint also said Langille was prohibited from buying oil or accessory items from any company other than Texaco, although none of the requirements was specified in his lease.

Slivers of glass found in Girl Scout cookies

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — a state food examiner has confirmed that slivers of glass were found throughout a box of cholocate thin mint cookies distributed by Girl Scouts primarily in central Ohio and other states.

The glass was found over the weekend during testing by the state, said Ed Farmer, supervisor of the bakery and beverage section of the Ohio Department of Agriculture.

The discovery of the glass was confirmed by the manufacturer, the Burry Buiscuit Division of Quaker Oats Co. of Elizabeth, N.J..

The Food and Drug Administration in Washington said 90 per cent of the cookies baked along with the contaminated sample were distributed in central and southern Ohio and the rest in South Bend, Ohio; Benton Harbor, Ind.; Falmouth and Sanford, Maine; Syracuse, N.Y.; Milwaukee, Wis.; Hannibal, Mo.; El Paso, Tex.; York, Pa., and Andover-Lawrence, Mass.

Richard Knox, director of public relations for Girl Scouts U.S.A., said in New York today that cookies baked with the contaminated sample also were distributed in Kittanning and Butler, Pa.; Canton, Elyria and Sandusky, Ohio, and Logansport, Ind.

Knox said his list did not include Syracuse, N.Y.

The cookies were baked Jan. 26 and Feb. 12, the FDA said, and most were probably eaten. The FDA is still testing the cookies for the presence of glass.

Ross had advised consumers not to eat cookies from boxes with code No. 5034. The code number is embossed in the upper wrapping on the front edge of the box, left of center.

Roland Jenkins, chief of the state Division of Foods, Dairies and Drugs, recommended, however, that none of the company's thin mint cookies be eaten until the agency completes an investigation.

Spoil grandchildren

China's grandmas are just like Americans

CHICAGO (AP) — Chinese grandmothers are accused of spoiling their grandchildren just like American grandmothers, says a child care specialist just back from China.

"All the grandmas want to do is feed them," young Chinese mothers complained to her.

That is one reason young mothers like to place their children in day-care centers, said Bernice Weissbourd, who spent January in China with 20 other educators specializing in early childhood education.

Mrs. Weissbourd is chairman of the governor's advisory commission to the Illinois Department of Children and Family Services and is educational director of the suburban Evanston Child Care Center.

About half of the preschool children in China participate in organized day-care programs, while others are cared for by grandmothers, she said in an interview Monday.

She said many Chinese mothers favor day-care centers for their children so they can play with others and learn, but they let the children remain with grandmother so as not to hurt her feelings.

Young Chinese mothers are now career-oriented so it is likely that in the future, as they become grandmothers, this type of care will disappear, she said.

In cities, day-care centers are attached to factories and babies are placed there as young as 56 days of age, she said. Their mothers go to nurse them three times a day while working.

In rural areas, young children are cared for in homes by grandmothers, and they do not have the benefit of trained child-care workers that is available in cities.

Unlike American schools, Chinese schools do not encourage individuality, Mrs. Weissbourd said. She said from the beginning children are taught to help others, to further the cause of socialism.

WE'RE #1 because . .

SHOE MARKET'S QUALITY SELF- SERVICE IS GUARANTEED TO SAVE YOU MONEY

We know that the self-service concept in retailing is not so new anymore and you've always been able to buy quality shoes if you could afford to pay for them. But SHOE MARKET has "put it together" and we believe that we're the best - - #1 - - at providing you with quality shoes at low prices that save you money.

You've probably bought shoes at a traditional "sit-down" store where a salesman shows you a few styles of shoes, tells you how nice they look on your feet, maybe tells you a snug shoe will feel better after you've worn them, and collects his commission. At SHOE MARKET, no salesman will bother you as you select your purchase from our many styles on open display, although our friendly personnel are available if you need them. This self-service enables us to save you money. You'll pay from $1 to $4 less for the same shoe at SHOE MARKET, compared with what you would pay at "sit-down" shoe stores. If you're now a customer of Leeds, Kinney, Gallenkamp, Thom McAn or Karls, come in and give us a try.

Or you may have tried to buy shoes in the shoe department of a so-called discount department store - - maybe after seeing a "special" in the paper. And then discovered that they've "sold out" or that the shoe just wasn't the quality you wanted. Or maybe you couldn't get assistance when you needed it because the salesperson was selling a refrigerator.

When you shop at SHOE MARKET, you will receive any assistance you need from our friendly, courteous personnel because providing quality shoes to you is our only business. To make more of you SHOE MARKET customers we're even willing to experiment for awhile and guarantee savings on all advertised items. If we carry the same shoe that any of our competitors advertise, we'll sell you our shoe at 10% less than their advertised price. Just bring in their ad to SHOE MARKET and if we have the same shoe, you can buy it from us at 10% less than their advertised price during the term of their ad. NO DEALERS PLEASE

Our objective is to make the most money possible for our company. We do this by selling the same quality shoes as competitors for less - - by selling more shoes - - making more total profit even though our mark-up per pair is less.

THAT'S WHY SHOE MARKET IS #1. AND THESE SPECIAL #1 BUYS WILL KEEP US #1. SHOP SHOE MARKET AND SAVE - - YOU OWE IT TO YOURSELF.

Seeks legalized dog racing

Lawmaker's life threatened

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Assemblyman Leon Ralph said today he has received threats of death if his bill legalizing greyhound racing is passed.

The South Gate Democrat told reporters the threats came in three anonymous, hand-written letters, the first of which was mailed to his office here about six weeks ago. The other two were mailed since then to his home office in South Gate.

"It said if the bill passes I will be killed and my home will be bombed," Ralph said.

Ralph said he turned the first letter over to authorities. The other two were forwarded to authorities by his office, he said.

Authorities have determined that at least two of the letters were written by the same person, Ralph said.

Federal and state police protection was provided Ralph beginning at today's meeting of the Assembly Governmental Organization Committee the first hearing for the greyhound bill.

The bill is opposed by horse racing interests, but Ralph said he had no reason to think they had made the threats.

Glacial origin

Any large mass of snow and ice on the land which last many years is a glacier. Glaciers are formed over a number of years where more snow falls than melts. As this snow accumulates and becomes thicker, it is compressed and changes into dense, solid ice. Also, the mass of snow and ice tends to flow due to it own weight.

A Paris 'must'

PARIS (UPI) — Napoleon's Grande Armee was always too big for the Little Corporal to review it all at one time. But every year three times the number of soldiers in that redoutable army file past Napoleon's tomb under the dome of the Invalides.

A million and a half visitors annually, 3,000 to 4,000 daily in the height of the tourist season, view the enormous sarcophagus made of green granite and red porphyry.

The monument is open every day of the year with four exceptions: Nov. 1, Christmas Day, New Year's Day and May 1. The Invalides ranks third on any list of sightseer "musts."

PUSHING MALPRACTICE INSURANCE — Assemblyman Alister McAlister, D-San Jose, chairman of the Assembly Finance, Insurance and Commerce Committee, discusses his bill to create a medical malpractice association to handle insurance for all physicians in the state. The bill was offered to help curb the jump in malpractice insurance premiums by insurance companies.

Easter bunny also upping his prices

Increases in the cost of sugar and cocoa beans mean that this year's chocolate bunnies are going to cost an average of 25 to 30 per cent more this Easter than they did a year ago.

So are jelly beans. And marshmallow eggs. And candy chicks.

It might be even worse next year because raw materials for candy now on the shelves were ordered before the worst of the increases in the price of ingredients.

A spokesman for the National Confectioners Association of the United States said manufacturers produced 3.8 billion pounds of candy in 1970, or 19 pounds of candy for every American. About 5 per cent of the total, some 200 million pounds, was Easter specialty candy.

Jelly beans, of course, are sold all-year round, but the ones manufactured for Easter have a slightly different texture — virtually unnoticeable to consumers, according to industry spokesmen — and officially are known as "jelly bird eggs."

The price of candy for this year's Easter basket varies depending on where you live and what kind of store you shop in.

A Buffalo, N.Y., store reported that a pound of jelly beans sold for 79 to 99 cents last year; this year, the range is 99 cents to $1.29, an increase of from 25 to 30 per cent.

The confectioners association said that was about average.

An East Coast supermarket chain, for example, said a one-pound bag of jelly beans has gone from 41 to 73 cents, up 78 per cent; a 7½-ounce "Happy Bunny" is up from 99 cents to $1.39, a boost of 40 per cent; the 3½-pounce "Funny Bunny" is only 17 per cent more expensive — 69 cents instead of 59 cents.

Urging by PUC staff:

PSA fare hike bid should be cut in half

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Pacific Southwest Airlines' 16 per cent fare hike request should be cut in half, the state Public Utilities Commission staff recommends.

In a report to the PUC made public Tuesday the staff said that while "present fares produce insufficient earnings the proposed fares produce excessive earnings."

If the PUC were to adopt the full 16 per cent request, the cost of a one-way ticket from Los Angeles to San Francisco, for example, would climb from $20.75 to $24.15.

The staff countered that the fare hike should be 8.2 per cent. If that hike were in effect, the some Los Angeles to San Francisco flight would cost $22.45.

At the PUC, the next step will be for the commissioners to study the staff report and decide what hike, if any, it will approve.

Also, the PUC still is examining United Airlines' opposition to PSA's proposed discount weekend family fare for the Los Angeles to San Francisco route.

Feed them on formaldehyde--lowers cholesterol level

The sheep in the meadow and the cows in the corn

DAVIS (AP) — Millions of Americans may someday dig into the thick juicy steaks and rich ice cream they crave and actually reduce the chance of having heart attacks, says a researcher.

The key is feeding formaldehyde to cows and sheep — in very small amounts.

That allows them to maintain the polyunsaturated quality of the feed they eat and pass it on in tasty meat, mutton and dairy products, Dr. Robert E. Hodges said Monday.

Hodges, a professor of medicine at the University of California at Davis School of Medicine, had 50 persons eating such food in a six month study.

"It means the theory of saturated fats increasing cholesterol level and polyunsaturated fats decreasing cholesterol is correct," Hodges said in an interview. "In the last two years, there have been some challenges to that theory. This means it is correct."

And he stressed, "What this new approach may mean is someday we'll have foods just as attractive as the ones we're used to but still be able to lower cholesterol level."

Hodges said those among the 25 couples in the project who had high cholesterol levels found them lowered during the test.

High cholesterol causes heart attacks that kill 600,000 Americans a year and "for every one of them there are two or three persons who have non-fatal coronaries," he said. "The average adult male in this country has a slightly more than fifty-fifty chance of dying of a heart attack."

Asked precisely how much the cholesterol level diminished, he said it was "statistically significant" and added he plans another experiment limited to subjects with high levels.

The experiment was prompted by a group of Australian doctors' discovery that a coating of formaldehyde-treated protein in the first of a cow's or sheep's four stomachs protects polyunsaturated vegetation from fermenting into saturated fat.

Formaldehyde is found naturally in some foods and the little amount introduced into the animal's diet is absorbed by the animal.

Three to four months after the animal is fed this protected diet, the body fat becomes largely polyunsaturated, Hodges said, and milk fat is converted after only two days.

"The average patient who has high levels of blood cholesterol is someone who eats in the typical American fashion — meat, ice cream, cheese, whole milk...all fat. If we as physicians take them away from it, they're not happy."

Hodges said the test subjects reported the food tasted "as good as conventional products.

"The meat is just a little bit softer and a bit more tender. The lamb is excellent, especially for those of us who don't like the mutton flavor. It tastes more like pork or chicken than lamb.

"Ice cream, cheese and other products are quite similar. The cheeses have a flavor that is quite unique," he said.

"The ice cream is a little richer. Butter melts at a lower temperature; so when you take it out of the refrigerator, you can spread bread without tearing it.

"Whole milk has a slightly different flavor. Some do not like it as well but it was not objectionable to me," he said.

Hodges could not predict when such polyunsaturated food would be available on the open market, but he guessed it would not be common until the next generation.

"You just don't do something like this overnight," he said.

Firm recalling 13,676 Pacers

DETROIT (AP) — American Motors is recalling 13,676 models of its just-introduced Pacers to reposition part of the fuel supply system which the firm said could cause a gasoline leak.

AMC said that a retaining clip which may have been improperly installed on a rubber hose in the models could force the hose to rub against the metal supporting the engine and suspension and cause an abrasion.

AMC said eight leaks have been found so far, six on engineering test cars. The models affected were built through Feb. 28, the firm said.

A company spokesman said he did not know how many of the cars are in customer hands. The Pacers went on sale just two weeks ago.

On-the-shelf price hike halt asked

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the House Consumer Affairs subcommittee Tuesday asked the 400 largest food chains to voluntarily stop the practice of increasing prices of merchandise already on the shelf.

Rep. Frank Annunzio, D-Ill., said there are more than two dozen bills pending in Congress which would mandate the kind of action he hopes stores will take voluntarily.

At a news conference, Annunzio said he hoped the food chains would participate in the program and contribute to decreasing the cost of food to consumers.

"Under this program, once an item has been marked with a price and placed on the shelf the item would not be repriced upwards in the event the store receives an increase in its wholesale price," Annunzio said. "If two prices inadvertently appear on the product, the lowest price would be charged."

Annunzio said he would make public the names of food chains which pledge cooperation with the program. He said Congress must do everything possible to bring about reduced food prices.

He said he was concerned because for the last three months wholesale prices of food have dropped but retail prices to the consumer have stayed at the same high levels.

"Unless wholesale price reductions begin showing up at the retail food level very quickly, I am going to launch an investigation to determine who is at fault," Annunzio said.

"I will ask the Justice Department to join the investigation and to take criminal action in any cases where there is an conspiracy to maintain food prices at an artificially high level," he said.

Annunzio said sugar has dropped in the wholesale prices but bakery products which use sugar have not reduced what he called the "fantastically high prices" charged several months ago.

Los Angeles told to work on mass transit system

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Los Angeles should forget about dreams of an ultramodern subway system and work on more realistic mass transit proposals, Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s new transportation secretary says.

And what is realistic, in the view of Business and Transportation Secretary Donald Burns, is a system of street level commuters trains and "a lot of buses."

Burns said there is no place— local, state or federal—where Los Angeles can reasonably expect to raise the billions of dollars necessary to build a modern subway system similar to the Bay Area Rapid Transit District (BART) system in the San Francisco area.

"I don't think there will ever be a BART-type system in Los Angeles. It's enormously expensive," Burns said in a recent interview.

"I don't think Los Angeles needs more freeways. I think LA could use an areawide rail system, and as an element we need buses—a lot of buses—which have to be integrated with any rapid transit system," he said.

He said the idea of renovating and reopening the old Pacific Electric commuter lines that served Southern California a generation ago is "tempting" but not necessarily workable.

But, Burns said, one of his priorities is to open a rail line between the Los Angeles airport and downtown, and some Pacific Electric right-of-way might be used for that along with some Century Freeway right-of-way.

"The day of the urban freeway is pretty well gone. I just don't think that's the way to go. We have to move toward a greater emphasis on urban mass transit, and there's a lot to be said for finding relatively inexpensive ways of using surface rail transit," he said.

"It's very tempting to say, 'Well, let's use that old Pacific Electric right-of-way.' Unfortunately, it's not as easy as that.

"Number one, a lot of that right-of-way isn't exactly where we would like to put fixed rail . . . There are some problems about acquisition and use of that right-of-way. That is not the easy kind of solution that it appears to be," Burns said.

But, he said, there are other existing rail possibilities in the sprawling Los Angeles basin, and some of the lines used by the old "red trains" might fit in.

"A lot of people think the important thing is to get some rail system moving in LA, even if it goes from nowhere to nowhere. Once that happens, everyone's going to say, 'That's great, let's put in a lot of rail.'

"I don't know if that's what the scenario is or not, but if it is, that's a very attractive way to go," Burns said.

Burns said the need to develop surface commuter trains is dictated by skyrocketing costs and a pinch on all forms of transportation money.

A subway system in Los Angeles would cost several times the $1.6 billion pricetag of the BART system in the San Francisco Bay area because lines would be longer and there would be up to 15 years of inflation to figure between BART construction, which started 10 years ago, and earliest Los Angeles system that could be designed and built.

By then, state highway funds will be barely enough to maintain existing roads, even if there is no freeway construction and no more diversions to mass transit, he said.

And there is no other source of funds in sight for such a massive undertaking, Burns said.

"It's enormously expensive. But as the reality of the energy shortage makes the automobile more of a luxury, it's going to be of major public importance that we give the citizens of the Los Angeles area some decent alternatives," he said.

"What a lot of us would like to do if possible is run some rail from the airport to downtown. It's possible this might tie into a solution of the Century Freeway impasse. I personally would like to find some way of using that corridor for transportation purposes.

"Perhaps that would include an exclusive busway or a rail right-of-way. There is Pacific Electric right-of-way nearby, and it's conceivable that would tie into some right-of-way in Orange County and give a rail link from Orange County to Los Angeles," Burns said.

DONALD BURNS

Executive dish

Calvin Coolidge, who invited members of Congress to breakfast meetings at the White House, startled his guets one morning by pouring coffee and cream into his saucer. In confusion, several others at the table did the same. Without a word, the President placed his saucer on the floor for his dog!

Transportation chief says

Period of freeway expansion ends

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The years of rapid expansion of California's freeway system are gone forever, Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s new transportation chief says.

It may take a gasoline tax increase just to find the money to maintain the freeways California has already built, Donald Burns, state secretary of business and transportation said in a recent interview.

"I'm not saying there will never be another freeway built in our state, but I think the urban mass transit needs are critical," Burns said.

"It's very necessary that the freeway system be kept intact. It's costing a lot of money just to keep it up, and the way costs are going...maintenance in the early or mid-80s will be all of the freeway budget," he said.

"I think eventually we're looking at gas tax increases to reflect the cost of maintaining the roads. I think we're certainly looking at that—if not this year, next year, maybe the year after. But we're looking," Burns said.

Burns said he still sees the prospect of some major freeway projects on the state's intercity system, but that "the day of the urban freeway is pretty well gone."

He did not specify which freeway projects he still sees a chance of building.

Burns said the rate of construction has slowed so much because of diminishing funds that after a few current projects are scheduled it is into the 1980s. And it is foolish to set priorities today for projects that far into the future.

He said that while state highway fund income is tied to the gasoline tax, which is becoming a diminishing revenue base as sales are restricted, highway construction and maintenance costs are skyrocketing even faster than the general rate of inflation.

In addition, urban transit needs are a high priority, and those demands are competing for new transportation dollars, Burns said.

"To say we have no massive building program is not to say we are de-emphasizing freeways. It's just that the money isn't there, given what our priorities are.

"I think our priorities are to maintain the roads for the rural areas and get mass transit for the urban areas," he said.

Gunman almost got help

MONROE, Mich. (AP) — Three masked gunmen got help from an unexpected source when they invaded the home of Sarah Riethof in suburban Lambertville and demanded money.

The housewife dumped $2s out of her purse, and the men asked, "Is that all you've got?" police said.

Mrs. Riethof assured them it was.

Then, her 4-year-old son, who was watching the holdup, asked:

"Mommy, what about the $400?"

Mrs. Riethof had a hard time, but convinced the men she had put the money in the bank earlier in the day.

Claremont Bicentennial ideas: concerts, Las Posadas dinner

Concerts in the park, a Las Posadas dinner-dance and a citywide celebration in song and dance are among events tentatively planned by the Performing Arts Committee of Claremont's Bicentennial observance.

A series of evening concerts during July and August will feature local singing groups, instrumental ensembles and dance troupes.

The concerts will be sponsored by service clubs, whose members will be honored.

The spirited traditional Las Posadas will highlight December dinner-dance.

"Americana Claremont," during the spring of 1976, will celebrate the nation's heritage and toast the nation's future in presentation of musical, poetic and dance works relating to the Bicentennial heritage-horizons theme. A completion for original works in those cateegories is being considered.

The committee also will participate in inner-valley festivals, fairs and other Americana events embracing the Rancho San Jose area.

Montclair lets job for radio tower

The Montclair City Council has awarded Communication Specialties the contract for installation of the new Police Department radio tower on the firm's low bid of $2,650.

The staff recommended special requirements on fulfilling the contract, however.

The requirements are that the company post a performance bond for at least 50 per cent of the total contract; that it include specific agreement provisions to complete all work within 14 days after receipt of the tower; and that the manufacturer send the tower within 45 days and provide written proof that the tower has been ordered and shipped.

The contract is effective only after review and approval by City Atty. Eugene Demchuk. The contract includes removing the existing antenna and tower and replacing it with a new self-supporting tower.

Tuna boat freed

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The last of seven American tunaboats seized in January by Ecuador reportedly has been freed and is enroute to Panama.

The San Diego-based Jacqueline A is expected to reach Panama sometime Saturday, said spokesmen for Zapata Ocean Resources, Inc., which owns the vessel.

The boats were seized for fishing inside Ecuador's controversial 200-mile offshore fishing limit, which the United States government does not recognize.

Lytle Creek job gets House boost

P-B Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — A special $5.93 billion emergency employment measure passed last week by the House of Representatives includes a $3 million appropriation for flood control on Lytle and Warm creeks in Southern California.

According to an aide to Rep. Jim Lloyd, D-35th Dist., that $3 million is part of over $8 million request in the administration's fiscal 1976 budget.

The project is expected by Corps of Engineer officials to be completed in fiscal 1976 with the $8,506,000 requested by President Gerald Ford.

The appropriation of $3 million in the measure passed last week will speed up the completion date and, according to proponents of the measure, help the ailing job market in the area.

The total appropriation to the Lytle and Warm creeks flood control project is expected to be just over $12 million. Some $3.6 million has already been spent on the project.

The emergency employment measure the House sent to the Senate is designed to speed fiscal 1976 public works funds to the cities to help employe some of the millions of unemployed in the nation. The measures sponsors claim the public works funding will create 700,000 new jobs.

CHARLES ADAMS

Emcee named for Press Club awards event

Master of ceremonies at the Writes of Spring awards banquet of the Press Club of Southern California Friday will be Charles R. Adams, known as radio's "ambassador of song."

The banquet, scheduled at 7:30 p.m. at Griswold's Indian Hill Restaurant, Claremont, will focus on competitive award winners for excellence in print and broadcast journalism and public relations during 1974.

Adams, a native of the West End, is a singer, pianist and comedian and has appeared with some of the top names in show business in this country and in Europe and Asia. He is also a top executive in the food industry and is currently serving as president of Superior Honey Co. of South Gate. He is chairman of the California Honey Dealers and Packers.

With membership from newspaper, radio, television and public relations professionals throughout the Southland, the press club will award 35 prizes from among entries in four divisions of competition.

Valuable vanilla

The exquisite blossom of the vanilla plant lasts only one day, but gives way to the fruit, a cluster of long green pods, the vanilla beans. So valuable are these beans that they are branded by a pattern of pinpricks by each grower to prevent bean-rustling.

FULFILLING his fantasy, State Sen. Jack Faxon of Michigan portrays the foppish prince in the Strauss operetta "Die Fledermaus" presented by a Detroit opera house. The 38-year-old Democrat said he had always wanted to perform in an opera and jumped at the opportunity.

False card sinks slam

By Oswald & James Jacoby

South isn't too happy with his six-spade contract. He has all sorts of ways to play the hand. The way the cards lie all reasonable plays will work.

When South played the hand, he ruffed the second diamond, played ace-king and another club which he ruffed in dummy. The normal play after that start is to come to his hand with a high trump and lead his last club. West's best play will be to chuck his jack of diamonds, but this won't face South. He will ruff that last club, cash dummy's queen of trumps, come to his hand with the ace of hearts; draw West's last trump and eventually take the heart finesse.

The hand was played in a rubber bridge game, when Terence Reese was still an Oxford undergraduate. Terence sat East. Like many experts Terence felt that he held very bad cards. He certainly did this time.

West started out as above, but when he ruffed the third club Reese played the queen, not the nine.

South had already ruffed in dummy, cashed dummy's queen of trumps and led a low trump to his own hand. Then South saw a way to avoid the heart finesse. Obviously West held the last club and East had shown out of trumps. It would be perfectly safe to discard one of dummy's hearts on the 10 of clubs. South led it and West set the hand with his jack of spades.

The first play written in America, "Prince of Parthia," was completed in 1767 in Philadelphia.

Press search for missing woman

Sheriff's detectives today intensified their investigation of the disappearance Monday of a 23-year-old Valinda woman and her 4-year-old daughter.

The case, classified Monday as simply one of missing persons, currently is being handled as a kidnaping, deputies said.

The woman being sought is Mrs. Maria Rivera, of 15364 Mountbrook St. Missing with her is her daughter, Denise.

Investigators today revealed that they also were seeking a 47-year-old man with whom the Rivera family had had trouble three weeks ago over his attentions to Mrs. Rivera's sister. The man being sought for questioning is Ross Ruiz Valencia.

Mrs. Rivera and Denise were reported missing soon after Mrs. Rivera's husband, Dennis, 32, returned home Monday afternoon and found they were not there. Food had been set out for preparation and the television set was in operation when Rivera got home from work.

Deputies at that time said there was no evidence of foul play, and that they were handling the incident as a missing persons case.

Airport feels effect of more gas--fewer riders

The gasoline shortage has hit the Ontario International Airport — a year late.

When gasoline was in short supply during February 1974, many people flew on commercial flights to avoid the possibility of being stranded.

Last month when gasoline was abundant, fewer people were traveling by air, said Robert Hamilton, airport manager.

Officials counted 87,190 passengers during February 1974, and 82,000 last month, a six per cent decrease.

The February count boosted the totals to 179,974 this year, less than the 183,120 passengers counted the same period last year.

Last month's passengers included 71,224 on commercial flights, 7,129 on scheduled commuters, 1,122 on non scheduled flights, and 2,525 on alternate operations.

Despite fewer passengers, the airport recorded more flight operations last month than the previous February, 10,370 to 10,348.

Last month's flights included: air carrier, 2,340; alternate operations, 44; air taxi, 1,232; military, 1,501; and general aviation, 5,253.

Officials also reported a decline in air cargo handled during the two February periods — 445,315 pounds compared to 546,166 pounds in February, 1974.

Hamilton blamed the air cargo decline on the "sluggishness' of the nation's economy.

"The same people are shipping things as a year ago but the amounts are not as high, which may be a reflection of soft markets for their goods," he said.

Neighborhood clinic idea

Medical group opens Ontario site

The Family Health Medical Group has expanded its service to valley residents with the opening of its new medical center at 1650 S. Euclid Ave., Ontario.

The medical center staff is headed by Dr. William T. Corbett, a general practice physician, who speaks several languages.

The 3,000-square-foot center is Spanish styled with a tile roof and wrought iron grillwork. The building includes six examination rooms, a surgery, clerical and treatment rooms.

The center in Ontario is the first of a number of new neighborhood clinics to be constructed by Family Health Services, founded in 1971 by Dr. Robert Dukes, and General Medical Centers, established in 1972 with Dr. A. H Garry Gibson as president.

The health maintenance organization (HMO) now has seven offices in the area, with five located in the local valley, one in La Puente and one in East Los Angeles.

Gibson said that the organization plans to replace existing centers with new buildings similar to the Ontario facility for easier identification by the public. Each center will have two physicians heading its staff.

There are now eight full-time doctors and a staff of 85 associated with General Medical Centers and Family Health Services. Administrative offices are located in the Speidel Building, Pomona.

Founders of the organization believe that by establishing satellite centers in the communities to be served, rather than concentrating care in a large medical complex the patient is assured a more personal patient-doctor relationship and better continuity of care is possible.

When patients require specialized treatment or surgery, the HMO contracts with specialists for the necessary care or hospitalization.

At present the organization is serving 5,000 patients on state programs such as Medicare and Medi-Cal. They also cover an additional 3,000 persons under union contracts and some 12,000 clients under fee for service programs such as Blue Cross, Blue Shield and Aetna.

Negotiations on MSAC pay increases to begin Thursday

Negotiations for salary increases will begin Thursday night in behalf of more than 1,000 teachers and classified employes who work for Mt. San Antonio College.

Both are expected to turn in their initial requests to the Board of Trustees at a monthly meeting that starts at 7 p.m.

What the employes are asking has not yet been revealed publicly, but spokesmen for both groups have indicated in the past that they wanted at least 10 per cent to keep up with the cost of living.

The teachers had sought interim pay increases of 6 per cent last January and 3 per cent last month to stay in line with inflation, but they were turned down on both occasions by the board.

Board members said that the 9 per cent raise the employes received last July was sufficient.

Affected by the negotiations are 360 daytime faculty members, about 350 evening school teachers and about 350 noncertificated employes.

Thursday's meeting also marks the final appearance on the board of Charles Hall who won a short term election Jan. 7 but lost his seat earlier this month to Travis L. Manning. Travis will take office next month.

Center opening to help those hit by strokes

An activity center for after-stroke persons will be opened Thursday in Ontario.

Chaffey College Community Education, in cooperation with the Organization for After-Stroke Resocialization, will operate the center each Thursday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. under the direction of Mrs. Marjorie Bundgard.

Entitled "Communication Skills for the Stroke Disabled," the program is to be conducted at the First Baptist Church, 1305 N. Euclid Ave., Ontario, with activities designed to assist stroke-disabled persons to resume their places as useful members of the family and society.

Varied activities are planned in a social atmosphere. They include improvement of handwriting, expressing thoughts on paper, relearning some basic skills such as reading, mathematics, speech improvement and group singing.

Planned as a part of the program are crafts and rap sessions on matters of concern to after-stroke patients.

Family members are invited to participate and to share experiences with others, to learn and to understand stroke problems.

Personal counseling will be included in the program for both the after-stroke patient and family members.

Participants may register at the first session attended. The center is entered from the parking lot at the rear of the church.

VALLEY BRIEFS

Ontario house fire believed to be arson

Ontario police and firemen said today a roof fire on a home at 1707 E. Granada St. Tuesday possibly was set by an arsonist.

Firemen were called to the home of George C. Wilson by neighbors who saw flames on the roof about 5:45 p.m. Fire inspectors discovered that the fire started on the surface of the roof and burned inward, leading them to suspect arson. Police were called into the investigation. Officers said they had not determined how the fire started.

Damage to the roof of the home was estimated at $200.

Rain coming but it will be late

The rain predicted for tonight will be a few hours late, according to the weatherman.

The storm headed toward the valley from the San Francisco area is moving a little slower than expected and is now supposed to get here Thursday morning rather than tonight.

There is a 50 per cent chance of steady rain through Thursday with a possible spillover into Friday. The precipitation is expected to cool off the day's high by about 10 degrees.

Nuclear energy is Kiwanis topic

Don Herbert, popularly known as Mr.Wizard, will discuss nuclear power as a needed fuel at the weekly meeting of the Kiwanis Club of Claremont Thursday noon at Griswold's.

Herbert, representing the Southern California Edison Co., will screen a 28-minute color movie which deals with such safety considerations as whether explosion, earthquake, or release of radioactivity from nuclear generating plants constitute hazards.

The San Onofre nuclear power plant is featured in the film.

Collision injures Upland resident

A 57-year-old Upland man was injured when a car and a van collided broadside in the intersection of Eighth Street and Baker Avenue in Ontario Tuesday morning.

Byron V. Kelsey of 860 W. Eighth Ave., Upland, driver of the car, was treated at San Antonio Community Hospital for minor injuries and later released.

Police said the car, was struck broadside by a van driven by Luis Gadicia Enfiquez, 39, of 8654 Sierra Madre Ave., Cucamonga. Enfiquez was not injured in the mishap.

17 illegal aliens rounded up at Pomona firms

Seventeen illegal aliens were scooped up by a U.S. Border Patrol task force and Pomona police Tuesday afternoon, authorities said.

The force converged on several locations within the city to make the arrests. The aliens were not booked in Pomona, but were transported to the patrol headquarters for processing. Many suspects fled and escaped as officers arrived outside the various locations.

Police said the aliens were employed at Coast Foundry and Mfg. Co., 2707 N. Garey Ave.; the Labors Union Hall, 1055 W. Second St.; Lilia's Sportswear, 245 S. San Lorenzo St.; and Maywood Furniture Corp., 1299 E. Phillips Blvd.

Chino employes will get a floating half-day holiday

Chino city employes will receive a floating half-day off this year, in lieu of the usual Good Friday holiday.

The City Council voted Tuesday night to give the half-day holiday to employes because of a decision by the California Court of Appeals last week that closing of state offices on Good Friday is unconstitutional.

City Manager Bob Fast said that while the City Atty. James Gutierrez ruled "we must comply with the court's findings," the city has an obligation to employes for 10½ holidays a year.

"We must give them that half-day," he added.

The council, on a motion by Mayor Bob McLeod voted to give the floating half-day holiday, which can be taken at any time an employe desires.

In other action, councilmen went on record against a state bill (ACA 21 and AB 330) that would require councilmen and mayors to declare a political affiliation when running for office. Presently, those offices are non-partisan.

"Without a doubt, this is the most asinine legislation I've seen presented before a board."

G. Dynamics gets $2.5 million pact

General Dynamics has received a $2,563,060 contract from the Naval Sea Systems Command for work invovling the Naval Industrial Reserve Ordnance plant in Pomona.

This includes modification of government owned production and production supply facilities and pollution control modifications to the facilities.

The contract was announced by Rep. Jim Lloyd, D-35th Dist.

Highway death toll drops by 900 in state for 1974

P-B Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — California recorded 900 fewer highway deaths in 1974 than in the previous year, according to estimates made by a Highway Users Foundation report.

Last year, 3,983 died on state highways, a drop of 912 from 1973 when 4,905 lost their lives.

This represented 3.2 deaths for every 100 million miles of vehicle travel in 1974 — a drop from 3.8 in 1973, according to the report.

The national mileage death rate dropped from 4.3 (55,800 deaths) in 1973 to 3.6 (46,200) deaths in 1974, according to the report.

The figures are part of a nationwide effort to cut the MDR to three deaths per 100 million miles by 1980. The foundation set California's 1980 goal at 2.6.

Nationwide and state goals differ due to each state's number of vehicles and amount of urban rural driving, according to the foundation.

The foundation is a nonprofit organization whose 600 members are interested in all facets of highway transportation.

The report says the annual highway death toll would climb to an estimated 74,500 by 1980 if no steps were taken to cut the death rate.

"Our safety staff looked at the death rate in 1972 and projected a staggering figure by 1980," said foundation spokesman Gerald Bastarache. "We decided to work with the National Safety Council to cut the death rate."

Bastarache cited several reasons for the decline in 1974 highway deaths; the institution of better state and local safety programs, the reduction in vehicle speeds and the current economic situation which has reduced travels and accident exposures.

Upland tract map overcomes roadblock

Homeowners, builder settle dispute in council meet

The Upland City Council was the mediator when a contractor for a new development and the owners of a home finally agreed on payment for street improvements Tuesday night.

The approval of a tentative map for a tract of 64 homes to be constructed by Lewis Homes of California between 16th and 15th streets east of San Antonio Avenue had been held up for more than a month.

The contractor, Richard Lewis, and the owners of a home which lies within the development area on the south side of 16th Street but is not a part of the tract, had failed to agree on the cost of street development.

The homeowners, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Crane, have argued that the costs as presented by Lewis were excessive.

During bargaining at Tuesday's meeting, Mrs. Crane and Lewis agreed that if the Cranes would pay $1,000, the contractor would complete the street improvements in front of the Crane home along with the rest of the block-long project.

Another contractor appearing before the council Tuesday night did not fare as well.

The request of Paul R. Nordberg for modification of a conditional use permit to allow installing modular housing instead of mobile homes on 19 acres located on the north side of 14th Street west of Mountain Avenue was referred back to the Planning Commission.

Nordberg told the council that the changes he wished to make on the development included replacing carports with enclosed garages and using factory-built modular homes instead of mobile homes.

He stated that these would upgrade the development, to be known as Lemonwood Villas.

Councilman Hal Bailin questioned the proposed changes which vary from the original concept of a mobile home area which had been previously approved by the council.

The council has requested the Planning Commission to review the changes and make further recommendations to the council at its next meeting.

The request of Dale McPhetridge for a conditional use permit to establish a real estate office in a residential structure at 309 N. Euclid Ave. was granted.

McPhetridge told the council that the building had been a real estate office from 1954 until last summer when the previous occupant died. He submitted a petition from surrounding residents requesting the approval of his request.

In other action Tuesday night, the council endorsed a resolution which would identify the interchange of the Devore Freeway and the San Bernardino Freeway east of Upland as the Daniel D. Mikesell Interchange in honor of the San Bernardino County Supervisor's concentrated efforts on behalf of the project's development.

The council also officially went on record as supporting a site at March Air Force Base as the location for a new national cemetery in California. The site is one of three the federal government is considering in California. The other two areas under consideration are near Bakersfield and Merced.

A request by Fredericks Development Corp. for a zone change on an area of 1.7 acres of land located as the southeast corner of Benson Avenue and 8th Street from C1 (neighborhood business) to R3 (cluster residential) was approved. The rest of the area adjacent to the area in question is already residential, and attempts to attract a business to the site have been unsuccessful, a company representative told the council.

Santa Claus, Inc. seeking toys for next Christmas

Santa Claus believes in planning ahead.

So even though Christmas is nine months away, his helpers are seeking toys for repair, cloth to make doll dresses, and some volunteers to sew.

These will be processed by Santa Claus, Inc., for distribution to needy families next Christmas.

The non-profit organization provided toys to 1,500 children in 400 families last Christmas.

Because of inflation and a rising unemployment rate, the group is planning for 2,000 children this year.

The organization serves Pomona, Claremont, San Dimas, La Verne, Chino and Walnut.

Mrs. Ella Bockover, vice president, said particularly needed are formal dresses which can be made into dolls party dresses.

Stop debating and start rebating

While Washington fiddles, the recession burns on.

One of the least productive arguments currently going on between Congress and the administration is who should get the bulk of the income tax rebate and-or tax cut everyone agrees is needed to pump new life into the economy.

Weeks ago President Ford proposed a $12 billion rebate on 1974 taxes for individuals, with a maximum of $1,000 per return. The higher the tax paid, the higher the rebate. This has been much criticized because some 40 per cent of the rebate would go to families making more than $20,000 a year.

The House has passed its own $21.3-billion version of a rebate-tax cut, with most of it flowing to lower-income groups that have been hardest hit by inflation and recession. The Senate is expected to up this figure.

Rebates under the House bill would generally be about 10 per cent, but with a maximum of $200 per return and a minimum of $100 or a total refund of all taxes paid, whichever is less.

This in turn has been criticized by Treasury Secretary William E. Simon on the ground that lower-income families would not spend the money where it would do the most good to help revive the economy.

Higher-income families, says Simon, are more likely to spend their windfall on such major items as cars, houses and home appliances, whereas lower-income families will use it for such basic necessities as food, rent, etc.

Nobody really knows for sure, however.

For instance, a survey conducted early in March by the Credit Union National Assn. found that of 2,613 credit union members in 44 states who participated in the survey (and who presumably cut across several income tax brackets), only 15 per cent indicated they would spend the entire rebate on new purchases. Existing debts would be paid off by 30 per cent and 27 per cent planned to put it all into savings. Another 26 per cent said they would save some and spend some.

It is questionable whether it really matters what people would do with their 1974 tax rebates and the extra income they will have by virtue of a tax cut for 1975.

If some spend it on day-to-day living expenses, this would at least put the money into immediate circulation and would help such sectors of the economy as the food and clothing businesses.

If others used it primarily to pay off debts, this would swell the amount of funds in the hands of lenders to be made available for others wanting to borrow so that they can buy things like cars and refrigerators.

If still others banked all or part of it, this too would increase the supply of lending capital, which is desperately needed in the depressed housing industry.

Only if Americans planned to hide the money in a cookie jar or under the floor or just sit and admire it, would it be cause for concern — and that, we can be sure, few people in any income bracket are going to do.

Rather than worrying about who will spend how much how soon and on what, we should determine what would be the fairest possible disbursement, and then start getting this money to the people without further delay.

Making believers

Darn few people have believed the energy shortage is for real.

Everyone reads about the price of oil. Costs have gone up at the gas pump. Last year there was a short period during the oil embargo when there wasn't enough gas at the pumps and people started being good about driving and turning off the lights and things.

But it has been a gradual process. The pressure has come slowly. There hasn't been a sudden shot of pain. So people have tolerated a lot and done almost nothing about solving the problem.

Now, though, the high cost of energy is making believers out of almost everyone, not just the poor and well informed who have known it for some time. And it isn't at the gas pump where the most believers are being converted. It is at home. The state's utilities that supply the gas and electricity which provide the heat and light and energy so taken for granted by all have been forced into seeking and getting rate increases one on top of the other.

As the rates go up and people find that heat and light and energy aren't cheap any longer — whether they live in San Diego, Los Angeles, Sacramento or Chicago or New York or wherever — someone might demand that Congress and the various federal, state and local regulatory bodies get off their collective duffs.

This nation doesn't have the luxury of ignoring available energy sources any more. It doesn't have the luxury of saying coal is too dirty or oil can't be taken from oceans or that nuclear power is scary. All sources are going to have to be tapped safely and efficiently. Energy conservation measures will be a must. Otherwise life styles are going to be a lot different than what we have become accustomed to enjoying.

A historic landmark for Pomona?

There is a Boy Scout Cabin located on the grounds of the Washington Elementary School. This cabin has been in that location since 1914.

Recently someone connected with the school system has decided that this cabin does not meet earthquake safety standards and so must be torn down.

Do you think that there is any way in which this tearing down can be avoided?

Imagine if you can the number of boys who have used this cabin for their Scout training since 1914. Suppose that some of these people were to write to the governor and ask that the building be declared a landmark, state park or state monument. Perhaps if enough people write soon enough the place can be saved even if only as a relic, like Lincoln's home?? — W. B. Jackson, Pomona.

High insurance rates

The headlines read "The high cost of insurance may force thousands of doctors out of business." That same high cost is driving many small business out. Rates are now out of sight; a small family business (as ours is) with no employes on the payroll, yet pays around $3,600 a year for coverage. Now we find our insurance canceled over a bashed fender incident in which the "victims" turned around and sued for a combined figure of $155,000.

Who do we blame for these costs; the stupid judges awarding these astronomical figures, the equally stupid juries or our money-hungry, suit-happy lawyers? Citing three cases for example: (a) A local man in our area, in the twilight of his earning career, awarded 5 million clams. That figure, in any language is a lot of loot!!! (b) a 17 year old unproven kid awarded $100,000 per year for the rest of his life plus a million $ life insurance! For that kind of moola I'll do away with myself a hundred times over.

On what basis was this money awarded? On the assumption that this kid was to become chairman of the board of General Motors by age 21? (c) Another person awarded $100,000 because a wild bear injured him in a national forest. The defendant in this case was Uncle Sammy, meaning, you, myself and every working bloke that forks over ¼ of his check for taxes.

I hate to think what my doctor's bill will be next time I see him. Heaven forbid my ever having to enter a hospital even for just a few days. — Fernando A. Trujillo, Pomona.

Pres. Ford reviews the economy

WASHINGTON — President Ford's economic forecasters have gone back to their computers to make another assessment of the faltering economy.

The President ordered the review upon the insistence of his political advisers who complained that the economists had misjudged the recession and had left them unprepared for the political consequences.

If the economic news continues to get worse, the President's advisers want to be alerted in advance. They also want to be ready with contingency plans that will permit the President to shift economic gears.

Already, budget boss James Lynn has called upon the federal bureaucracy to submit ideas for spending projects that could be implemented swiftly to stimulate the economy.

Meanwhile, the President's economists have been reviewing the economic indicators, revising their assumptions and consulting outside economists.

Sources privy to the economic review don't anticipate much change in the forecast. The consensus is still that the economy will bottom out this summer. They have taken encouragement, for example, from the decline in unemployment claims.

But the two economists who have the most influence upon the President, William Seidman and Paul McCracken, still fear that the Federal Reserve Board is throttling the money supply.

Although the Fed has announced an easier-money policy, Seidman and McCracken complain privately that the Fed hasn't made enough money available to expand the economy. Instead of halting the recessionary slide, they believe, the Fed has steepened it.

Some Ford advisers fear, therefore, that the Fed's monetary mistakes will prolong the economic nose dive until next fall. A lot will depend, most economists agree, on how much economic stimulus Congress provides in the form of tax cuts.

POOR PRESIDENT: In digging out the news, we sometimes uncover facts quite different than we expect.

We were tipped off, for example, that the CIA had secretly financed Joaquin Balaguer's successful campaign against Juan Bosch for the presidency of the Dominican Republic in 1966.

After a lengthy investigation, including talks with sources from Santo Domingo to Singapore, we concluded that Balaguer had refused any help from the United States.

Before his triumphant return to power in the Dominican Republic, he was so low in funds that he stayed in a $35-a-week room in New York City and wore a hand-me-down suit given to him by a Washington friend, I. Irving Davidson. Yet he would take no handouts from the CIA.

When the U.S. Marines landed in the Dominican Republic in 1965, the State Department asked Balaguer to broadcast appeals to his people to keep calm. He was offered transportation to Puerto Rico for the broadcasts.

He agreed to cooperate but turned down the free ride in a U.S. military plane. Instead, he borrowed money from Davidson to buy a commercial ticket.

AFRICAN TILT: Behind the controversy over the appointment of Nathaniel Davis to manage African affairs for the State Department is another Henry Kissinger tilt.

The Secretary of State, as we have shown from secret policy documents, has favored the white-ruled African nations. There is no racial prejudice in his decision. He simply regards South Africa and Rhodesia, because of their military power and strategic location, to be more important to U.S. interests.

But Donald Easum, the outgoing Assistant Secretary in charge of African affairs, opposes this policy. He feels the United States should work more closely with the black-ruled nations.

This is the real reason Kissinger ousted Easum and replaced him with the more complacent Davis. Previously, Davis was in charge of both foreign service and civil service personnel at the State Department.

We have now seen a scathing, confidential Civil Service Commission analysis of his operations. Among other things, it accuses him of overseeing "poorly conceived" employment opportunities for blacks and other minorities.

Yet Davis will now be handling our relations with black Africa.

Footnote: Davis told us that the confidential report covered the early months of his incumbency and that employment opportunities for blacks improved during the later months. In any case, he said the real responsibility for guarding against job discrimination belonged to a separate equal opportunities office.

COURTING CONGRESS: In a private memo to the Joint Chiefs, Army Secretary Bo Callaway has outlined his goals for the Army. One is to "enhance the role of the Congress as a partner in shaping the Army for the future."

To achieve this, he intends to "establish contact with all Members of Congress" and to "present the Army in the role of congressional constituent." He hopes to impress upon "the new members the impact the Army has upon their district-state."

Higher education lower than it was

The quantity of higher education in the United States is up. Enrollment increased another 4 per cent his year. But the quality of higher education is down. We're sending to college kids who can't read.

One million young Americans between 12 and 17 can't read or write at a fourth-grade level. And most public schools continue to promote these functional illiterates regardless.

So colleges are getting a generation of students who cannot comprehend college textbooks. The problem is most acute in community colleges, but many established four-year colleges are also struggling with the inability of students to comprehend college-level textbooks.

With the federal government enforcing enrollment quotas, the institutions of higher learning have less freedom than heretofore in establishing and maintaining admissions standards.

So the schools—unable academically to upgrade their students—are seeking to downgrade and to rewrite textbooks in language the less literate can understand.

There are some efforts to bring the backward students up. New York City public schools are trying to phase out the practice of "automatic-promotion." New York schools will try to deny diplomas to high school seniors more than one year behind in reading.

At the University of California, 45 per cent of all freshmen students are taking remedial English. At Eastern Michigan University, the number of freshmen taking remedial English has doubled in four years.

Yet, despite these efforts to help backward students, most colleges are giving up and insisting that textbook publishers lower their standards.

Publishers are understandably reluctant to water down the cultural quality of their products. Donald Farnsworth of McGraw Hill says most students who are in college today would not have been in college at all 20 years ago. He resents having to curtail quality to accommodate these.

One publisher says, "Spoon-feeding the masses will mean less intellectual nourishment for the scholars." The problem will not resolve itself.

Because of a declining birthrate and other factors, there will be a 23 per cent decline in college enrollment by 1990. Many colleges will close.

Survivors, struggling for their existence, will be unlikely to defend higher standards. An obvious suggestion is to expand vocational curricula. But there's a problem: Even the manual arts, today, require more than rudimentary reading skills.

I see no panacea, but I keep remembering Abe Lincoln's admonition that "you don't make the small man tall by cutting off the giant's legs."

Just in jest

After five months of investigation, a U.S. Senate committee has announced it has discovered widespread abuse in prepaid health plans under the California Medi-Cal program. And there we have just one more example of what invariably happens when a government committee gets involved in the healing arts. It just has to discover something rotten in Denmark to justify its existence.

But back in the good old days before government intervention became the rule rather than the exception, prepaid health programs not only flourished and prospered but were also far less costly than they are today. Actually, right here in Pomona in the year 1893, we had a team of German and English physicians who were offering something even more enticing than prepaid health. Theirs was a pay-as-you-go health program which the good doctors described in an advertisement in The Pomona Weekly Times in this alluring fashion:

"All persons placing themselves under treatment before February 20 will be treated at the rate of $5 per month until cured."

Military only as strong as economy

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — It is not the size of the Soviet defense establishment today that worries administration foreign strategists.

Rather, it is that Soviet defense spending, as measured in real equivalent dollars, is somewhere between 25 and 50 per cent greater than ours. This rough figure is as close as American analysts can come, even with the aid of sophisticated computers.

More importantly, the combined procurement of military hardware and research and development is twice that of the United States.

The Soviet military and space research development has more than tripled in the past decade and is still growing. At a time when the United States finds it difficult to carry on one major missile research and development effort, the Soviet Union is handling three to four.

It is now estimated by technical experts at the Department of Commerce that between 70 and 90 per cent of all qualified Russian research scientists and engineers are programmed into the USSR's defense and space work.

What especially worries American planners is that the frenetic Soviet buildup began not long after a series of major Soviet diplomatic-political defeats — including the loss of China from the Russian bloc, the backdown to the United States in Cuba and the falling apart of Moscow's Southeast Asia strategy.

The concern here is that the men in the Kremlin were convinced, along with Mao Tse-tung, that diplomatic power comes out of the barrel of a gun, and that so long as they were number two militarily, they could not have their way in the world. There's a strong belief here that Nikita Khrushchev was thrown out because he wanted to go at a less rapid pace on the military and pour Soviet resources into stronger economic growth.

This analysis has led some influential American strategists to believe the Soviet arms buildup is not primarily for defense, but rather intended as a psychological club to win the Russians political-diplomatic conquests, victories made possible by waving their arms.

Whether this reasoning is correct or false is anyone's guess. But one thing is for certain. Moscow's major recent attempt at bringing a neighbor into line through military threat failed in China. The mammoth Soviet border buildup did not cause Peking to give in; rather it pushed Mao's Communist government closer to the United States. Would the result have been different if we had been weaker?

It should be noted that USSR military figures are not as devastating as they sound offhand — especially in research and development. It is estimated that Soviet scientists and engineers overall are about 40 per cent as effective in their work as their American counterparts. This is not to downgrade the Russian technical men. It is rather that the Soviet system makes such poor use of its talent. In theoretical mathematics and several other advanced disciplines, Soviet specialists are world famous.

What's likely to hold the USSR back, despite its hefty spending which no one in his right mind can ignore, is the inefficiency of the general economy on which military strength depends.

It is now estimated that overall Soviet productivity is 36 per cent of that in the United States. At the bottom is Soviet agriculture, with an efficiency roughly 10 per cent of ours. The production of machinery and related equipment runs at 67 per cent. But other branches of industry, encompassing such items as steel production and construction, average a miserable 32 per cent of American productivity levels.

Bond imposed on alien is transferable, necessary

We have great faith in your ability to move mountains.

Our "mountain" is the Immigration and Naturlization Service in Los Angeles.

We very much need a reply from that service in response to our letter of three months ago.

A non-immigrant alien from Venezuela is living in our home and attending adult school in Chino 24 hours a week to study English.

Before her arrival in the United States a bond for maintenance of status and departure of a non-immigrant alien in the sum of $1,000 was posted by a La Verne family.

Three months ago we let the Immigration Service know that the family in La Verne would like to be free from the bond and we were interested in talking it over.

We understand that it is possible to assume this bond by guarantee of $1,000 from our savings account without the necessity of actually releasing the money to the immigration service.

We have also been told that it may not be necessary for the student to have the bond posted in her behalf as she is not a minor. — Mrs. D. M., Claremont.

We wrote to the Immigration Service immediately upon receiving your letter.

By an almost unbelievable coincidence we received a reply indicating your "mountain" had moved of its own accord just one day before you wrote to us.

That was the date of a letter addressed to you by Charles H. Withers Jr., assistant district director of travel control at the Los Angeles office of the Immigration Service.

He explained that the bond was requested by the American consul general in Caracas as a condition of the issuance of a non-immigrant visa to the student now living in your home.

The object was to assure that she would maintain non-immigrant status and would not remain in the United States for a longer period than authorized.

The bond may not be canceled until your guest leaves the country. Her age has no bearing on the need for the bond, Withers said.

A confirmation that money is reserved in a bank cannot be substituted for the bond.

If the Immigration Service finds that terms of the current bond have not been violated you may post a substitute bond and the La Verne family's money will be returned.

Seven months ago I took my 1965 Oldsmobile into a valley paint shop to have a little body work done and to have it repainted.

Employes at the shop said they would have to sand off rust spots and pitted metal on the hood, which would cost extra. I agreed and was given a five-year guarantee.

The hood and fender now need painting. When I took the car back to the shop today, the employes refused to repaint them, saying the blemishes were due to lacquer or primer check.

The only primer or lacquer on the car had to be theirs.

I had them call the local supervisor, who signed the original guarantee, and he refused to do anything about it. —P. B., La Verne.

We talked to a representative of the shop who said he did want to have your car's hood and fender repainted but had been unable to reach you by phone.

You contacted him and the job got done.

About this and that

A good fishing spot was held in almost sacred awe by Eskimo ice fishermen of nothern Canada. To ensure continued good luck, a fisherman placed his catch about him in a large circle with their heads pointed toward the hole in the ice. Doing so, he believed, enabled the fish's spirit to return to the water and speak favorably of the man who had dealt honorably with him.

Hardy members of Leningrad's Walrus Club plunge into the Neva River every day of the year, even when the temperature dips to 20 degrees below zero, F., and a channel must be hacked in the ice.

Searing gases of two-million degrees F. leap more than 40,000 miles from above the sun's surface.

ANN LANDERS

Mother gives rules that teachers could find as interesting reading

Dear Ann Landers: As a mother, I was disturbed by the letter from the Oklahoma teacher who wrote the set of rules for parents which she said were "guaranteed to produce thoroughly messed-up kids."

As a parent, I hope you will print my rules which might provide interesting reading for certain teachers.

1. If you are having trouble with a child, don't let the parents know. Talk behind his back to friends, other teachers, and other parents.

2. Don't bother to write a thank-you note for a gift from a student. After all, it takes a lot of time to write 25 or 30 notes. (Never mind about the time it took to select the gift. It doesn't count.) You told the child "thank you" when he gave it to you. That's enough.

3. Never apologize when you have made an error. What's done is done — even if you learn later the child was not guilty. An apology might ruin your "image."

4. Ridicule a child in front of the class. It doesn't hurt to be cut down before one's peers. It makes a child more "humble."

5. Leave no doubt in anyone's mind as to who your "pets" are. Wealth and social position rate "rewards." Give special attention and privileges to children, nieces and nephews of school board members, and those from rich and influential families.

6. When you attend PTA meetings, go out of your way to be pleasant and attentive to parents with clout, money, and prestige. After all, it's smart to know what side your bread is buttered on.

I hope you can find room for this in your column, Ann. I know a few teachers who need this message. —Way Out West

Dear Way Out: Here's your message." For the teachers who don't need it, it will mean nothing. For those who do — well, shape up.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a widower in my mid-seventies, in good health, and I enjoy a variety of interests. My problem is not loneliness, one so many older folks write about. In fact, it's just the opposite. I am pestered to death by well-meaning people who want to play "Cupid's Little Helper."

I am not a recluse, Ann. I enjoy church and social functions. I like people, but I also enjoy the tranquility of my little home, my books, and my garden.

Because I try to be congenial, many widows have interpreted my friendliness as a signal for help. They insist on "rescuing me from my misery." The worst offenders are the minister and his wife, and a few social workers who are determined to put a woman in my kitchen.

If you will be good enough to print my letter, I'm sure it would help. Thank you. —Alone But Not Lonely

Dear Not Lonely: Why are you so defensive? No one can drag you where you don't want to go. Nor can people inflict themselves on you if you prefer to be alone. You've got high class worries, Dad. Kwitcherbeefin.

CONFIDENTIAL to Rudderless: Leo Rosten said it best. "The purpose of life is to matter — to count, to stand for something." From your letter, I get the strong impression that you need a cause. Look around you. There is plenty of work to be done.

Do you feel awkward, self-conscious — lonely? Welcome to the club. There's help for you in Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key to Popularity." Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

White coat boosts woman's ego

You read a lot of stories in the newspaper about courage and valor, but there is none that touched me so much as the item about Hazel Hadwick of Sacramento.

One day last month Hazel was wearing her whiter-than-white new coat when a gunman walked into a bar and ordered all the customers to "lie on the floor."

Hazel pulled herself up and said, "No way will I get down on the floor in my new white coat."

The gunman, face to face with obstinance, backed down and said, "All right then, put your hands on the bar."

Any fool knows even a loaded gun is no match for a woman in a white coat. I owned one in my lifetime and it changed my entire personality. I have never felt so protective about anything in my life. And with good reason.

The moment I slip it on, birds drop do-do's from the trees, dogs catch a bus just to jump up on me, small children with sticky hands clutch at me, chairs that look harmlessly sterile secrete cranberries, car doors spritz me with grease, waitresses go out of their way to dump coffee down my back and my own son even spit up on me. (And he's 15.)

One day I was late for dinner and my husband asked, "Where have you been?"

"Down at the dry cleaners visiting my white coat," I said.

"I don't understand it. What's so great about having a white coat?"

"A white coat gives you respect," I explained patiently. "Grace Kelly wears a white coat. Queen Elizabeth wears a white coat. So does Jackie Onassis."

"And so does the man who is coming Tuesday to put you in a home."

"I knew you wouldn't understand. A white coat in a woman's life is like reaching a plateau. It announces, 'Hey, world, I've finally got all the openings in my children under control.' It says, 'You're looking at a woman who has nothing to do all day but look for a clean chair.' It shouts, 'I am woman, hear me roar. I am invulnerable to spots and stains.'"

"So how come you wear a plastic bag over your coat when you wear it?"

"Look, don't fool around. There's a lot of Hazel Hadwick in me."

LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

Always take aspirin with food, milk

DEAR DR. LAMB — Some one recently told me that everytime a person takes an aspirin his stomach bleeds. I have read that aspirin can cause internal bleeding in a person with ulcers, but this is the first time that I have heard that it causes bleeding in a healthy person. Would you please give me your opinion?

DEAR READER — Aspirin is a remarkably effective medicine and considering its wide usage it is remarkable that it causes no more problems than it does.

If aspirin is allowed to settle against the body tissues for a long time it will produce a tissue burn. I don't advise this, but for the doubter a simple experiment of tucking an aspirin between the teeth and the cheek tissues will produce a tissue chemical burn.

In an acid stomach the crystals of aspirin can deposit against the lining and cause a small tissue burn. Because the stomach is rich with small blood vessels a small bleeding point can occur.

To avoid this problem one should take aspirin with or after food or milk. Diluting the aspirin and neutralizing the acid in the stomach helps solve this problem.

Some complain that this delays the action of the aspirin, and it does, but it also prolongs its effects.

Aside from this drawback, aspirin, in large amounts, also retards the clotting mechanism and this can be a significant factor in causing bleeding, not just from the stomach. This can complicate the use of anticlotting medicines commonly used after heart attacks, strokes and other clotting problems.

DEAR DR. LAMB — In your column about bee stings you said that bees won't sting someone who wears white. My husband was wearing white and no shaving lotion, but still got stung.

He has been taking shots for his allergy to them, but he was getting a reaction so they have stopped them for a month. What could happen if he gets stung again, since he is so allergic?

DEAR READER — I am always interested in what people think. I wrote I did not say that bees wouldn't sting you if you wear white. What my column really said, and I read it again, is that bees and wasps are attracted to bright floral prints and black clothes and not attracted to light colors such as white, khaki or green colors. In short, if you wear the right colors you are LESS likely to attract bees than you would be wearing the other colors mentioned.

Your husband is less likely to have a problem with a bee sting for a while after he has had the desensitizing treatment. He may need more treatment later, and he should be checked by his doctor for this problem each year and check on the advisability of more shots to keep him desensitized to bee stings. There are some new purified substances that may be helpful with less side effects.

You should have one of the emergency kits on hand that I mentioned in my first column. If you will follow the measures I suggested originally, the desensitizing shots, keeping shrubs and nests down, and taking care to wear light-colored clothing and avoid perfumes or shaving lotion, you will have done most of the things you can do to avoid the stingers.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. For a copy of Dr. Lamb's booklet on ulcers, send 50 cents and a long self-addressed stamped envelope to the same address and ask for the "Ulcers" booklet.

Hearings on car repairing frauds

That move to license car mechanics is picking up. Fourteen states now are holding hearings on fraud charges against car repairmen. It's expected some of the states soon will have the machinery set up to fine and even jail such fancy fixers who get naughty.

FUNNY PEOPLE

Q. "What's the difference between a clown, a comedian and a humorist?"

A. A clown wants you to laugh at what he does, a comedian at what he says, a humorist at what he thinks. That's my notion. Will Rogers believed the one who scratches his head before the one who scrathces his head before he talks.

IF YOU HAVE to memorize something, better go at it in short spurts. Scholars who research these matters say the rests between the study periods tend to anchor in your head whatever it is you're trying to remember.

MOST FASHION experts say an overweight woman should never wear a skirt with a hemline higher than the middle of the knee.

SQUIRRELS nested in the thatched roofs and rats nested in the dirt corners of northern Europe's medieval houses. Historical footnotes indicate that the incessant gnawing of those little beasts was a noisy nuisance. The Germans called it "naggen," not gnawing. And some rustic poet, comparing the scolding of wives to the gnawing of rodents, eventually came up with the word "nag."

LONG WORDS

A scholarly client sends in a printed copy of his lengthy doctoral thesis on the influences of heredity and environment. Pretty deep. The words are too long. What's needed is some simplicity. If the baby looks like his father, it's heredity. If he looks like a neighbor, that's environment. Why can't these post-graduate students dumb it down a little?

HUNGARIAN researchers now contend that women on the Pill are less likely to have boy babies.

WHAT the writers of mystery fiction don't realize, evidently, is the best lip readers in the world can only understand about a fourth of what's said.

Political arena: McVittie eyes city tax lift . . . Lloyd backs PX benefits

ASSEMBLYMAN BILL McVITTIE, D-65th Dist., has co-authored a bill to exempt purchases by cities and counties from states sales and use taxes.

The present law requires local jurisdictions to pay five per cent sales or use taxes on all their supplies, equipment and other tangible personal property.

"It doesn't make sense for the state to tax local governments when the end result is to have local citizens pay the bill," said McVittie. "It doesn't make sense to take money out of one pocket of the taxpayer and put it in another."

McVittie, of Upland, joined Assemblyman Michael Wornum, D-9th Dist., in introducing AB 1087.

REP. JIM LLOYD, D-35th Dist., is sponsoring legislation to continue providing discount prices for active and retired members of the armed forces at military commisaries.

This would prevent commisary support from being cut 100 per cent by Oct. 1, 1976, as recommended by President Gerald Ford and Secretary of Defense James Schlesinger.

Lloyd, of West Covina, joined Rep. G. William Whitehurst, R-Va., in sponsoring HR 4469, which directs the secretary of defense to continue to operate and maintain military commissaries as agencies of the Department of Defense.

"If commisary support was withdrawn, it would represent a broken promise to those many fine Americans who completed or are in the midst of military careers," said Lloyd.

"Especially in this time of economic hardships, active and retired military personnel must not be abandoned by their government with respect to commisary privileges."

White House and Pentagon officials estimate that withdrawing federal support from commisaries would result in a $250 million savings.

"This amount is insignificant compared to the $104.7 billion requested by the President for the Department of Defense," said Lloyd. "If that $250 million had to be made up out of the pockets of retired and active military, it would cause serious hardships."

More than 250,000 older Californa residents would receive higher Social Security benefits if they delay their retirement beyond age 65 under a bill cosponsored by SEN. ALAN CRANSTON, D-Calif.

The measure will correct a serious inequity in the Social Security system which penalizes those who continue working after age 65, either because they want to or because they have to in order to make ends meet in these inflationary times, he said.

The present Social Security law limits the increase in benefits to workers over 65 to one per cent a year. The Cranston bill would increase benefits 6 2-3rds per cent annually for those who work to age 72.

"That means benefits would increase nearly 47 per cent for these older Americans and could go up as much as 50 per cent if their salaries increase also."

Cranston said increased cost-of-living expenses and decreased purchasing power are putting severe burdens on older Americans on fixed incomes.

Many are reluctant to retire because they fear their retirement incomes won't be adequate to meet their needs, he added.

Social Security now provides an incentive for workers who choose to retire before 65. "It is time to counterbalance this incentive for early retirement with a comparable incentive for those who wish to continue working."

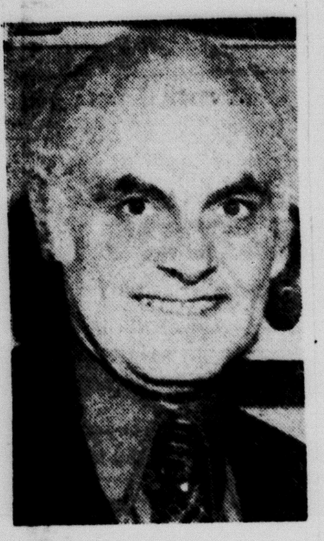
★ ★ ★

LLOYD, is seeking legislation to extend health care enefits under Medicare to unemployed workers and their families.

"This legislation would extend for a one-year period hospital insurance coverage benefits to workers victimized by the depression," he explained.

Lloyd joined Rep. Jim Corman, D-San Fernando, in sponsoring HR 3208 which was referred to the House Ways and Means Committee's subcommittee on health. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, had introduced a companion bill.

The bill would provide that upon hospitalization an individual without private insurance coverage entitled to state or federal unemployment compensation would be eligible for hospital coverage provided under Medicare.



ROGER LOEB

Restaurant has a new food chief

Roger Loeb, former assistant food and beverage manager of the Queen Mary at Long Beach, has been hired as food and beverage manager for the Indian Hill Restaurant at Claremont.

Loeb has been in the restaurant business for 22 years, and started with his father Kalman Loeb, who immigrated from Budapest, Hungary.

The family opened a candy store in Fresno, but since his father had had years of experience in the hotel and restaurant trade in Hungary, the family soon moved to Los Angeles.

The Loeb family is best known for the years they have owned and operated the Rodger Young Auditorium which they established in downtown Los Angeles.

Several years ago, Loeb left the family organization to joinSpecialty Restaurants as assistant food and beverage manager of the Queen Mary at Long Beach.

He later moved to the Gates of Spain dinner house at Santa Monica.

Loeb will be active in the buying and selection of all foods and beverages for the Indian Hill Restaurant.

Blood drive due in Chino; 3 need help

The Chino Community Blood Bank will be conducted Thursday from 4 to 6:30 p.m. in the multipurpose room of Gird Elementary School on Riverside Drive between Monte Vista Avenue and Third Street, Chino.

The community is urged to donate blood to help three local residents replenish blood supplies which they have used.

Lucio Moreno, who uses a kidney dialysis machine, needs to have 120 pints replaced. He is a patient at Kaiser Foundation Hospital in Fontana and will continue to need blood.

Blood replacements are also needed by Jasna Lisak at City of Hope in Duarte and Arthur Lake, at Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

Donors may also credit the paternity blood donor program, their personal or groups accounts.

Persons seeking appointments or information may call Marilynn Brantley, 628-1021 or 627-2504.

Salty deal

The state of New York has been handing salt to Indians for 187 years. Under a treaty with the Onondagas in 1788, New York is obligated to give a bushel of salt every October to any member of the tribe who requests it. In return, New York received 15,000 acres of salt lands.

Steyers celebrate anniversary

The golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. George Steyer, former La Verne residents now living in Yucaipa, was celebrated recently in San Dimas.

A reception was hosted by the couple's two daughters, Mrs. Bonnie Tucker and Mrs. Peggy Fudge, and their families.

The Rev. Paul Longenecker, who officiated at the couple's wedding, recalled humorous experiences at the time during a brief talk at the reception. Mr. Longenecker also performed the wedding of the Steyers' eldest daughter, Bonnie, and Donald Tucker in La Verne in 1947.

Mr. Steyer retired in 1966 after working for many years for the Bonita Unified School District. Many friends from the valley attended the reception.

New skin revealed

Want new skin? There's a put-on peeloff mask on the market. It gives out cool tingles; when it dries you peel it and the dirt off together. Impurities and dead skin go with it. It has been researched and formulated to suit four different types of skin. It makes you feel as well as you look.

CIA agents 1st in Viet highlands

NEW YORK (AP) — Armed only with butterfly nets and posing as naturalists, the first Americans assigned to South Vietnam's central highlands in the early 1960s were actually Special Forces soldiers working for the Central Intelligence Agency.

Their mission: Win to the Saigon Government side the nearly one million hill tribesmen who nomadically farmed the green, rolling plateaus.

The news Monday that the Saigon Government would give up the provinces of Kontum, Pleiku and Darlac was evidence that like so many other grand military plans in Vietnam, the highlands strategy was doomed to failure.

The crewcut, athletic-looking "naturalists" were first seen around the coffee shops of Ban Me Thuot — considered the hill tribes, or Montagnard, capital — early in 1962 when the U.S. advisory effort in Vietnam was only a few thousand men.

Uncommunicative with visiting newsmen, the young Americans stood out in stark contrast to the regular population of Chinese and Vietnamese merchants, loin-clothed mountain people and wineguzzling French plantation managers.

It was quickly learned that outside town the Americans were putting aside their butterfly nets and picking up guns, initially to train a handful of Rhade and Jerai volunteers in the region, and then to lead them into battle in their thousands against the Viet Cong and the North Vietnamese.

Newsmen were eventually allowed to visit the first Special Forces camp at Boun Enau about seven miles outside of Ban Me Thuot, and they saw a wooden fort like those used by Americans in the Indians wars.

It was manned by ragged hill tribesmen shouldering an assortment of guns ranging from old German Schmeisser machine pistols to carbines with their barrels sawed off — all that the CIA could get its hands on in those days.

The camp became the model for scores of others erected the length of South Vietnam's borders. Many were finally overrun in the 1972 North Vietnamese offensive, some in recent weeks.

For years, American strategists saw the central highlands as the key to the Vietnam war, a region to engage the enemy in set piece battles. An integral part of this strategy was the allegiance of the hill tribesmen, firstly to deprive the Communists of their services, secondly to use them as guerrillas.

Thousands upon thousands were recruited as mercenaries, paid not by the Saigon Government but by civilian CIA operatives who flew into each remote camp with sacks full of piasters on pay day, passing out handfuls of cash while the tribesmen sucked rice wine from earthenware jars in the searing sun.

By the mid-1960s a majority of the tribesmen were on the American side, but a fatal flaw became apparent: Their allegiance was to the Americans who led and paid them, and not to the Vietnamese who seemed to despise their primitiveness.

When the Americans finally turned the network of camps over to the South Vietnamese, the esprit de corps that characterized the tribesmen's relations with the 12-man American special forces teams that led and fed them quickly dissipated.

Tourists jam Hawaii resorts

HONOLULU (AP) — It doesn't look like hard times among tourists jamming the beach at Waikiki or waiting in long lines for a restaurant table.

More tourists than ever are flocking here despite the worst recession in the United States since Hawaii became a major resort.

"Today I couldn't give the President of the United States a room," says the general manager of the Kahala Hilton, which was booked solid through most of February.

The story is similar throughout Hawaii, where tourism is the No. 1 source of income and television commercials aimed at residents extol the benefits of attracting and pleasing ever more visitors.

More than 2.78 million people visited Hawaii last year — 3½ times the state's population. Preliminary figures show the number of visitors in January 1975 up 5.7 per cent from the previous year.

Economists and tourist industry spokesmen predict similar gains for the entire year even though costs are rising. Many of the state's 40,000 hotel rooms will cost $1 to $10 more per day than last year.

Despite higher rates, Sheraton's 5,000 rooms in seven Hawaiian hotels were booked almost 100 per cent in February, about the same as the year before.

"We've been apprehensive for six months," says one hotel executive. "We're still waiting for the big crunch."

But the big crunch — a slowdown from recession — hasn't come. Industry leaders are campaigning for the tourist dollar on the premise that, recession or not, there are still a lot of people with enough money for a relatively expensive resort vacation.

Crowds and lines at hotels, restaurants and shops confirm their view. As one newly bronzed visitor from Toronto put it, while she put on a fresh layer of suntan oil at Waikiki: "I work hard all year. I deserve something nice for two weeks even if it is expensive."

The industry's concern is maintaining business that accounted for more than $1 billion last year and provided jobs for a substantial part of Hawaii's workers.

In the past decade the number of tourists grew by an average of 17 per cent a year. Those days are gone, along with the hotel building boom of the late 1960s and early '70s. Still, new hotels are being built, including a 1,260-room, 40-story Hyatt Regency at Waikiki.

Week's best buys

Sugar price down; beef and pork up

By Associated Press

A shoppers' survey shows shoppers' survey shows sweets and artichokes will be good buys during the coming week here.

But beef and pork prices will rise to reflect higher wholesale costs, the survey indicates. Beef had been holding steady.

Sugar prices will keep going down, the survey predicts. The downturn in wholesale sugar prices is expected to trigger similar drops in the cost of cakes, cookies, gelatins, soft drinks and jellies in 10 days to two weeks.

In the produce department, artichokes are becoming more plentiful and supermarket spokesmen said they expect prices to drop further as volume picks up in a week or 10 days.

Other good buys are avocadoes, pears and potatoes.

But cucumbers and bell peppers are in short supply and most fresh vegetables are expected to stay high-priced until local crops are ready, not for another four weeks.

Canned vegetables will be unchanged except for peas, corn and tomatoes which will be slightly higher.

Among the items forecast to go down in price are fresh tomatoes, carrots and canned fruits.

Brown onions are in short supply and will remain costly.

Asparagus, strawberries, apples, citrus fruits and bananas are steady.

Because of increased Easter-time demand, the egg market is entering an unsettled period.

HOT CROSS BUN

Hot Cross Buns, probably our most traditional Easter recipe, actually originated in pre-Christmas England, honoring the Anglo-Saxon goddess Eastre, whose name day fell in the spring.

With the rise of Christianity, the custom of serving these fragrant, spicy buns as part of a spring celebration easily transferred from these pagan beginnings to Easter.

The buns were first marked with a cross to ward off evil. Then the belief became widespread that buns baked on Good Friday had curative powers. Instead of eating these special Hot Cross Buns, people would wear pieces of them inside their clothes to ward off illness.

Hot Cross Buns now are so much a part of the celebration of Easter, that they are found in bakeries for only a few weeks every year. But you can serve this fragrant treat for Easter breakfast or any time you wish, when you make your own. You don't need to be an expert yeast baker, either. This recipe starts with hot roll mix, so the dough is easy to handle and takes very little kneading.

HOT CROSS BUNS

1 package Pillsbury Hot Roll Mix
¾ cup warm water
1 egg
½ cup currants or raisins
3 tablespoons chopped citron, if desired
1 teaspoon cinnamon
Soft butter or margarine

FROSTING:

1 cup powdered sugar
4 to 5 teaspoons milk

OVEN 375 degrees 12 BUNS

Grease 8 or 9-inch square baking pans. Prepare hot roll mix with water and egg as directed on package, adding currants, citron and cinnamon with the flour mixture. Let rise in warm place until light and doubled in size, 45 to 60 minutes. On well-floured surface, toss dough lightly until no longer sticky. Divide dough into 12 equal portions and shape into round balls. Place in prepared pan. Let rise in warm place until light and doubled in size, 30 to 45 minutes. Bake at 375 degrees for 15 to 25 minutes until golden brown. Brush with soft butter; cool slightly. In small bowl, combine powdered sugar and enough milk until spreading consistency. Form cross on top of each bun with frosting.

HIGH ALTITUDE — 5200 Feet: Bake at 375 degrees for 20 to 30 minutes.

DROP-IN FARE — This farmer's market salad is an excellent dish to whip together rapidly when guests drop in unexpectedly. Using common salad greens and vegetables, menage is spiced up with sliced cheese and leftover pot roast or ham. Salad can be served plain with meat and cheese garnishes served separately allowing each guest to fashion his own salad. Muffins and chowder or creamed soup round out a brunch or afternoon snack without fuss and mess of full course meal.

A NEW KIND OF NEW ENGLAND BOILED DINNER

Good, solid cabbages noted for their vitamin C, and also bright, vitamin A-rich carrots are both in the market in good supply now. They make superb partners in main dishes, side dishes and salad. Why not put them together in new ways for your meals?

To buy caggage of excellent quality, the United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association advises, choose those that are reasonably solid and closely trimmed with outer leaves that are green. The stems should be cut close to the head, with only three or four outer or wrapped leaves, and preferably no loose leaves. Cabbage heads with some outer leaves separated from the stem may have undesirably strong flavor and coarse texture so it is important to follow the tips for good quality given here.

There's an interesting new way to serve New England Boiled Dinner that cuts down drastically on time and work. It's a dinner in which strips of cooked corned beef, shredded cabbage, carrots, potatoes and onions are cooked quite quickly on top of the range in a skillet. The flavor is delicious.

Carrots are not only a very appealing vegetable but also one of our richest sources of vitamin A. Did you know that 2-3rds cup of raw carrots can supply over twice the amount of vitamin A needed daily by the average person? Vitamin A, you know, improves vision, particularly at night. Get the full benefit of carrots rich store of vitamin A by enjoying this golden vegetable in a sprightly Cabbage and Carrot Slaw. It has fresh orange sections to make it lively and different from ordinary slaw.

Incidentally, do you know why so many fresh carrots today come in plastic-like bags? It's because carrot tops draw moisture from the roots and therefore carrots without tops will stay fresh longer than those with tops.

NEW ENGLAND SKILLET DINNER

- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- ½ cup chopped fresh onion
- 2 cups sliced pared carrots

Not degrading

Recession is putting men back into kitchen

By GAYNOR MADDOX

Today more and more men are helping with the household chores. Maybe women's lib is partly responsible but basically, what is definitely responsible, I feel, is the change in the economic scene.

For some time, many young marrieds, both of whom hold outside jobs, have shared running the home. But right now, with thousands of men being fired from long held jobs and the prospect of their returning in the immediate future looking pretty dim, the men are urged to shape up their lives and help run the families, particularly where the woman of the family still holds her job. Recently, a responsible union leader exhorted his men who were laid off work to turn to and help with the family chores.

For example, kitchen work is not degrading. That is an old-fashioned picture. Food being the basis of life, its preparation takes on great importance. So with the men in mind, here are some decidedly masculine soups that actually will make a meal, provided they are served with lusty pieces of bread.

For "Pot au Feu," an ancient French conception, you need a large pot. If you feel athletic, you might stand across the kitchen and toss the ingredients into the pot like basketball. Otherwise, listen to Arno Schmidt, executive chef of New York's Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

"We are a far cry from the medieval days when a roaring fire kept sooty caldrons boiling all day and night. The flavor changed with the luck of the hunter. When there was no meat around, the cook used salted pork and cabbage and added root vegetables and cereal to thicken it," he explained.

That is the way Pot au Feu used to be made. We are far more refined now. According to Schmidt, this is the modern method — a method that should appeal to the adventurous male.

"A freshly made Pot au Feu is a splendid meal," Schmidt insists. "Large chunks of boiled beef and fowl, perhaps a shank and succulent pieces of boiled carrots, turnip, leeks, cabbage, celery and pieces of marrow bone. Coarse salt is added, also mustard, tiny pickles and chunks of bread. Bread means crusty French bread or rolls."

"Petite Marmite" is a little more refined. But the ingredients are the same as for Pot au Feu. Only they are cut into attractive bite-size pieces and the stock is simmered very slowly so that it will be clear and amber-colored, he adds.

Did you ever eat garlic soup? It's a big number in Spain and costs very little thus making it a popular dinner. Here is an English version of garlic soup, near enough to a Spanish original to taste genuine. It is from the new "Nature Harvest — the Vegetable Cookbook" by Arabella Boxer (Regnery, paperback, $3.95).

Her recipe: use five cloves of garlic, finely minced and cooked gently in four tablespoons of butter. But don't burn. Then work in 1-and-one-half tablespoons of flour and cook for about three minutes. Heat four cups of chicken stock and add the garlic mixture. Bring to boil, then simmer. Add salt, black peppercorns, half a bay leaf, a pinch of mace, three cloves and continue simmering 25 minutes. Push all this through a strainer. Now beat an egg yolk in a hot dish and stir in one tablespoon of olive oil, drop by drop. Add to hot soup. Stir until smooth and serve in large warmed soup dishes. Sprinkle with chopped parsley. You'll be surprised and pleased at the taste.

Gas grill increase reported

The image of "Dad" barbecuing in the back yard with an apron around his waist and wearing a chef's hat is fast disappearing, according to outdoor gourmet chef, Dale Bard.

Bard, who brings his "College of Barbecue Knowledge" to The Backyard Living Show, March 26-30 at the Los Angeles Sports Arena, believes the average male weekend cook is taking more interest in what he prepares.

Hamburgers and hot dogs remain number one barbecue items, according to the author-lecturer, but interest in cooking wild game, seafood, roasts and kabobs is gaining because men are making barbecuing a hobby, reading recipes and experimenting.

Whether he's cooking up an old-fashioned, Texas-style barbecue or serving his unique hors d'oeuvres at a formal dinner party Dale Bard is at home with a patio gas grill.

The reason? Bard, who is national sales manager for a gas grill manufacturer has been cooking, grilling, baking, roasting, broiling and frying everything from chateaubriand to grilled fruit cups in demonstrations throughout the U.S. and Canada the past five years.

"What a lot of people don't realize," Bard said, "is that you can prepare virtually everything on a gas grill — and you can use every cooking technique." In his appearances, Bard sets out to demonstrate the unusual, and generally pleasantly surprises audiences with oysters Rockefeller, baked French bread, poached eggs, stuffed pork loin and other delicacies.

The gas barbecue grill industry is experiencing unprecedented growth despite the much-publicized energy crisis. Prices for gas grills run from $30 to $400 retail. The bulk of the volume reportedly falls in the middle, $120 to $180, range.

Producers of gas grills see several forces at work that could boost their share of the barbecue market above 15 percent. Foremost is the fact that newer and simplified pre-assembled grills, ready for use, is helping place many grills in many stores which had shied away from gas because of installation problems. These $129 to $189 packages contain cart, pressure regulator, and 20-pound cylinders.

Many manufacturers and retailers believe that the energy crunch may help more than hinder grill sales this season. The gasoline shortage, they contend, has curtailed weekend jaunts and has forced consumers to entertain more at home. Besides, barbecuing with gas is not an additional drain on power supplies, but is an alternate way of cooking in the summer. Best yet, it keeps the kitchen cool during summer months.

Barbecues, above ground swimming pools, general information on below ground pools and spas, accessory items, patios and gardens, are among the 150 exhibits displayed during the combined Backyard Living Show and the Arts, Crafts and Indoor Plants Marketplace.

WHAT'S IN STORE

DAIRY CASE

Esther Cramer, Director of Consumer Affairs, 777 S. Harbor Blvd., La Habra, CA. 90631

Many questions have come to my desk recently regarding milk products, so perhaps a discussion of this important food is in order. At Alpha Beta, we have our own milk plant. The products are constantly subjected to critical tests in our quality control labs — one reason Alpha Beta wins gold medals annually.

Everyone knows that refrigeration is very important to keep milk at its peak condition. Except for the brief period when the milk is flash heated for pasteurization, it is kept chilled through processing, storage, shipping, and in the dairy case at your store. This case temperature is 35 degrees F (just above freezing) to keep the milk in optimum condition for your purchase. Although Alpha Beta milk is given a seven-day code (pulled after printed date) to insure maximum freshness for the customer, the potential life of a carton of Alpha Beta milk is 20-24 days. However, every time the temperature is raised above 35 degrees, the freshness of the milk is diminished. This means that milk should be one of the last purchases you put in your shopping cart, and it should be taken home and refrigerated in the coldest part of your refrigerator immediately. When the milk is poured into glasses, be sure the carton is returned to the refrigerator, rather than leaving it on the counter or dining table.

Some have asked questions about "imitation" milk. The only difference between homogenized whole milk and imitation milk is the fat. This product is made by removing buttertat from whole milk, and replacing it with soybean oil. The protein, calcium, and carbohydrates are identical, and the nutritive values and calorie content remain the same. (160 calories per 8-oz. serving.)

Vitamins; synthetic natural

By MICHAEL J. CONLON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vitamins are a big and growing business and the following question from a reader in Casper, Wyo., probably is on the minds of many Americans who consume them:

"Is there a major difference in effectiveness between synthetic vitamin E and natural vitamin E? An acquaintance of mine told me that, based on her experiences, synthetic vitamin E did nothing for her, but natural vitamin E did wonders for her energy.

"She has taken vitamin E for four years."

Health food stores and others who promote vitamins tend to think the natural product is best —rose hips as a source of vitamin C, for instance.

But the Food and Drug Administration says there is absolutely no difference between synthetic and natural vitamins. In fact the agency has proposed a regulation that would forbid any vitamin from claiming on its label or in advertising that its "natural" origins made it better than the same vitamin from synthetic sources.

In an attempt to find an objective third-party opinion on the question, we consulted Dr. Aaron Altschul, professor of community medicine and international health at Georgetown University in Washington.

He sided with the FDA, saying there is "no question" but that a vitamin is a vitamin, regardless of the source. The chemical structure is the same, regardless of where it came from, he said.

What it boils down to, we suppose, is that if you really think you're getting more out of a natural source vitamin, and can afford to pay the higher price for it, it's not going to hurt you. But bear in mind there are many medical experts who say you're being taken, so far as the price goes. You've also raised another issue by mentioning vitamin E.

The vitamin is still subject of much debate. A study by the National Research Council released in 1973 concluded that most Americans get enough of it in the average diet and taking more of it in capsule form was useless.

The vitamin is widely distributed in cereal grains and animal fats. Americans take in two thirds of the vitamin E they need from salad oils, shortening and margarine, with the balance coming largely from fruits and vegetables.

The NRC study also said there was no evidence the vitamin prevented male impotency or sterility, and it warned that self-treatment for serious symptoms could be dangerous.

One researcher reported recently, however, that there does appear to be some link between the vitamin and the aging process; but even he was too unsure of what the findings meant to say the vitamin would keep anyone young.

A reader in Allentown, Pa., writes:

"Several years ago we bought ready-made canvas awnings from Sears. Last year we tried to buy replacements but couldn't. Sears no longer carried ready-made canvas awnings.

"We wrote to the main store in Philadelphia for the name and address of the manufacturer who made them for Sears. The only reply we got was a standard reply, and no information.

"We cannot afford custom awnings. Could you find out who made the awnings for Sears, or at least the name of a company that sells directly to the public?"

It turns out you will be able to buy them from Sears again after all. The company headquarters in Chicago tells us that as of March 22 they are listed in a special supplemental catalogue.

That catalogue is called the "J Flyer." You should ask for it by that name and in it you should be able to find the awnings.

Gift from the Middle East

Kabobs are answer to a hostess' dilemma

Probably the greatest gift the Middle East has given the American hostess is the kabob, that great party dish that threads chunks of meat and vegetables or fruit on a skewer. By now, there is scarcely a food that hasn't been deliciously skewered and festively served as a kabob.

Whether the hostess fills the skewers ahead of time or makes doing it yourself part of the party, kabobs are fun for the hostess and guests alike. Great! Save for one small problem. It's that stubborn piece of meat or chunk of pepper that refuses to budge from the skewer. Invariably, after several tugs, off it flies . . . directly to the tablecloth. There is, however, a new trick to eliminating this one negative aspect of the kabob tradition. It is the use of a no-stick cooking spray on the skewer before threading.

According to directions, hold the can about 12 inches from the cold surface of the cooking utensil and spray thoroughly for a full 4 seconds. Keep it handy and use to stop food from sticking and make clean-up easy.

Beef or Lamb Kabobs

Marinade (recipe below)
1½ pounds boned beef or lamb, trimmed, cut into 1½-inch cubes
8 small white onions, peeled
No-stick cooking spray
8 cherry tomatoes
8 small fresh or canned mushrooms
2 small zucchini or yellow squash, cut into ½-inch slices
1 medium green pepper, cut into 1-inch squares
Parsley Rice (see below)

Prepare marinade and pour over meat cubes. Cover; marinate in refrigerator at least 2 hours, turning occasionally. Drain meat, reserving marinade. Meanwhile, precook onions in lightly salted, boiling water 5 minutes; drain. Spray skewers and broiler rack with cooking spray. Arrange meat cubes, onions, tomatoes, mushrooms, squash and green pepper alternately on skewers. Place on rack over broiler pan. Brush with marinade. Broil 3 inches from source of heat, basting with marinade and turning occasionally, about 20 minutes or until meat is the desired doneness and vegetables are tender. Serve with Parsley Rice. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Marinade: Mix ½ cup corn oil and ¼ cup cider vinegar or lemon juice. Stir in 1½ teaspoons dry mustard, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon each crushed dried basil, oregano and thyme leaves, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 1-3 cup finely cropped onion and 1 minced clove garlic.

Parsley Rice: For easy clean-up, spray saucepan with cooking spray before cooking rice. Also spray inside of lid and spoon used for serving. For 4 cups rice, melt 4 tablespoons margarine; pour over rice. Add 3 tablespoons chopped parsley; toss.

Garbage compost

To enjoy good vegetables from your garden, dig a small trench nearby and put in all your fruit and vegetable skins and wood ashes, which should be kept in a separate bag from the rest of your trash. The mixture will enrich your soil for a good harvest. — H. S., Willingboro, N.J.

Hot water saver

If your bath is a long way from the water heater and there is no possibility of relocating it closer, use the hot water sparingly. Brush your teeth with the hot water turned "on" before it gets hot. There is plenty of time and you save both time and water. — W. L., Franklin, Ind.

Stove economy

When water used in cooking begins to boil, immediately reduce the heat. Foods will continue to steam or boil properly on medium or low heat, especially if the cooking pot is covered. You can usually turn off the burner about five minutes before you are finished and the retained heat will continue cooking. — J. G., McMillan, Mich.

Electricity economy

If you're planning to remodel, take steps to save energy by installing light switches at each door in rooms with more than one exit. This will encourage people to turn off unneeded lights.

You might also install solid-state dimmer switches that allow more efficient use of light. — E. S., Mobile, Ala.

Heat reflector

If you have a steam or hot water heating system with a free-standing radiator, put a sheet of aluminum foil on the wall behind the radiator. This will reflect heat into the room that would otherwise be lost through the wall. — J. G., Moorestown, N.J.

" (Have you a clever way to save energy or fight inflation? Send your idea to The Inflation Fighter in care of this newspaper. The best ideas will be used in future columns, and their authors will be rewarded with a free copy of the $1.50 book "Save Money-Save Gas.")

Junior Houdini's feats amazing grownups

UNION BEACH, N.J. (AP) — "Daddy locks me up and I don't use anything to get out," says Dennis Burke Jr., a 4-year-old who specializes in Houdini-like escapes from ropes, chains and handcuffs.

The youngster learned his bag of tricks by watching his father, Dennis Burke, an amateur magician who performs with the boy at charity functions under the billing of Dionyius Burke & Co.

D.B. Jr., as his father calls him, recently amazed the audience at a March of Dimes telethon when he escaped from chains and two pairs of handcuffs in 40 seconds.

His father, a production worker at Tenco Co. in Linden, says the boy escaped from padlocked chains at a Cub Scout dinner in 14 seconds.

Burke says Dennis first tried to imitate him by escaping from ropes and chains. Burke wraps his tiny son in one 11-foot chain and another 3-foot chain, padlocking both.

The father says, "As though mechanized, Dennis begins to jump and wriggle, sometimes using his teeth until the chains begin to loosen. His format varies from standing to sitting, but whichever is more comfortable, it seldom takes him more than seconds to release himself.

"Just to show that he was tightly secured, he shows you the impresssions left on his skin from the links."

Dennis, who often makes his escapes behind closed doors, insists he doesn't use a spare key. But he won't say how he does it. He'll only say, "It's all tricks."

Plainfield Police Chief Patrick McColgan, out of whose regulation police handcuffs Dennis managed to wriggle, says of the feat, "This is show business. But I'll admit it's an interesting trick for a lad so young."

Under New Jersey law, children under age are prohibited from collecting money for performances, so Dennis is pursuing an amateur career, planning next to perfect escapes from locked trunks.

Steak and spaghetti; quick combine recipe

Are your weekday dinners getting more and more monotonous? If so, you're not alone. Enterprising working women, busy mothers and volunteer workers across the country share a time and energy problem that has been intensified by budget pressure. Too often there's simply no time or energy left for preparing interesting dinner entrees after an activity-packed day.

Many women solve this time-energy dilemma by having a file of quickie recipes and menus on hand. With an ample collection, fresh and interesting meals are compatible with a busy schedule.

One recipe you'll surely want for the collection is Tip Steaks 'n Spaghetti. It combines two favorites — beef steak and Italian spaghetti sauce in a fast dinner entree.

Beef is a good budget buy this spring, and these steaks from the tip have very little fat and no bone. You can count on three to four servings per pound from this waste-free cut. Since beef tip steaks are cut from less tender muscles, they are cut thin and marinated to make them more tender.

In this recipe for Tip Steaks 'n Spaghetti, tomato sauce seasoned with oregano adds the appeal of Italian cuisine. Prepare for your quick dinner by marinating the tip steaks the night before. They pan-fry in five to seven minutes. This time variation allows for differences in the thickness of the meat and the temperature of the pan, as well as family preferences for rare or medium-done steaks.

The natural go-together for tip steaks smothere in fine Italian sauce is spaghetti. Sprinkle on some Parmesan cheese, if your food and calorie budgets allow. Complete the main course with quick-to-fix foods — frozen Italian green beans, a tossed salad and Italian bread. In-season fruit makes a nutritious dessert choice in keeping with Italian tradition. Add cookies for those with a sweet tooth.

Tip Steaks 'n Spaghetti

3 to 6 tip steaks, cut ¼ to ½ inch thick (1½ to 2 pounds)
1 can (15 ounces) tomato sauce
¾ cup water
1 teaspoon leaf oregano
½ teaspoon sugar
½ teaspoon garlic salt
dash crushed red pepper
2 to 3 tablespoons cooking fat
Salt
Pepper
Cooked spaghetti

Parmesan cheese, if desired

Cut steaks in serving-size pieces. Combine tomato sauce, water, oregano, sugar, garlic salt and red pepper in small saucepan and cook slowly 15 minutes, stirring occasionally. Cool. Place steaks and marinade in plastic bag; turning to coat. Tie bag securely, pressing out air, and place in utility dish or pan. Marinate in refrigerator 6 hours or overnight, turning several times. Scrape marinade from steaks and reserve. Place steaks on absorbent paper and pat dry. Pan-fry steaks in cooking fat in large frying-pan until lightly browned on both sides and to doneness desired (5 to 7 minutes). Turning occasionally. Season with salt and pepper. Pour off drippings, place marinade in frying-pan and heat slowly to boiling. Serve steaks with spaghetti, sauce and Parmesan cheese, if desired. 6 servings.

Roast Chicken Rosemary

1 whole broiler-fryer chicken
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon dried rosemary, crushed
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons chopped parsley

Use neck and other giblets to make broth or for other purposes. Rinse and dry chicken. Season chicken with lemon juice, salt, rosemary and pepper. Sprinkle parsley in side body cavity. Tie legs together with soft string; tuck wings back and under. Place rack on an adjustable Roast 'R Broil pan and lock into a V-shaped position to cradle the chicken. Place in oven with Applesauce Bread Pudding and Vegetable Casserole. Bake in 350 degree F oven 1½ to 1¾ hours depending on size of chicken. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

VEGETABLE MELANGE CASSEROLE

6 small onions
6 small potatoes
4 to 6 carrots
4 ribs celery
¼ pound fresh mushrooms
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 teaspoons salt
½ cup water
2 tablespoons chopped parsley

For ease of preparation place counter top sink board over sink. Peel potatoes and carrots with a stainless steel vegetable peeler. Push parings into sink or disposal unit. With a sharp knife cut potatoes in half, carrots into thin sticks about 2 inches long, celery into 2-inch pieces, mushrooms in halves or quarters depending on size. If needed, rinse prepared vegetables. Place in oven casserole. Dot with butter. Stir salt into water and sprinkle evenly over vegetables. Cover. Bake in 350 degree F oven 1¼ to 1½ hours with oven meal. Just before serving sprinkle with parsley. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Family violence alarming

Written for United Press International

Gregg Sanders left a note on his bedroom table before he died. It expressed sorrow for the murder of his mother and father. The 15 year-old boy jumped to his death from a 150 foot high tower minutes after he had slain both of his parents with an ax in their Mountainside, N.J., home.

In Greenfield, Wis., recuperating Mary Jansen, age 9, forgave her mother for a bizarre shooting episode. Mrs. Mildren Jansen, despondent after her husband's death, turned her anguish on her loved ones and shot her mother, son, Mary and herself. There has been a cluster of such stories lately which involve aggression within the family.

One might think that with all the chaos in the world today, the last bastion of security and peace would be within the family. But according to crime statistics, not only is this not so, but its opposite is much more likely. That is, the probabilities are higher for homicides among intimates than among strangers. In any given year about 25 per cent will take place in families. In 1973, for example, about 2000 homicides occurred within the primary group.

A study of about 600 homicides in Philadelphia over the years showed that close friends (28 per cent) and family associations (25 per cent) formed the two most frequent types of cases. Critical violence among paramours accounted for another 10 per cent. Chances are that 50 to 75 per cent of the time, an assailant and his victim had some previous relationship either as family members or as friends. Authorities believe that possibilities are high, for example, that in the case of the DeFeo family murders (parents and four children) in Amityville, N.Y., the murderer knew the family beforehand. Only 13 per cent of all murders occur between strangers.

Family violence includes a variety of behaviors besides murder (parricide), such as generally assaultive actions, rape (usually by alcoholic fathers), wife beating, and child abuse. Child abuse is usually reported with reluctance, if at all, and is much more prevalent than is commonly believed. Incest also tends to be suppressed both by the victim and the family which strives to protect its members. Police often are targets of a family's hostility when called to break up a quarrel. It is estimated that 20 per cent of officers killed in the line of duty die when they try to break up a family fight.

One explanation why intimates become victims of each other's aggression might be made, perhaps banally, in terms of a paraphrase of the mountaineer who said he climbs mountains "because they are there". Kin happen to be there, ready and accessible, at the time when emotion goes out of control and seeks its target. Our loved ones are both the strongest source of security and satisfaction, and of despair and anger. Although many people influence our self-worth (teacher, friend, boss), no one has a stronger over-all influence on our feelings of self acceptance than our loved ones.

A man may well be able to suffer social disgrace if his primary group still loves and has faith in him, but if they are rejecting, all may seem lost to him. Usually we don't show our anguish and frustration publicly. We tend to bottle it up and later, perhaps, release it at home where we feel more secure and less in danger of losing a job, friends, social status, etc. At a deeper level and according to analytic theory, love and hate are intertwined in a strangely reversible quality so that if the former is thwarted it could bring out the latter. Had Othello not loved Desdemona, she might have lived.

Since violence, like charity, tends to begin at home, perhaps an awareness of our natural tendency to scapegoat those near us for our own failures and unrealized dreams might help curb our feelings of anger toward our intimates.

Cambodian airlift

Cargo: 47 tons of rice Hazards: commie ack-ack

The cockpit looks like that of any other commercial jet except that its three American fliers sweat under combat helmets and flak jackets. Instead of passengers on this DC8 are 47 tons of rice for Phnom Penh, the besieged Cambodian capital.

"Calling Big Bunny. Airport clear. No rockets," comes the voice of a U.S. ground coordinator through the static. Some 10,000 feet below and a stomach-churning dive later lies the Cambodian government's most precious 3,000 yards — the Phnom Penh airstrip.

"Roger, roger," radios back the pilot, a 55-year-old Californian. He is one of several dozen daily ferrying rice, fuel and ammunition on the lifelines from Saigon and Thailand, often under heavy rocket and artillery bursts.

Despite the dangers, the airlift pilots — employes of five American airlines under contract to the U.S. government — are by and large an undemonstrative group. They accept their risky runs into Phnom Penh "as just another job."

All are seasoned professionals. Many are former Air Force officers with two or three decades of flight logs spanning much of the century's aerial history — bombing of Fortress Europe during World War II, supply runs in pre-Mao China, Korea, B52 raids over Hanoi.

Money wasn't what attracted them to this air effort, says World Airways pilot Bill McQueen, 50; salaries range around $3,500 a month and bonuses, if any, are small.

"The company asked us to come, just like to any other place," says the former bomber pilot who left a wife and three children behind in Merced, Calif. "We're not enthusiastic but we're willing."

Enthusiasm is dampened by the shelling — sometimes 60 rounds a day or more — on Phnom Penh's Pochentong Airport, often as the big, vulnerable DC8 jets and the C130 transports taxi on the runway or unload their cargo.

Flight engineer Marvin Griffith of San Jose, Calif., recounted one typical close call:

"They had us bracketed. We were coming down the runway and the rocket explosions were going off to our right just ahead and behind us. There was nothing one could really do at that point but hope. I didn't believe it. I felt like it was John Wayne, Van Johnson and Humphrey Bogart in the cockpit and the Hollywood crew was doing a damn fine job simulating all the action outside."

Griffith, a father of six and a Flying Tiger employe, says the law of averages will sooner or later catch up with the U.S. planes and crews. Thus far they have been lucky, suffering only a few scratches themselves and shrapnel holes in planes since the lift began Feb. 27.

But Griffith, like all the fliers interviewed, believes the aerial infusions to the sagging Phnom Penh government should continue as long as necessary despite the dangers and a U.S. congressional move to halt all aid.

"I think it would be a tragedy not to give these Cambodians the aid they badly need now and in the next few months ahead," says pilot Tom Grenham, 30, of Quincy, Mass. "If the Communists capture Phnom Penh it will be a devastating blow for that country and the rest of Southeast Asia."

The crews fly a maximum of four times a day for three days, then take a day off. For the crews based at Utapao, Thailand, the flying day can be as long as 12 hours since each Utapao-Phnom Penh round trip takes about three hours. The Saigon crews make it back and forth in an hour.

The Saigon run is a mix of cool professionalism and tension. The four-engine DC8 climbs rapidly to 22,000 feet out of Saigon, above antiaircraft fire.

At cruising altitude, the cargo supervisor — making his 50th and last round trip — hands out soft drinks and potato chips to the three crewmen. Seventeen minutes after takeoff, helmets and flak jackets are donned; the Phnom Penh area is coming into view.

The jet shudders as speed is reduced, dips steeply and banks in a tight arc for the approach. There is no traffic control at the airport and visual flight rules apply. "We have to fly like they were small airplanes. If there were passengers back there I'd scare the hell out of them," McQueen says.

Rocket holes dot the sides of the airstrip. "Welcome to the Khmer Republic" reads a sign over a bunkered compound before which the jet halts.

For the next 13 minutes a dozen barefooted Cambodians scamper aboard and wheel 17 heavy rice-filled pallets from the cavernous aircraft onto a forklift. The crew helps out to cut ground time. "There's an incentive in that, you know," one crewman jokes.

The cargo doors begin to close as the Cambodians try to gulp down soft drinks, sell a souvenir or two and ask crewmen to bring them some helmets the next time around.

YOU DON'T HAVE TO PEEL POTATOES TO CUT YOUR BUDGET.

Ore-Ida frozen potatoes are a real budget-stretching value compared to fresh potatoes.

For one thing, our frozen potatoes are all potato. There's no waste. With fresh potatoes, as much as 25% (peel, eyes, etc.) goes down the drain. Your money with it.

Ore-Ida frozen potatoes give you perfect portion control. You use just as much or as little as you need and put the rest right back in your freezer.

Ore-Ida frozen potatoes can't spoil. Fresh ones, languishing in your pantry, can. A potato spoiled is a potato wasted. And a potato wasted is money wasted.

On top of all that, Ore-Ida gives you variety you could never hope to coax out of a fresh potato: six different cuts of french fries, three styles of hash browns and four flavors of our unique, bite-size Tater Tots® brand potatoes.

So be sure to add Ore-Ida frozen potatoes to a lot more family meals. And be sure to subtract the money-saving coupons.

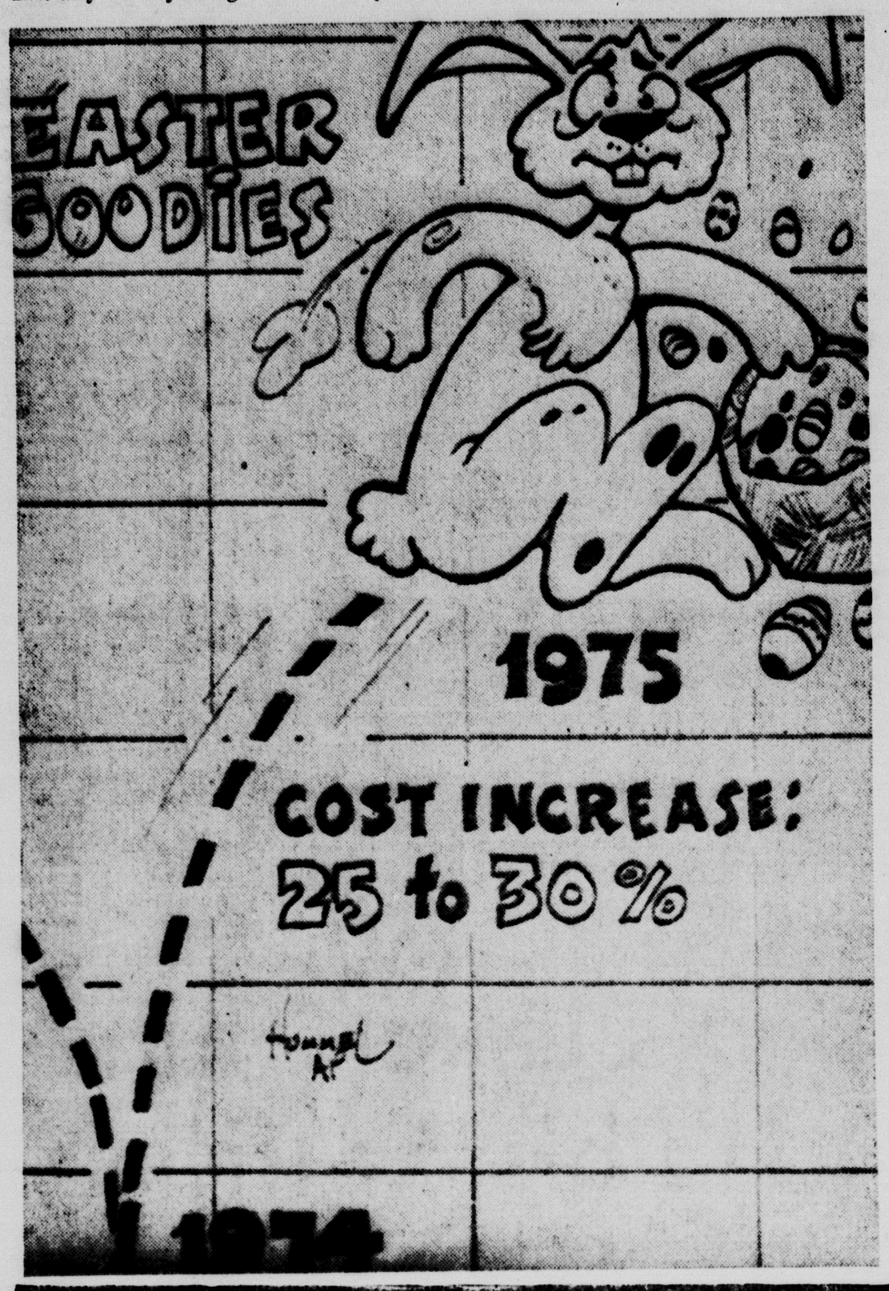
Inflation hits the candy bunnies

Chocolate bunnies are going to cost an average of 25 to 30 per cent more this Easter than they did a year ago. So are jelly beans. And marshmallow eggs. And candy chicks.

The problem is the rising cost of things like sugar and cocoa beans. The situation may be even worse next year because raw materials for candy now on the shelves were ordered before the worst of the increases in the price of ingredients.



A spokesman for the National Confectioners Association of the United States said manufacturers produced 3.8 billion pounds of candy in 1970. That's 19 pounds of candy for every American.

About 5 per cent of the total, some 200 million pounds, was Easter specialty candy — things like jelly beans, chicks and bunnies. Jelly beans, of course, are sold all-year round, but the ones manufactured for Easter have a slightly different texture — virtually unnoticeable to consumers, according to industry spokesmen — and officially are known as "jelly bird eggs."

The price of candy for this year's Easter basket varies widely depending on where you live and what kind of store you shop in.

A Buffalo, N.Y., store, reported that a pound of jelly beans sold for 79 to 99 cents last year; this year, the range is 99 cents to $1.29, an increase of from 25 to 30 per cent.

The confectioners association said that was about average, but other stores reported other price rises.

An East Coast supermarket chain, for example, said a one-pound bag of jelly beans has gone from 41 to 73 cents, up 78 per cent; a 7¼-ounce "Happy Bunny" is up from 99 cents to $1.39, a boost of 40 per cent; the 3¼-ounce "Funny Bunny" is only 17 per cent more expensive — 69 cents instead of 59 cents.

A Midwest chain said Easter candy was 10 to 20 per cent more expensive than it was in 1974 and would cost even more if the store had not placed its order early.

Bortz Chocolate Novelties, Inc., of Reading, Pa., is one of the best-known manufacturers of chocolate bunnies in the business. In all, the company turns out about five million pounds of chocolate candy a year — 65 per cent of it aimed at the Easter market.

Bortz, which makes bunnies weighing from three-fourths of an ounce to one pound, buys chocolate for molding. The chocolate arrives hot, in tank trucks, is cooled slightly, poured into a rabbit-shaped mold and tumbled gently so the chocolate will be spread around and the center will be hollow. If you want a solid bunny, fill up the mold.

The Easter candy on sale in stores now was manufactured from three to six months ago, depending on how perishable an item it is.

The chocolate in the bunnies Bortz manufactured for this Easter was contracted for last spring, before the worst of the price increases. Nonetheless, a spokesman says, it was almost 50 per cent more expensive than the chocolate used in the 1974 Easter bunnies—50 to 65 cents a pound, compared to 35 or 40 cents a year earlier. Current chocolate prices are running about 80 to 90 cents a pound.

Recent declines in the price of sugar may help in some areas. The National Candy Wholesalers Association reported that a Wisconsin manufacturer who was selling foil wrapped chocolates to retailers at four cents each throughout 1974 has cut the price by a penny.

Sugar isn't the only problem, however. Cocoa bean prices have risen steadily since 1971—one manufacturer reported a boost of almost 400 per cent in three years—and some candy companies are using compounds.

Super Bowl XI bound for Rose Bowl

HONOLULU (AP) — Pasadena's whirlwind courtship with the National Football League brought a surprising acceptance for the Super Bowl of 1977.

Never before had a city without a pro football team of its own been voted the championship game, but the Southern California city had 104,701 seats in a world-renown stadium working for it. In accepting Pasadena's Rose Bowl bid, the NFL turned down Los Angeles, Dallas, Houston, New Orleans and Montreal.

So Super Bowl XI will visit the big bowl on Jan. 9, eight days after the Pacific-8 and Big Ten collegiate champions battle in the annual Rose Bowl game at the Arroyo Seco.

Don Yokaitis, former mayor and current councilman in Pasadena, declared, "We made the decision to go after the Super Bowl about a month ago. We came to Honolulu thinking our chances were excellent for two basic reasons. First, we feel we have the finest stadium for players and for fans. Secondly, it is the stadium with the largest capacity and most prestige."

Pasadena had enough confidence in its bid that it had even planned how to freshen the turf after the Rose Bowl game so that all would be ready for the pros.

City Manager Jim Crain told the owners, "In the middle of December, we will start germinating seed in silica sand with heat on it. By the time the Rose Bowl game is over, we'll cut the grass on the field short and sow the germinated seed and cover it with urethane sheets. Three days before the Super Bowl, we'll uncover it."

Pasadena decided early this year that further use must be made of the city-owned stadium because of increasing maintenance costs.

"We want to have selective events," Yokaitis explained, "and the Super Bowl must be one of the best."

So Pasadena offered its Rose Bowl for $60,000 rental plus a 5 per cent seat tax that should bring another $50,000 plus concession and parking rights. The NFL gets the ticket, television and program rights.

Commissioner Pete Rozelle said that cities which have held the Super Bowl in the past estimate the added income to their areas might be as high as $50 million, counting travel and food.

Pasadena, about 12 miles east of Los Angeles, will have to share the hotel revenue with their larger neighbor.

A spokesman for Los Angeles, which lost its bid, said the Coliseum offered a package which would have cost the NFL less. But the Coliseum capacity cannot match that of the Rose Bowl. However, the largest crowd to ever watch a pro game was 102,368 for the Rams-San Francisco 49ers game at the Coliseum in 1957 and the largest Super Bowl crowd was 90,183 there when Miami beat Washington 14-7 in 1973.

Rozelle said the decision came on a sixth ballot with 20 of the 26 NFL clubs needed to vote affirmatively for one city before it gains the Super Bowl.

"If the stadium is filled, as we anticipate, this game should set a professional football attendance record," Rozelle said.

"We have been very successful in the Los Angeles area. Certainly the glamor of the Rose Bowl had its effect in the vote."

Pasadena and Montreal were the only non NFL team cities to bid for the game, but Pasadena's location was so close to Los Angeles that it could not be considered a stranger.

Rams General Manager Don Klosterman commented, "The membership voted to play in Southern California which richly deserves the game. Our position was that we would have prefered the Coliseum, but the overall membership voted to go to the Rose Bowl.

"We hope our Rams' season ticket holders will be happy that the game is coming to Southern California and that they can watch it at the Rose Bowl. Our team will work hard to be a participant."

There could be some unhappiness with the Tournament of Roses group if there is a feeling the Super Bowl might defuse Rose Bowl interest in the collegiate post-season fixture. Yokaitis said his group had talked with both the Pacific-8 and Tournament of Roses officials.

"They indicated reservations but said they would not oppose it and wished us good luck," the city official said.

He said Pasadena should have no trouble getting ready for the Super Bowl in the eight days following the huge Tournament of Roses Parade and college game on New Year's Day.

Cenotto has the guts of a born gambler

Larry Cenotto celebrated his birthday Saturday with the news that the NFL Denver Broncos had announced his signing.

The 22-year-old Pomona-Pitzer quarterback had been proferred a contract over a month ago. But Cenotto, who proved he is as gutty as anyone around by playing behind the porous Sagehen lines for three years, had the guts (or gall) to scratch out part of the financial terms offered and write in his own. Then he mailed the signed contract back to the Broncos!

"I only wanted one thing really," Cenotto explained. "The average maximum range for a bonus for a free agent is $1500. I thought I deserved that."

Cenotto was not selected in the regular NFL draft but was signed as a free agent. He was an outstanding passer for the Sagehens, setting career marks in passing (5,814 yards) and total offense (5,939 yards).

As a sophomore, in 1972, Cenotto completed 109 of 237 passes for 1,670 yards and 16 touchdowns. In his junior year he improved to 131 of 264 for 1,847 yards and 12 touchdowns. Last fall he completed 147 of 294 passes for 2,024 yards and 15 touchdowns.

He was a first-team All-SCIAC and All-NAIA District III selection the last two years.

Although not drafted, Cenotto had an offer from the Kansas City Chiefs which, initially, was better than the Broncos.

"Kansas City offered me a bonus (to sign) of $1800 and a base salary of $19,500," Cenotto said, plus another $2500 bonus if I made the club."

The original Denver offer, according to Cenotto, was for no bonus for signing and a base salary of $16,000 and no bonus if he made the team.

"After the Chiefs made their offer, Denver improved its terms," Cenotto said. "They offered me $1,000 to sign, a salary base of $20,500 and a bonus of $2500 if I made the team."

It was the last Denver offer that Cenotto deliberated over than crossed out the $1,000 and changed it to $1500.

Had second thoughts

That was also when he began to have second thoughts. When you've played for a small school that has won only four times in three years you don't exactly have a lot of bargaining power.

A telephone call only brought the response that it was not the Broncos' policy of offer more than $1,000 to a free agent as a bonus for signing.

For the next four weeks Cenotto sat around wondering and worrying. The announcement was made Saturday, but Cenotto still has not heard anything from Denver.

"I merely have to assume that they agreed to the $1500," Cenotto said.

Cenotto now will report to the Broncos' rookie camp in Denver next Monday. Why did he choose Denver when Kansas City made the best initial offer and possibly would have gone higher?

"My agent and I didn't want to get into a bidding session with the two clubs," Cenotto said. "I preferred the Broncos from the start.

"The main reason was the scout who contacted me," Cenotto continued. "Hank Johnson who had been in coaching about 40 years at the small college level. I think he knew the position of the small college athlete.

"Overall, the reason I signed with Denver is the same reason why I chose Pomona College," Cenotto concluded. "They payed a lot of attention to me and treated me as an individual."

SLIDING IN

La Verne's Mike Pagnotta (14) steals second in game with Claremont-Mudd. Bob Turek covers for the Stags. Pagnotta went on to score and wound up with homer and two singles, two runs batted in and two scored as Leos won, 8-2.

Disappointed there was no game

Marshall wants to pitch

VERO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — It was only Mike Marshall's first full day in spring training with the Los Angeles Dodgers but he was disappointed already.

The Dodgers didn't have an exhibition game scheduled Tuesday so Marshall, the 1974 Cy Young award winner who thrives on work, was unable to pitch in a game.

Instead Marshall had to content himself with 20 minutes of batting practice.

"I hope to pitch in a game right away," said Marshall.

"I've been throwing regularly at home and want to get the feel of a game."

Marshall was allowed to report about three weeks late because he is working towards a doctorate in kinesiology at Michigan State University.

Marshall was likely to see his first game action of the spring when the Dodgers face his former team, the Montreal Expos, here today.

After being obtained from the Expos for Willie Davis, Marshall reported late last year because of his studies.

He went on to set a series of baseball records including number of games with 106 and innings pitched in relief with 208 1-3.

Marshall, who last year declined to grant interviews, was a bit more candid with writers at the Dodgers' spring home.

"I don't pretend to be perfect with everybody," he said. "I realize you writers have your job to do, but it's boring me to talk about me."

It was Marshall's first public remarks since he won the Cy Young Award last year and he attempted to set writers straight on some of the facts concerning his contract.

One reported provision of the contract was that he get a suite of rooms in hotels on the road, and Marshall confirmed it, but said his work for a doctorate at Michigan State requires it.

"I spread everything—papers and other materials—all over the room when I'm working," he said. "I don't like to have to remove everything from the bed when I go to sleep. Do you know very many people who like to work and sleep in the same room?"

He acknowledged that the Dodgers pay for some of his expenses, but said, "Every man negotiates for what he thinks he's worth, on an individual basis. If 100 other relief pitchers can do what I do, then they should get what I do, right?"

And then he said he didn't think the Cy Young Award carried as much meaning as personal tributes from such men as Dodger Manager Walter Alston and Montreal Manager Gene Mauch.

"I don't mean to slight anybody in the sportswriting industry," Marshall said, "but Walt and Gene know more about baseball than they do."

It's Lakers' turn to blast officials

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two days after Kareem-Abdul Jabbar was socked with a $250 fine for criticising official Jerry Loeber, the coach and top scorer of the Los Angeles Lakers have lashed out at officiating in the National Basketball Association.

The blast by Coach Bill Sharman and guard Gail Goodrich came moments after a 109-100 loss Tuesday night to the New York Knicks—in a game officiated by Loeber.

"There's entirely too much handchecking going on and our officials should be either more firm or there should be three of them in every game," said the 6-foot-1 Goodrich, who scored just 14 points but passed off for 11 assists.

"The officiating definitely should be supervised more," said Sharman, who rarely makes such public comments. "If we can't have three of them, we should at least monitor the ones we do have a little better."

The Knicks won the battle of the foul line Tuesday night. They made only 43 field goals to the Lakers' 44, but hit 23 of 33 free throws. Forty-two fouls were called and it was a game of jostling, shoving and pushing.

"Defense has become nothing but grabbing and holding and I think the presence of another official would do a lot to eliminate that," said Goodrich. "Right now, the fans are being hurt by what's going on. They don't like 80-75 games."

Sharman said he realized that officials are graded, but suggested the practice be monitored more carefully.

"You have the best finesse ballplayers in the game and now they're resorting to this sort of thing," he said. "This should not be a game of tackling, pushing and tugging."

Guards Walt Frazier and Earl Monroe combined for 48 points—12 of them from the foul line—and center John Gianelli added 23 as the Knicks handed the Los Angeles Lakers their 46th defeat of the season against 26 triumphs. The Knicks broke open a close game, outscoring the Lakers 21-4 in the final seven minutes.

It was New York's fifth victory in their last six starts. The Knicks improved to 35-37 in the Atlantic Division of the Eastern Conference.

The turning point in the game probably came with the Lakers leading 90-84. Cazzie Russell attempted a dunk shot on a breakaway but missed and Gianelli grabbed the rebound.

New York scored the next eight points to take the lead, then scored five of the next seven for a 97-92 edge.

Frazier scored 27 points, pulled down 13 rebounds and passed off for 11 assists. Monroe hit 21.

Bill Bradley had four key baskets in the first nine minutes of the fourth quarter, after failing to make a field goal in the first half. He scored all but one of his 13 points in the second half.

Russell wound up with 29 points for the Lakers. Stu Lantz had 17 and Brian Winters and Elmore Smith 16 each.

LVC beats Claremont

ASU too much for Leos

By DON BRADLEY
P-B Staff Writer

La Verne College's baseball team had a good day on the field and a good night at the box office Tuesday.

The Leopards (7-7) defeated Claremont-Mudd, 8-2, in the Southern California Intercollegiate Athletic Conference (SCIAC) opener for both teams at La Verne in the afternoon.

At night, the Leos ran into a buzz saw in Arizona St. at Ontario's John Galvin Park. An estimated crowd of 900 saw the Sun Devils, the nation's top-ranked university level team, chew up the Leopards, 13-2.

"They were just awesome, too awesome for us," La Verne coach Ben Hines said. "They were hitting shots tonight. They just dominated us. It's been a long time since we were dominated like that."

Of ASU's 19 hits, the only one that wasn't a "shot" was a bloop single in the eighth inning. Everything else went screaming off the Arizona St. bats.

The visitors combed Leopard pitching for six doubles, a triple and a home run.

"They're a pretty talented bunch," admitted ASU coach Jim Brock. "We're kind proud of them."

ASU is good and it is BIG.

Winning pitcher John Poloni, a left-handed junior with an easy motion, is 6-5 and 215 pounds. Catcher R. J. Harrison is the same. First baseman Clay Westlake is 6-3, 215. Jerry Maddox, a third baseman shifted to shortstop this year, is 6-2, 200 pounds.

Centerfielder Kenny Landreaux is one of the smallest Sun Devils at 5-10, 160 pounds.

Landreaux had a double and two singles, batted in three runs and scored three in addition to stealing a base.

Third baseman Gary Allenson batted in five runs with a three-run homer and two singles. Maddox cracked two doubles and a triple. Westlake smashed two doubles.

Poloni held La Verne to six hits, struck out nine and walked only one. But the game didn't get out of hand until the sixth inning. ASU held a 4-1 lead at that time.

Then the Sun Devils teed off on starter Tim Kelly (3-3). Garrett Strong (from Fontana) started it off with a single. Maddox hit a sizzling double off the left field wall. Allenson hit one OVER it for three runs and Harrison singled.

Kelly trudged off and was replaced by Eric Frazier. Frazier got out of the inning but not before there were two stolen bases, an infield hit and a double for two more runs.

To all intent and purpose, the game was over at that point.

La Verne got its runs in the fifth and eighth innings.

Wayne Redfearn smashed a screaming triple and scored on an infield hit in the fifth. In the eighth, singles by Mike Pagnotta and Jimmy Lentine sandwiched around Maddox' error accounted for the other.

"I was really disappointed that we didn't play better," Hines said. "I don't think we're this bad. I had hoped we would put on a better show. The people really turned out."

In contrast, the afternoon game was a pleasure outing for the Leopards.

Dan Quisenberry (3-3) went all the way and allowed only five hits and one walk. One of the hits was a first-inning home run by Jon Begerow.

The other run came in the sixth on singles by Steve Lopez, Andy Roundtree and Begerow. There would have been more except for a fielding gem by third baseman Dan Graham and heads up play by Paul Fleming.

Graham leaped high in the air for a high bouncer by Greg Thompson and threw to second to force Begerow. Thompson beat Rich Fielder's throw to first, but Fleming fired back across to Graham to nail Roundtree and turn it into a double play.

Fleming had robbed Wynn Moore of a double earlier with a diving stop in back of first base. He got up and threw to Quisenberry in time to nip the speedy Moore.

Denny McLain new announcer

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP — Former Cy Young Award winner Denny McLain will be the play-by-play announcer for the Iowa Oaks' baseball games this season on radio station KBAB of Indianola, it was disclosed Tuesday.

The entire schedule of the American Association team will be presented by the station.

McLain, a veteran of 10 major league seasons, won the Cy Young Award in 1968 when he posted a 31-6 record with Detroit and again in 1969 when he had a 24-9 mark. He pitched for the Oaks in 1973.

Bob Nevin gets unusual present

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Veteran Bob Nevin of the Los Angeles Kings got an unusual 37th birthday present Tuesday night when the Kings took on the Minnesota North Stars in the National Hockey League.

He was credited with his 25th goal of the season—even though he didn't score the goal.

"Sheldon Kannegiesser shot the puck from the point," Nevin said after the Kings posted a 5-3 victory. "I tried to deflect it, but missed."

The puck hit the shaft of Minnesota defenseman Dennis O'Brien's stick and caromed past goalie Fern Rivard to give the Kings a 2-0 lead with 16 seconds to play in the first period.

"I went up to Kannegieser and said, 'I never touched that one, it's your goal,'" Nevin said. "But he said, 'I don't want it, I just want the assist... Happy birthday.'"

Mike Murphy scored twice and added an assist to lead the Kings as they broke out of a mild slump and advanced to within eight points of first place Montreal in the Norris Division.

The Kings have seven games left to play, while the Canadiens have eight.

Murphy opened and closed the second period with two goals, then assisted on the final Los Angeles marker by Bob Berry at 11:14 of the third period.

Frank St. Marseille converted a centering pass from Dave Hutchinson for the Kings' first goal.

The North Stars pulled to within 3-2 in the second period when Erqie Hicke deflected home a point blast by Dwight Bialowus and Craig Cameron slammed in Henry Boucha's rebound.

Bill Goldsworthy's scoring shot from the top of the circle at 8:54 of the final period brought Minnesota again to within one goal at 4-3, before Berry finished the game off just over two minutes later.

Minnesota Coach Charlie Burns said the North Stars were "just not playing good hockey.

"The fourth goal hurt us, and the fifth one killed us. And we ended up putting a couple of 'em in ourselves."

The Kings, top defensive club in the NHL, had been shut out in their last two games.

Los Angeles Coach Bob Pulford said of the switchabout: "Tonight was a big game for us. Lately we've been missing our chances. We've had good scoring opportunities but couldn't seem to put the puck in the net. We're not an explosive team, we don't often get six or eight goals in a game. Our style is more defensive hockey."

Castillo, Lopez sign for fight

LOS ANGELES (AP — Former bantamweight champion Chu Chu Castillo of Mexico and Danny "Little Red" Lopez have signed to meet in a 10-round fight April 17 at the Olympic Auditorium, promoter Aileen Eaton announced Tuesday.

Castillo, 43-12-2, won the title with a knockout over Ruben Olivares in 1970 and lost it back a year later in a 15-round decision.

Lopez is 23-3 with 22 knockouts.

UCLA faces excited foe in Montana

MISSOULA, Mont. (AP) — Always-mighty UCLA meets the distinctly non-legendary University of Montana Grizzlies in the NCAA West Regional basketball semifinals Thursday night in Portland, Ore.

Coach Jud Heathcote's Grizzlies, champions of the Big Sky Conference, collide with No. 2-ranked UCLA in a nationally televised game that some consider the mismatch of the season.

"Our kids are excited and practice has reflected that attitude," Heathcote said Tuesday. "The boys recognize we're definitely out-talented and we're playing what is a living legend. We're going in a little apprehensive but not scared, if there is a difference."

The Grizzlies leave Wednesday for Portland and will meet the Bruins in the first of two games Thursday night at 7:10, PDT. The Montana-UCLA game had been scheduled as the 9:10 nightcap but was pushed up to accommodate television viewers. Nevada-Las Vegas and Arizona play in the other contest.

UCLA, the nation's winningest basketball team over past years, defeated Michigan 103-91 for its bid for an eighth straight regional championship. Montana downed Utah State 69-63 Saturday in Pullman, Wash.

UCLA is 24-3 on the year while Montana sports a 21-6 record.

Some 3,000 Montanans turned out for the game in Pullman but Heathcote expects only about 500 supporters to make the 500-mile trip to the coast. "We will not have the fan support en masse that we had before."

Heathcote said that other than an occasional ache, his team is healthy and probably as ready as it ever will be for the biggest basketball game in the school's history.

Heathcote, who with his team has been thrust into the national basketball spotlight almost overnight, said the game is what "we have strived for—a step ahead for our program that we can play a club that is second-ranked in the nation and being one of the 16 final teams left fighting for the national title. It's a role that we're not accustomed to but it's a role that we are enjoying."

AAU recognizes L.A.'s ITA meet

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Like a father belatedly acknowledging an illegitimate child, the Amateur Athletic Union has officially recognized the International Track Association.

Saturday's ITA Track Classic in Los Angeles has received a sanction from the Southern Pacific AAU, permitting high school and junior college athletes to compete in the same arena.

Thus the amateur athletes will compete in the morning and when they are done the pros do their thing. And as an added attraction, world shot put record holder Al Feuerbach will "compete" against Brian Oldfield, the ITA's massive humor merchant.

Feuerbach, an amateur who hopes to compete in next year's Olympic Games, will actually stage a one-man exhibition moments after Oldfield takes his throws in the pro portion of the meet, but fans will be able to compare the two under identical conditions. They'll even use the same shot.

"This is the closest I'll come to meeting him," said the 6-foot-5, 280-pound Oldfield.

Oldfield now uses a new U-turn discus method to throw the shot and says, "I think the new style helps maybe two or three feet right now, but I've only used it for the last year. When I get more proficient with it, I can see throwing 80 feet."

He said he first saw the turn method used in 1963 by John McGrath, who recorded a lifetime best with it. But it didn't catch on.

Despite much success with the old Parry O'Brien method, where the thrower turns his back in the circle and does a half turn, Oldfield switched to the spin style because "I hurt my right leg and I had to adopt the style sooner."

He would like to see the sixfoot circle widened to eight feet but admits officials "probably won't do anything like that, so I'll just have to adjust."

Oldfield's best mark of 71-9 indoors is two inches farther than Feuerbach's outdoor world amateur mark. Oldfield has been accused of using a light shot, but he swears it weighs 16 pounds one ounce.

Oldfield gained fame in 1972 when he beat Randy Matson out of a spot on the U.S. Olympic team and then flaunted the fact that he "smoked, drank, swore and chased women." His new image is a dark suit, tie, soft drinks and no smoking.

"Call it integrity," he said. "Everybody goes through that once, don't they?" He said, "It was no trouble to put on the suit and stop drinking but quitting smoking, that was the hard part. The first day was murder, but after that I realized that every day I didn't smoke I became stronger.

"Now I feel I can do anything."

Error helps Angels win

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Ed Crosby's 10th-inning throwing error enabled the California Angels to score an unearned run for a 5-4 victory over the Cleveland Indians in exhibition baseball Tuesday.

The Angels, improving their exhibition record to 6-1, battled back from a 3-0 second-inning deficit with single runs in the third, fifth and seventh innings.

After Cleveland took a 4-3 lead in the eighth, the Angels tied it in the bottom of the ninth on more erratic fielding by tht Indians.

Frankie George, who opened the inning with a double, scored when Indians second baseman Duane Kuiper threw to first base, which was left uncovered.

John Balez opened the Angel 10th with a single and Tommy Harper drew a walk off loser Dave LaRoche. Then Dan Briggs grounded to Crosby, who threw wildly past first base, permitting Balez to score the winning run.

Morris Nettles collected three hits for the second day in a row to pace California's 10-hit attack against five Cleveland pitchers. Harper added a pair of singles.

Chuck Hockenberry, the fifth Angel pitcher, was credited with the victory.

Cenotto also likes the idea of training at Cal Poly. "I'll be right across the way from coach (Walt) Ambord and a lot of my friends and I'll have the support of the local people. And, ultimately, if I make the team I'd much rather live in Denver."

The agent that helped the Pomona-Pitzer athlete negotiate is lawyer Leonard Gibson of Norwalk whom Cenotto described as an old friend.

Cenotto worked for Gibson last summer as a process server. "I took all sorts of abuse," Cenotto related. "I was talking to one man at night through the screen door and all of a sudden there was a .38 pointed at me.

"Fortunately he was only being called as a witness and he calmed down quickly," Cenotto said. "Another time a drunk in Whittier busted right through the screen door, ripped up the papers and we tussled in the front yard. When he went back to get a knife, I split. I learned to become very clever quickly."

Clever enough and with enough guts to extract another $500 from Denver. Things ought to be doubly interesting around Poly this summer when the Broncos open camp.

Biggie Munn dead at 66

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Clarence "Biggie" Munn, who as coach and athletic director built Michigan State University into a national football power, died Tuesday at the age of 66.

A Michigan State spokesman said Munn died at 11:06 a.m. from complications following his second stroke, suffered March 10. An initial stroke Oct. 7, 1971, disrupted his 18-year reign as athletic director.

Munn had been hospitalized since Saturday, and his condition had been deteriorating, a college spokesman said.

Munn was active for nearly 40 years as a college player, coach and athletic director. He became Michigan State head coach in 1947, serving until 1953 when he became athletic director and handed the coaching reigns to Duffy Daugherty.

He coached Michigan State's 1952 national champion, and his 1953 team tied for the Big Ten championship, then won the Rose Bowl.

Munn was an All-American guard at Minnesota, then held coaching jobs at Minnesota, Albright College, Syracuse, and Michigan before coming to Michigan State.

Damien survives Chino rally, 4-3

By CRAIG TRAVIS
P-B Correspondent

Chino High's offensive attack is best described as dangerous. Just ask Damien's Frank Pastore.

The Spartan fireballer fired a six-hitter but weathered a 400-foot blast by Chino's Tim Derryberry in the bottom of the seventh inning Tuesday afternoon as Damien held on to nip the oncoming Cowboys, 4-3, in the San Antonio League baseball opener.

Pastore (3-0) was staked to a 4-0 lead when the Cowboy bats came to life. John Lusk doubled home a fourth-inning run and the hosts cut the deficit to 4-2 in the fifth on Manny Delgado's double and an error.

Then came the tension-filled seventh. Trailing by two runs, Rick Riedel drew a one-out walk to set the stage for Derryberry's clout. The 6-2, junior centerfielder, who has two home runs this season, connected on a Pastore fastball and lifted it over 400 feet. The ball bounced off the base of the center field fence, allowing Riedel to score from first base, with the Cowboy slugger holding at second.

Pastore got Mark Paine to ground out to short, on a close play at first base that drew boos from the Chino fans, and struck out Paul Belmudes on three pitches to end the game.

"I thought the ball was cut," said Damien coach Matt Kolodge, of Derryberry's smash. "He's a first-ball hitter and got a fastball where he wanted it."

Pastore helped himself out when he singled home the first run of a four-run fourth to snap a scoreless pitcher's duel with Robert Townzen. Robert Alexander followed with a run-scoring double and Bob DeBolt singled home the final two runs of the inning, his second hit of the game.

The Spartans never threatened after that as Keith Mundee relieved in the fifth and allowed just two hits in three innings work.

"They hit the heck out of the ball," praised Kolodge, of Chino's hitting, "one of the best hitting teams I've seen in a long time. Frank (Pastore) had nothing from the fourth inning on. His curve wasn't working and they waited on the fastball."

Paul Belmudes paced Chino with two hits while Damien's Alexander, DeBolt and Dan Monroe all enjoyed two-for-four performances at the plate.

Chino (5-3, 0-1) visits Pomona Friday while Damien (6-1, 1-0) hosts Upland. Both games start at 3:15 p.m.

Bonita blasts error-proned Saints, 21-3

By SCOTT POINDEXTER
P-B Correspondent

"I told my boys to just go out and hit the ball and they sure did." Such were the the comments of Coach Dick Salomon as the Bonita Bearcats came up with a 16-hit attack, aided by nine San Dimas errors, to destroy the Saints, 21-3, in Haicenda League play Tuesday afternoon.

Harold Drake, Billy Bumstead, and Ron Pickenpaugh led the Bearcat attack. Drake had three hits in six times to the plate, two home runs, seven RBI's, and scored four times, not to mention being the winning pitcher. Bumstead had four one-baggers and Pickenpaugh chipped in three including a triple into center. San Dimas' lone retaliation was a two-run homer by Jerry Baird when the score was already 18-1.

Bonita opened up early on starter Jack Clark. Jerry Osborne put the second pitch into center for a single, Drake followed with a single, a grounder moved them up and then two singles and a double by Dave Drury ended the game for Clark—six men up, three runs. Curt Burkhart came into end the threat.

The Saints got on board in the second with three singles, Steve Campbell getting the run batted in.

San Dimas would like to forget the third inning (not to mention the whole game) as the Bearcats blew the game open with an eight-run outburst. Three hits, three walks, and three errors produced eight big ones. Scott Johnson had the topper, a two-run double to right.

By then, Burkhart was gone and Paul Willman was pitching. He couldn't do much better, giving up the last 10 runs, none earned.

Drake had a grand slam home run in the five-run fifth, and a three-run round-tripper in the seventh. Baird's blast came in the Saint sixth.

Brad Snedecker came in to relieve Drake in the fourth and had eight strikeouts in four innings work. Between Drake and Snedecker the duo struck out 13 Saints.

San Antonio League baseball

Cavs coast; Wolfpack falls

Montclair erupted for 10 runs in the first three innings and then coasted to a 12-1 victory over Ganesha Tuesday afternoon in San Antonio League baseball action.

Cavalier starter Don Pierce picked up the victory on the mound, going six innings while allowing the only run in the first inning.

Montclair's big inning came in the second when Dave Urquidi and Greg Walton blasted home runs in the seven-run outburst.

Rick Adams started it all with a single and then stole second. With two outs, Kent Gurney reached base on a Ganesha error and Adams scored on the play.

Brent Jetton, who went two-for-three, singled Gurney to third before Mike Medeiros plated Gurney with a single. Urquidi followed with a three-run homer to put the Cavs way out in front, 6-0.

Pierce kept the rally going with a single, and then Walton hammered his home run to cap the scoring for the inning.

Walton finished the day with a two-for-three performance at the plate, while driving in seven of the 12 runs.

Montclair is now 1-0 in league play and 7-1 for the season. Ganesha saw its season mark drop to 3-3.

In another SAL contests played Tuesday, Upland rallied for one run in the bottom of the seventh and two in the bottom of the eighth to nip Claremont in one extra inning, 6-5.

Claremont led by one run, 4-3, going into the bottom of the seventh, but host Upland tied it up when Bob Stendie walked, advanced to second on a passed ball, and scored on Dean Sanchez' single to center.

Claremont took the lead again in the top of the eighth when Dan Thomas singled, was sacrificed to second by Dave Allen, and scored on Brian Fitzjerrels' single.

Steve Self opened the bottom of the eighth with a walk, and then Scott Haughan sacrificed him to second. Jeff Sarratt then received another free pass, and then Dave Duncan topped a pop fly between second base and right field. The ball was apparently lost in the sun and the tying run crossed the plate since both runners were going on the two-out hit. Then the winning run came across on an overthrow to the plate in an attempt to cut down Sarratt.

Pomona nips Garey, 2-1, to open SAL

By MARK GRIP
P-B Correspondent

Pomona High scored an unearned run in the fifth inning, breaking a 1-1 deadlock, and held on to defeat the visiting Garey Vikings, 2-1, Tuesday afternoon.

The two cross-town rivals fought hard in their San Antonio League baseball season opener.

Mike Keegan walked to lead off the Red Devil fifth. Keegan advanced to second on Dan Hess' sacrifice. After a strikeout, Keegan stole third and scored as catcher Rob Franklin's throw soared into left field on the play to third.

The Devil fifth inning run came after the Vikings had tied the score with a run in their fifth.

Randy Akers led off the inning by lining a single to right. Chris Davis followed by sacrificing Akers to second where he later moved to third on a wild pitch.

Walks to John Andrejewski and Franklin, combinedd with a strikout, loaded the bases with two outs. Ron Stancyk then singled to shallow right to drive in Akers. John Wieman (1-1) took over for Jeff Brackey on the mound and retired the following batter.

Pomona jumped into the lead, scoring an enearned run in the third, to break the scoreless deadlock.

Hess hit a shot to left that bounced off leftfielder Pierre Hill's glove for a three base error to open the third. Hess then proceeded to score on a Dan Ross wild pitch.

Ross (1-2) allowed only two hits and walked three as both Devil runs were unearned.

Pomona (1-0, 3-4) will play a make-up game today with Victor Valley and will host the powerhouse Chino club Friday. Garey (0-1, 2-5) will play another cross-town rival Friday when it travels to Ganesha.

Poly Coach Andy Vinci said Rodgers will move right into the Bronco starting lineup as an offensive guard.

Hacienda League baseball

Walnut holds off Sierra Vista, 4-3

Pitcher Mark Schultz and Butch Long combined to throw a two-hitter for Walnut High Tuesday as the Mustangs posted a 4-3 win over visiting Sierra Vista in Hacienda League baseball action.

Walnut, now 2-0 in the league competition, spotted Schultz three runs in the first three innings. But then Mark gave up two runs and two hits before being relieved by Long in the fifth inning.

Sierra Vista was able to cut the lead to 3-2 after four innings, and then Jim Bisesi doubled home Bob Flores in the bottom of the fifth to account for the eventual winning run.

Bisesi finished the day going two-for-three at the plate. However, catcher Steve Walsh had a perfect day for the Mustangs.

Along with going three-for-three, Steve drove in one run in the second inning and then scored another when Ken Czarnecki doubled in the third.

In other Hacienda League baseball action Tuesday, Royal Oak annihilated Gladstone, 20-0, and Alta Loma blanked Ontario, 4-0.

Ken Gabriel had the hot bat for the Romans, who are now 1-1 in league play. Gabriel went three-for-four at the plate and drove in three runs.

Don Dutton was credited with six RBIs while going two-for-four, and catcher Randy Delva drove in two runs while going two-for-four.

Gabriel, Delva and Cochran also collected the only extra base hits in the game—all doubles.

Nogales, Charter Oak fall in M.L. openers

Previously unbeaten Nogales High was held to just one run in its Montview Leaue opener as Northview posted an upset 7-1 victory over the host Nobles Tuesday afternoon.

Northview pitcher Ken Rogers hurled a three-hitter at Nogales and just did fail to gain a shutout when the Nobles scored in the bottom of the seventh inning.

Sammy Perez tripled and scored on a double play for the only Noble tally. Nogales is now 0-1 in Montview play and 5-1 overall.

In another Montview contest, Charter Oak dropped a 6-1 decision to Bassett on a three-hitter by the Olympians' Steve Madrigal.

Charter Oak was still within striking distance after six innings, trailing only 3-1. Lancer starting pitcher Mike Danis was relieved by Jerry Dyer in the seventh when Bassett tallied its final three runs.

Charter Oak is also 0-1 in league play.

Jenny Stary top star again for Claremont

Jenny Stary performed her magic again Tuesday afternoon for Claremont High's girls track team. But this time it was little different.

Miss Stary, hampered by an injured ankle which was heavily taped, won four events in leading the Claremont girls to a 51-40 victory over Chaffey in San Antonio League track action.

Jenny won the 80-yard hurdles in 12.5 seconds, the shot put at 32 feet, three-quarters of an inch, the long jump at 15 feet 10¼ inches, and the high jump at 4-10.

Staci Johnson was a double winner for Claremont, taking firsts in the 100 yard dash in 11.6 seconds and 220 in 26.2 seconds, which broke the school record she had previously set.

Top winners for Chaffey included Janice Mulcock in the 440 (64.0) and Verona Hogan in the half mile (2:39.5). Claremont's Jil Williamson and Chaffey's Brenda Vaun ended up ina dead heat for first place in the mile in 6:23.8.

Claremont is now 3-0 in league, while Chaffey is 1-1.

In another girls track meet held Tuesday, Ontario Christian won a non-league trimeet over Chino and Don Antonio Lugo. OCHS compiled 59½ points to Chino 29½ and Don Lugo's 0.

Michele Van Leuwen paced the Knights with victories in the mile and high jump.

San Dimas' track empire faces serious challenge

By KEVIN CLOE
P-B Staff Writer

San Dimas High's two-year reign over the Hacienda League in track will face a serious challenge Thursday afternoon.

The Saints, who have won the league championship the past two years and have racked up a total of 28 consecutive dual meet victories, will hit the road and battle Ontario High at 3:15 p.m.

The winner Thursday afternoon figures to wrap up the 1975 Hacienda League championship, although there would still be five weeks of competition remaining.

Ontario is currently tied with Gladstone for the league lead with 2-0 records, but Royal Oak and San Dimas are right on their tails with 1-0 marks.

In the other Hacienda League meets Thursday, Alta Loma hosts Royal Oak, Bonita visits Walnut, and Gladstone battles Sierra Vista. All meets are scheduled to get underway at 3:15 p.m.

The San Antonio League will also resume its competition Thursday. The key matchup in that league figures to be the Chino-Pomona battle at Pomona High. The Red Devils, favorites to win the league this year, open league competition, while Chino has already posted a 1-0 SAL record. The other league meets schedule Montclair at Claremont, Garey at Ganesha, and Upland at Damien. Those meets are also slated for 3:15 p.m.

In that Hacienda League showdown, Ontario figures to hold the upper hand in the sprints and the relays, while San Dimas should dominate in the middle distance and distance events and the field events.

Ontario's Marcus Jennings with a best time of 10.3 in the 100 and 23.1 in the 220, will pace the Jaguar sprint corps. His 220 mark so far is the best in league competition this year.

Marcus will also be favored to win the long jump, where he holds the league mark this year at 22 feet, two inches.

San Dimas' Gil Duenas is favored in the half mile, while Kevin Kellogg and Frank Diaz should take care of the mile and two mile runs.

Probably the most interesting race of the day will be in the 120 high hurdles, where San Dimas' Shelley White takes on Ontario's Jim Donaldson. White has the best mark this year in the league with a 14.9, but Donaldson's best so far in league competition has been 15.0.

The favorites in the field events will be San Dimas' Colin Fenderson in the high jump, Jennings in the long jump, San Dimas' Tony Atkinson in the pole vault, and Ontario's Brian Burleson in the shot put.

Charter Oak netters win over Bassett

Charter Oak High's tennis team opened Montview League competition Tuesday with a surprisingly easy 25½-2½ victory over Bassett.

The Lancers were led by Fernando Larrea, considered the best player in the league. Larrea won all four sets in the round robin tournament, compiling 24 game victories to only one loss.

Ron Lamb also won all four of his sets and won 24 games while losing only six. Jeff Felberg was another four-set winner for C.O., racking up 25 games while dropping eight.

The Charter Oak junior varsity team also won over Bassett, 17-11.

MSAC forward George Schader is one of 10 California junior college basketball players elected for the state JC all-star team which compete in the AAU basketball tournament in Baton Rouge, La. this weekend.

Ron Reid of Merced and Bill Frasier of Long Beach City College were named to coach the 10-man squad. Chaffey College basketball coach Barney Newlee coached the all-star team last year.

Other players named to the 10-man team are guards Chip Harper of Merced, Ed Thompson of Santa Barbara, Rodney Smith of Butte and Jim Hurley of Glendale; forwards George Berry of Compton, Jesse Boyd of Canyons, Paul Henderson of Butte and MSAC's Schader; and centers Larry Gray of Compton and Jess McHugh of Long Beach.

Schader was also named to the junior college all-state basketball team which was selected recently.

Schader, a 6-foot-7 inch, 215 pounder, led the Mounties to one of their best records ever, 24-4, during the 1974-75 season. He led the South Coast Conference in scoring and was named the conference's Most Valuable Player as the Mounties finished in a tie for second place with Santa Ana behind Cerritos.

Schader was the only South Coast player to be named to the first or second team. Two others — Cerritos center Willie Howard and Fullerton forward Bob Holgate — were honorable mention selections. Howard shared the conference's MVP award with Schader.

While Schader was a first team selection, Compton's Gray was named the most valuable JC player in the state.

Sanchez, Yarbrough sign with Southmen

Andy Sanchez and Ernie Yarbrough, Cal Poly's star receivers on the 1974 Bronco football team, have signed pro contracts with the Memphis Southmen of the World Football League.

Sanchez was the Most Valuable Player on last year's Bronco squad, as he led the team and the conference in receptions with 58 and receiving yardage with 867. Sanchez also saw action as a running back and punt returner for the Broncs, but will be given a shot by the Southmen as a wide receiver.

Yarbrough led the nation's NCAA Division III teams in pass receptions in 1973 while at the University of San Diego. Last year for Cal Poly he snagged 39 aerials for 588 yards despite being bothered by injuries most of the season.

Sanchez and Yarbrough will report to the Southmen summer camp in Memphis in July.

APC beats Biola, 89-65

Roger Johnson posted a double-victory performance Tuesday afternoon to lead Azusa Pacific College to an 89-65 victory over visiting Biola in track.

Johnson, who is scheduled to compete in APC's California Invitational Decathlon beginning today, won the triple jump at 43-feet, two inches, and then won first place in the javelin with a throw of 184 feet, six inches.

Sprinter Raymond Arredondo posted his personal college best in the 100, winning with a time of 10 seconds flat. He also anchored APC's winning quarter mile relay team.

John Wallace, who was recently elected APC's ASB president for next year, won the long jump at 23-1¼ and also ran the second leg in the quarter mile relay.

The Decathlon competition got underway at 1 p.m. today and will continue again Thursday at 1 p.m. It was originally scheduled for earlier this year, but rainy weather forced its postponement.

Bonneville losing millions of tons of salt

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Drilling tests show the Bonneville Salt Flats, where each year racing buffs try for world speed records, have lost 13 million tons of salt since 1960.

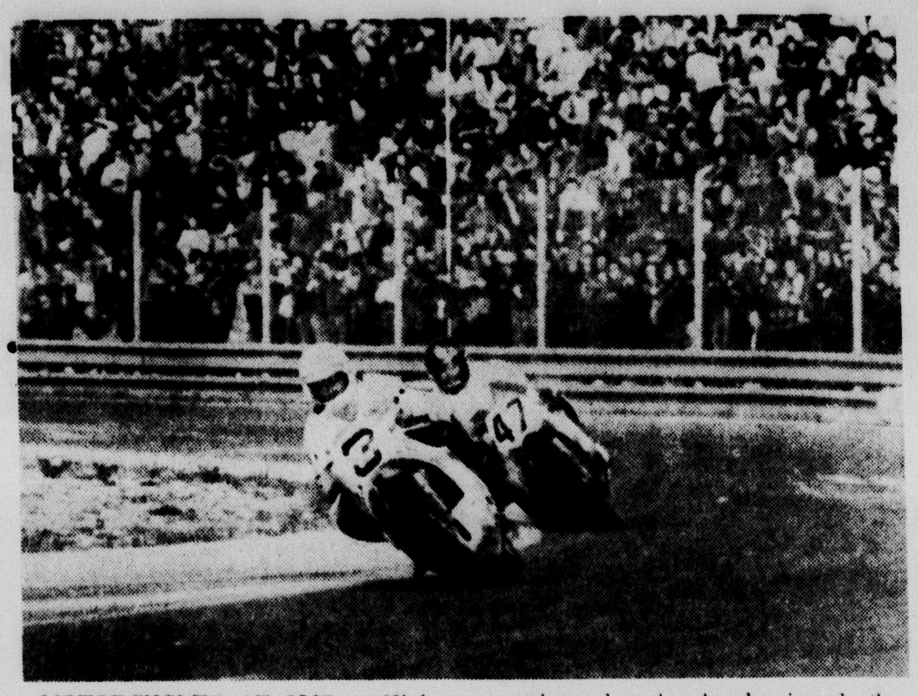
"If the race track is to be preserved, then some means must be developed to stop depletion of the salt or to restore salt at the same rate it is lost," says a study released by the Utah Geological and Mineral Survey.

Records of the flats show that in 1960 almost 20 million cubic yards of salt were measured at more than four feet thick along the racetrack. Measurements in 1974 show reduction of the salt layer so that there are no areas of that depth.

The report said comparisons between aerial photos from 1942 to 1953 and satellite imagery in 1972 show changes in outline of the salt area. Its western border remained fairly constant, but the north and eastern edges contracted enough "to cause a slight loss in surface area."

That finding was substantiated by drilling measurements made last October by the Utah Department of Highways.

Officials say loss of the salt, prehistorically trapped in a relatively impermeable clay basin, is believed due to manmade projects cutting through the clay layer and allowing salt loss through brine seepage.



MOTORCYCLES AT OMS — High speed action returns to Ontario Motor Speedway Sunday when the 160 mph road racing 'cycles invade the 20-turn, 3.19 mile road course in first national points meet of '75.

OMS will feature 'cyclists of all three classes Sunday

Rudy Galindo, holder of the American Federation of Motorcyclists coveted No. 1 plate on his Yamaha road racer, begins the year-long defense of his title at Ontario Motor Speedway, this Sunday, March 23.

Last year, Galindo earned the right to wear No. 1 on his racer by garnering more points in 1974 than anyone else in Open-Class Racing — and he finished the year with just one more point than second place man, Ron Pierce.

Over 250 entries in all classes are expected at Ontario. There are three basic classes: Production Bikes, just like the Honda's Suzuki's, Yamaha's etc., usually driven on the street; Formula bikes, 125cc, 250cc, and 750cc, all-out racers with wind-cutting fairings that permit them to hit over 160 MPH down the long front straightway at Ontario; and sidecars, which are all-out racing versions of motorcycles with sidecars. These offer a lot of excitement to the crowd, for in addition to the driver, there is in the side-car a passenger known as "The Monkey"—his gyrations and positions as he helps balance the rig while cornering give him this colorful moniker!

All classes will race on the full 3.19 mile, 20 turn Ontario road course, featuring a wide variety of high and medium speed turns, and a 160 MPH straighway. Eight races are scheduled. Admission is only $2.50 for adults and $1 for children 14 and under. The price includes a pit pass which allows the spectator access to the pit area and the garages, where he can see the exotic racing motorcycles, some costing upwards of $7,000, and talk to the many well-known racers who will be present.

As this is the first AFM National Points Race of 1975, a full field of anxious racers is expected. Practice begins at 9:30 a.m., and the first race is at 1:00 p.m.

Ontario Motor Speedway is located an easy drive from anywhere in the Los Angeles area. It's at the Haven Avenue offramp of the San Bernardino Freeway, just 40 minutes East of Los Angeles, and 15 minutes from either Riverside or San Bernardino.

Southland racing

IRWINDALE — Auto racing fans are expected to make a quick recovery from rain and wet weather as late model super stock car racing comes to Speedway 605 in Irwindale Sunday.

Limited stock car racing fell victim to rain for the second week in a row last Sunday.

Time trials start at 1 p.m.

GARDENA — Two-time grand national champion Ken Roberts and Daytona 500 winner Gene Romero of San Luis Obispo will be among the contestants in the American Motorcycle Association Pacific Coast Regional TT Steeplechase at Ascot Park Sunday.

Race time is 2 p.m. Events the last two weeks have been cancelled by rain.

IRWINDALE — A fired up team of underdog American motorcycle speedway riders defeated the best the world can offer last Thursday at Irwindale Raceway. The Americans won the first nine races before rain began to fall hard.

The next five events went against the Yanks narrowing the score to 49-35 when the racing was stopped.

The three-match series ended with the underdog American team winning two matches to one and 149 points to 135.

The Irwindale Raceway season opens April 12. In the meantime, qualifications for Division II and III riders will be held again this Saturday night.

Auto racing

Foyt retains scoring lead

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A.J. Foyt, with a third-place finish in Sunday's Phoenix 150, continued to lead the U.S. Auto Club championship division in quest of his record sixth national driving title.

Foyt, who won the other two races he started this season, has 1,410 points to 990 for Steve Krisiloff.

Last year's titlist, Bobby Unser, who did not compete Sunday, is third with 830 points, followed by Lee Kunzman with 740 and John Martin with 580.

Others in the Top 10 are Tom Sneva, 530; Wally Dallenbach, 470; Johnny Rutherford, 460; Gordon Johncock, 340; and Al Loquasto, 330.

After weekend action in the USAC midget division, Sleepy Tripp leads with 132 points, followed by Gary Bettenhausen with 120. Dana Carter, Bob Wente and Ken Nichols round out the top five.

Porsche duo aim at sweep

SEBRING, Fla. (AP) — Peter Gregg and Hurley Haywood will try Saturday to become the first driving team to make a double sweep of America's two longest endurance races.

The Porsche duo from Jacksonville, Fla., are favored in the 28th renewal of the 12 Hours of Sebring, a race that not only demands skill but immense durability of car and driver.

Gregg, 36, the "teacher", and Haywood, 26, the "pupil," captured the recent Daytona 24-hour race for the second straight time. They won Sebring two years ago when it was last held.

Practice for the biggest entry list in the history of the event begins at the 4.5 mile Sebring airport circuit Wednesday. Eligible are stock-racing cars of the Grand Touring and Touring classes, ranging from the space-age Corvette of John Greenwood to the smaller BMWs, Porsche Carreras and Camaros.

The German Porsches, which Gregg and Haywood used for the first time in their Daytona 1973 triumph, have dominated road racing in this country the last two years.

But looming as a major threat to the Porsche power are a pair of box-like little BMCs manned by Europeans Ronnie Peteson, Hans Joachim Stuck and Brian Redman and American ace Sam Posey.

One of the BMWs lasted only an hour at Daytona in February. The other one went nine hours and was in the lead when it broke down.

However, both entries showed considerably more power and speed than the Porsches.

"We had some bad engine parts at Daytona," said Posey, one of this country's most seasoned road racers. "I don't think we'll have the same problem at Sebring. If the cars hold together, we have a good chance of winning. We're looking at the race positively."

Greenwood, the wealthy Troy, Mich., engineer-driver, who also is the promoter for this year's Sebring, probably has the fastest car in the field.

Built of space-age materials and using design concepts from the space program, Greenwood's Corvette easily captured the pole position at Daytona and was running away from the field before it ran into overheating problems and wrecked with another driver at the wheel.

The entry list became so large that officials of the International Motor Sports Association ordered a 12-lap qualifying heat race Saturday morning to weed out the slower cars.

Also on the week's schedule are a 109-kilometer event for Formula Super Vees and a three-hour race for smaller Sedans Friday.

Petty moves ahead in Winston Cup scoring

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Five-time Grand National champion Richard Petty has strengthened his grip on NASCAR's Winston Cup point lead with Sunday's victory in the Southeastern 500.

The Randleman, N.C., star dominated the 500-lap affair in Bristol, Tenn., to score his second win of the season and boost his over-all point total to 842.

Bennie Parsons, the Daytona 500 winner from Ellerbe, N.C., finished second Sunday and jumped from fourth to second in the standings with 713 points. Parsons leads Grand National money winners with $49,510 after five Cup races this season.

James Hylton, fifth in Sunday's race, slipped to third place in the over-all standings with 702 points. Cecil Gordon, fourth behind Paul Sitter and Buddy Baker in the Southeastern, moved into fourth with 692 points.

Others in the Cup standings top 10 are: Richard Childress, 665; Ed Negre, 663; Dave Marcis, 658; Elmo Langley, 549; Richard Brooks, 523; and David Pearson, 520.

The next Cup event is Sunday's Atlanta 500.

Jipcho admits he set pace for Keino's Olympic win

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Seven years later, Ben Jipcho admits he made a huge sacrifice by setting a searing pace so Kenyan countryman Kip Keino could win the Olympic Games 1,500-meter run over America's Jim Ryun.

Jipcho, in town to compete in Saturday's International Track Association meet here, said Kenyan officials were concerned after the semifinals of the 1,500 meters at Mexico City.

"Before the final, Ryun was the fastest and Keino was only the third fastest," said the 32-year-old Jipcho, from Chepchabai, Kenya. "Kenyan officials called us together the night before the final and we talked it over."

He said oficials wanted him to set an early pace that would be too fast for Ryun, who had been ill two months earlier and perhaps not in the best of shape.

"I was not really willing, but they convinced me—they said I was young and that Kip was getting old," he said with a wry grin. Jipcho was 25 at the time; Keino was 28. "So it was arranged for me to set the pace.

"I had to sacrifice to set the pace because we wanted the gold medal for Kenya," said Jipcho.

The plan worked to perfection for Keino. As Track & Field News Editor Cordner Nelson wrote after that race:

"Ryun and Keino were co-favorites, Ryun because he was by far the fastest runner ever and Keino because he was second fastest and lived and trained at this high altitude. Nobody doubted Ryun's ability to beat Keino in a slow race, but this was not going to be slow...Jipcho saw to that with a 56-second first lap..."

Jipcho said he led for the first 800 meters in 1:55.6. In fact Keino grabbed the lead at that moment and was ahead "in a frightening 1:55.3, 18 yards ahead of Ryun," Nelson wrote.

"I did my job," said Jipcho.

Given a superb fast pace, Keino breezed home far ahead of Ryun and his time, in spite of the 7,349-foot altitude, was an amazing 3 minutes 34.9 seconds, an Olympic record and far faster than anyone expected. Ryun crossed the line with the silver medal in 3:37.8, then sat down on a bench in near exhaustion.

Jipcho, fatigued by his fast early pace, faded on the third lap and never was a factor thereafter. He finished a distant 10th in 3:51.2.

Ryun's silver medal was to be Ryun's only Olympic medal. His 1972 Munich hopes were dashed when, in the first round of the 1,500-meter trials—a heat in which Keino also ran—Ryun was bumped and fell.

Jipcho went on to win a silver medal in the 1972 Olympic steeplechase — behind Keino again—and then set the world record in the event. He has since become the hottest performer on the ITA tour.

Claremont Stars win to reach quarter-finals

The Claremont Stars defeated the San Diego Scramblers, 5-2, to move into the quarter-finals of the State Cup competition.

Coach Dieter Dammeier's Stars, champions of the Pacific Soccer League, rallied from an 1-0 deficit to defeat the unbeaten Scramblers.

Larry Jackson scored three goals and Allen Pitts tallied two to account for the Stars' scoring. Henry Gonzales was credited with a key assist on a 30-yard pass for Jackson's first goal which put the Stars ahead.

Dammeier mentioned the midfield play of Tom Carey and Jeff Ratajckac plus the defensive action of War Watanabe and Dave Ryan.

The Stars will play the Wolves from the West Valley Soccer League Saturday in West Los Angeles.

Brown tells reasons for returning gifts

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — California's new governor, Democrat Edmund Brown Jr., doesn't want the vitamin C, Raggedy Ann doll, worry beads and host of other gifts he has received since his election.

So the 36-year-old governor is returning more than 150 gifts, valued at over $5,000, to their senders with a brief form letter that says, basically, "Thanks, but no thanks."

It's all part of the governor's philosophy that he should not accept gifts of any kind — whatever the giver's motives.

That goes for the year-long free pass to Disneyland, the gold-plated frisbee, the statue of Jesus, the gilded eagles and the map to California flea markets.

Not to mention all the ash trays, memberships in organizations, race track and country club passes and the laminated copy of the "Time" magazine cover featuring Brown.

"A government job is an occasion for public service, not special privilege," Brown said. 'The undivided loyalty to the public interest required of the governor makes it inappropriate to keep the profusion of gifts that arrive every day at this office."

About half of those gifts are books, including a copy of "Peter Rabbit" in Latin.

Brown's predecessors accepted similar gifts and then gave many of them away.

Brown's father, Edmund G. "Pat" Brown, who was California's governor from 1959 through 1966, said he still has boxes of gifts packed away in his Beverly Hills home.

The senior Brown said some of those gifts are among his most treasured possessions — especially a mosica by San Francisco artist Benny Bufan and a book from the late U.S. Sen. Robert Kennedy.

"Ninety per cent of the stuff you get is junk, but the people who give it to you are well-meaning people," the former governor said.

He added that today his son is "100 per cent right" to refuse all gifts because of the work now required under a new state law to place values on all gifts and report them.

Former Gov. Ronald Reagan had a list of several libraries that received most of the gift books presented to him, and a children's home receiving most of the food items.

But Reagan kept some gifts that struck his fancy. A lambskin rug and a rocking chair presented to him several years ago are now at his new Santa Barbara area ranch. A coffee table from South Vietnam president Thieu is in Reagan's Los Angeles office along with numerous elephant figurines, books and bust of himself.

So far, none of the gifts received by the new governor has come from prominent citizens except a portrait which a campaign foe, millionaire M. Larry Lawrence, sent of himself as "a peace offering."

Brown says he is going to pay the postage to return all gifts out of his own campaign fund, which will have about $35,000 left over once campaign debts are paid off, his office said.

"Since most of the gifts are of a personal nature, the governor felt it only appropriate that the cost be paid through his own political fund as opposed to the state absorbing the cost of postage," said Llew Warner, a Brown spokesman.

So far there is no estimate of what the postage will cost, Warner said.

Brown' rejection of the gifts surprises some givers.

The California State Employes Association, for example, gave Brown a standard wall calendar. Brown, who accepted $14,650 from CSEA during his campaign last year, returned the calendar.

Rich Martin, a spokesman for the group, said: "We are surprised that an item as trivial as a calendar would be considered a gift and that so much trouble would be taken to send it back."

Jim Garber, publicity spokesman for Disneyland in Anaheim, said governors have been receiving gold passes — allowing them free admission and rides — since the park opened in 1955.

Couple get okay to tape over license

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — A New Hampshire couple has been given the green light to drive their car with a portion of the state motto on the license plate blocked out.

George and Maxine Maynard were granted a court injunction Tuesday allowing them to tape over the motto "Live Free or Die" on their registration plate.

The couple had been arrested twice for obliterating the motto. They said the slogan conflicted with their religious beliefs about life and death.

Neon making big comeback in art forms

NEW YORK (UPI) — Rudi Stern says neon has been getting a raw deal all these years. Behind all those beer signs lurk an art form.

"Neon has been the captive of one industry, namely signage," said Stern at his lower Manhattan studio. "There's no reason for it to be captive to signage. There's so much more it can do."

At his shop, called "Let There Be Neon," he is breaking the barriers that once relegated neon to tavern windows and rundown neighborhoods.

An offshoot is a workshop for those who want to decorate their apartments with neon sculpture.

At the back of the studio stands a life-size profile of a nude female in neon. To the right is a soft green palm tree, to the left a glass coffee table over the bluish glow of winding neon tubing.

"We're working on designs which would provide far more illumination than fluorescent and can be far more decorative," he said.

Stern said neon used to be highly visible —signs advertising the Packard automobile in 1923 in Los Angeles caused traffic jams. At the end of World War II there were 5,000 shops. But that was in the 1940s.

"There are now about 200. Of the 200 they probably have one glass bender coming in one day a week and the dust is three inches thick when he gets there." A glass bender molds the neon tubing into endless shapes.

Stern, 39, who has worked in light projections and video for 15 years, said sign companies helped bury the neon industry. They tell prospective customers neon is the "old look," and the future lies in incandescents.

"The sign companies succeeded in putting out of business many of the neon shops that were very ingenius... that were able to combine the highest forms of art and technology in impressive ways.

"So prices got higher and the quality of work diminished," he said.

Neon also caught the brunt of environmental complaints of visual pollution.

"You take a picture of U.S. 1, and the local newspaper will write about the neon jungle. People don't know about neon, so neon is blamed. But any frame of that picture contains less than two per cent neon — the rest is garbage."

But now, the neon revival is underway. Since his shop opened three years ago, Stern has done work for NBC-TV, Pierre Cardin and Bloomingdale's.

Friends of singer Bette Midler had her portrait commissioned in neon, and the New York rock concert with Todd Rundgren was splashed with neon pieces.

Even old, dusty neon signs are bringing up to $100 from collectors.

And the neon workshop, which costs $300 for a 10 week course, has been a surprising success.

"One thing I want to do is turn people onto the craft," Stern said. So far his students, who include several architects and designers, have turned out neon mushrooms, a tomato and one energetic student constructed a three-piece neon work that will lower from the ceiling in his bedroom.

All of which catches some of the old style glass benders off guard. Stern said now and then they drop by the showroom to inspect the glowing art work and the signs, including some which sell for as high as $15,000.

"They just look around in amazement," Stern said. "Some say —'you know, we always thought there was more to neon than a pizza sign.'"

Opossums are furry animals that look something like an overgrown rat. They can be found living in many parts of North America.

The way in which the opossum rears its young sets it apart from all other American animals. Opossums are marsupials — that is, baby opossums grow up in a pouch on their mother's stomach, like a baby kangaroo.

Baby opossums are tiny and helpless when they are born.

Four to 18 babies may be born at one time. Each baby is no longer than your thumbnail.

The babies at once crawl into the mother's pouch. The babies stay safe and snug in the pouch, feeding on the mother's milk until they are big enough to live outside the pouch.

After they leave the pouch, the baby opossums ride around on the mother's back until they are old enough to take care of themselves.

When fully grown, an opossum is about the size of a common house cat.

A pocket radio, camera, World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.

Schizoid Rhinestone Cowboy

Two sides to singer-songwriter Coe

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — There are at least two sides to David Allan Coe. There's David Allan Coe, singer and song writer. And there's the Mysterious Rhinestone Cowboy, country music star.

"David Allan Coe is just me in whatever I happen to be wearing sitting in front of a microphone playing a guitar," Coe says. "The Mysterious Rhinestone Cowboy is the dressed-up country entertainer.

"David Allan Coe is more pop-country, middle of the road music. The Rhinestone Cowboy is pure country."

The dual characters have been put together on Coe's new album, to be released this month by Columbia Records. Side One is David Allan Coe, mellow, middle of the road music. Side Two is the Mysterious Rhinestone Cowboy, more country, but still very much Coe.

David Allan Coe, the writer, wrote the songs on both sides.

"It's not as confusing — schizophrenic — as it sounds when you talk about it," Coe insists. "When I blend them both into a show, it becomes all one act.

"I open with myself, David Allan Coe. Then Ladysmith, my all-girl group, does some songs, and the Mysterious Rhinestone Cowboy comes on. The show sort of picks up momentum and develops."

Talking about it quietly, dressed in jeans, a T-shirt, black 10-gallon hat and patent leather cowboy boots, Coe is the mellow, gentle, soft-spoken singer-writer. He is David Allan Coe.

Then, a glint enters his eye as he is asked about the Rhinestone Cowboy. He smiles and spreads his arms apart, showing the tattoos on his hands and chest. He crosses his legs and reveals the rhinestone band across his boots.

At a loss for words, he asks his brother and manager Jack to describe this Mysterious Rhinestone Cowboy.

"He a dynamic, high energy entertainer. He's the professional entertainer where David Allan Coe might not be," jack says.

Then Coe finds his tongue.

"You can like or or you can hate it, but you can't ignore it," the Rhinestone Cowboy says, smiling.

Among the songs on the David Allan Coe side of the album, is "Would You Lay With Me in a Field of Stone," made a hit by Tanya Tucker. His new single "Would You Be My Lady" is on the album as is a fine country song, sung by the Rhinestone Cowboy, "You Never Even Call Me by My Name."

For several years Coe has had more articles written about him and his years in prison than his musical success might warrant. However, his first major album "The Mysterious Rhinestone Cowboy," received both critical and popular acclaim.

Coe, now in his early 30s, spent 20 years of his life in corrections facilities, including a stint on death row.

Freed in 1967, Coe came to Nashville a year later and began his career in country music.

Coe is not inclined to be too talkative about his prison experience.

"I can't just put it out of my mind as my mother would have me," he says, slowly picking his words.

"The adjustments come up at different times," he adds, then looks to brother Jack to finish the thought.

"Like eating with more then just a spoon," says Jack. "Sleeping in a room with another person."

Then Coe takes over. "It's a lifestyle of 20 years and you can't change it just like that. It requires constant adjustment.

"I try to make my music and my success as an ex-con a goal for others to look at and see what I have done."

Coe says he has worked with corrections departments, including Tennessee's, performed benefit shows and offered his services to rehabilitation programs.

"I prefer to call it remotivation, not rehabilitation."

Asked if feels that he is, at heart, still a prisoner, unable to shed 20 years of being behind walls, Coe thinks for a moment and says, "I try not to think about that."

Milnes' concert tops

By RALPH PIERCE

In his first apperance on the Claremont Artist Series, baritone Sherrill Milnes gave ample evidence as to why he is one of the most successful of the younger vocal artists in America.

The voice is rich and resonant and it would be difficult to name any baritone who possesses the vocal amplitude and quality of the Milnes voice. Those in the audience last weekend could see why his career has advanced to the point where he is one of the leading baritones of the distinguished Metropolitan Opera Company.

The generous program covered music of all periods and nationalities. The first section offered works by Marcello and included a setting of one of the Psalms in the form of a solo cantata. Marcello set 50 of these and they are works deserving of more frequent performance. Milnes sang with respect for their stylistic demands while still giving ample rein to his resonant vocal instrument.

For the second group we heard the Four Serious Songs of Brahms. These were delivered with style and color although this fine young baritone has not yet reached a point where he can forget vocal delivery and concentrate fully on the musical demands of the composer.

Before intermission came the two operatic arias of the evening. We heard an aria from "Andrea Chenier" by Giordano and the familiar Prologue to "Pagliacci" by Leoncavallo. The group of opera fans in the audience were more than enthusiastic and responded with many loud "bravos" and even one "bravissimo"!

For the concluding portion of the program Milnes offered three lovely French songs by Duparc and a closing group of songs by American and English composers. After songs by Copland, Duke and Warlock he closed the program with a setting of "The Gettysburg Address" by William Stearns Walker. This brought forth another ovation followed by several encores including one sung by his very able accompanist, Jon Spong with Milnes at the piano.

Caviar from Iran

Nearly 90 per cent of the world's caviar today comes from Iran. Some 250 tons a year is shipped from Bandar Pahlavi on the southern shore of the Caspian Sea. About 75 tons of that is sent to the United States.

Ruskin for Persoff in 'Dybbuk'

Joseph Ruskin has been set for the role of Rabbi Azrielke for the final extended week of John Hirsch's new adaptation of S. Ansky's "The Dybbuk" at the Los Angeles Music Center's Mark Taper Forum.

Ruskin, performing through Sunday, replaces Nehemiah Persoff who had a commitment previously scheduled before "The Dybbuk" was extended for an additional week.

Jo Davidson, father of Gordon Davidson, artistic director of the Forum, will step into the role of Meyer. Meyer had previously been played by Marvin Kaplan who also had prior commitments.

Ruskin appeared at the Forum in productions of "Othello," "Muderous Angels," "In the Matter of J. Robert Oppenheimer" and "Uncle Vanya."

"The Dybbuk" is the fifth and final offering of the 1974-75 season of the Center Theater Group.

Dean wouldn't relive last two years 'for any price'

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — John Dean, former special counsel to ex-President Richard Nixon, says he wouldn't relive the past two years for any price.

"I was ambitious and blinded by my own ambition," Dean said recent of his involvement in the Watergate cover-up. "I sold my integrity for loyalty other than my own."

Dean told a University of Puget Sound audience that Senate investigators probing the Central Intelligence Agency should look at a Watergate file compiled by the CIA after the Watergate break-in.

"There are a lot of unanswered questions about the CIA and Watergate," Dean said. "There was a close relationship between former CIA director Richard Helms and White House "plumber" Howard Hunt." Dean didn't elaborate.

A handful of students picketed outside the auditorium with signs protesting the $3,500 Dean received for his presentation. Dean told his audience of 3,000 he was sensitive to criticism of his speaking fee.

But he said he needed the money and would rather earn a living by lecturing than by accepting contributions offered him in recent months by private individuals.

Ex-Monrovia man receives death sentence from judge

PASADENA (AP) — A Superior Court judge has sentenced Billy Jo Booker to die in the gas chamber for the kidnap-murder of a Monrovia woman and her daughter.

Judge Walter Evans imposed the sentence Wednesday on Booker, 28, of Lubbock, Tex., after the jury recommended the death sentence.

Booker was convicted last week of kidnaping and murdering Audrey L. Gaines, 25, and her 14-month-old daughter, Heather.

They were kidnaped from a shopping center near their home last Aug. 22. Their bodies were discovered six days later in a ravine near Monrovia.

Booker, who had lived in Monrovia at the time of the crime, was extradited to Los Angeles for trial. He was arrested in New Mexico for allegedly robbing a liquor store there.

Burger pickle

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Boys Markets Inc. has agreed to pay $12,500 in civil penalties and to avoid misbranding ground beef in settlement of a consumer protection suit.

The Superior Court suit had been brought by a deputy district attorney who asserted tests established that ground beef and lean ground beef at eight markets had contained more than 30 per cent fat.

Tiny stoneage tribe records third birth

MANILA (UPI) — Another child has been born to the tiny stoneage Tasaday tribe, the third birth since the "gentle people" were discovered in a southern Philippines rain forest in 1971.

The Panamin Foundation, which protects cultural minorities in the Philippines, said that the baby, a boy, was born in December and brought the number of Tasaday to 29.

A hunter who reported the birth said the boy was the sixth child of Bitut and Bilangan, parents of the tribe's largest family.

Discovery of the Tasaday in 1971 intrigued the world when it was found they had no known enemies, no weapons and no words in their language for hate, war or dislike. They neither hunt nor cultivate.

Eskimo town votes not to introduce TV

IGLOOLIK, N.W.T. (AP) — This predominantly Eskimo settlement of 611, on the north end of the Melville Peninsula, has rejected the introduction of television into the community.

In a referendum, 53 voted against the introduction of television services, 47 voted in favor, and 26 wanted more time to study the effects television would have on their children and their way of life.

Igloolik was to have been one of nine Eskimo communities to have television for the first time this summer or fall. The other eight have told the Canadian Broadcasting Co. they want it.

Ken MacRury, a community development officer in Igloolik, said he thinks many people in the community "are concerned that their culture will be eroded by TV." The referendum was last week.

Expect 50,000 for job rally in Washington

WASHINGTON — More than 50,000 workers are expected here next month for a rally to protest the high rate of unemployment.

The rally, being sponsored by the big AFL-CIO industrial unions, is intended to convey to Congress and the administration "the mood of the American worker at this point," said Jacob Clayman, director of the AFL-CIO's industrial union department.

AFL-CIO President George Meany is reportedly cool to the idea of the rally. An aide to Meany emphasized that the rally was not being planned by the AFL-CIO but "by a group of people who are in the labor federation."

The industrial union department is the largest subdivision within the 13.5-million-member labor federation and includes the machinist, steelworker, chemical, communication, clothing, electrical and public employe unions.

The rally is planned for April 19 in the Robert F. Kennedy Stadium, which has a seating capacity of about 53,000 persons.

Juan Cabrillo's boots stolen

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Almost 433 years after he discovered America's West Coast for Portugal, explorer juan Rodriguez Cabrillo has lost his boots.

An official at Cabrillo National Monument says somebody pried open a door and stole the boots along with 10 of Cabrillo's flags, a pair of leggings and four molded plastic breast plates worn by his soldiers.

Among the flags were two presented to Cabrillo by Spanish rulers Phillip II and Carlos V.

The FBI said Tuesday it was investigating the theft which occurred in a converted World War II bunker on the Point Loma tip of land where Cabrillo planted a flag on Sept. 28, 1542.

Located on the busiest corner in Pomona Valley, the huge shopping center nearby has just been sold for redevelopment. I expect a lot of business will come this way from now on. In the meantime the owner is demolishing his building and is prepared to sell his property for half its value. Central air conditioning, rear room, parking for 40 cars. Worth $70,000, owner will take $35,000. THERE'S GOOD FUTURE IN THIS PROPOSAL JUST AS THERE WAS A GOOD STANDING BUSINESS BEFORE THE OWNER RETIRED. We'd appreciate a call.
